GOP Plans To Act on 4 Of Truman's Requests

Legislation Set On Anti-Inflation, Housing, U. N. Loan, Possibly Poll Tax

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Leaders of the nine-day-old session of Congress yesterday opened the adjournment throttle in a drive to wind up special session business within a week.

Limited action on only four Truman points figured in their plans.

They were: Restricted anti-inflation and housing measures, a $65,000,000 loan to the United Nations and possibly an anti-poll tax Constitutional amendment.

Night Session Called

A Senate night session on the filibuster-blocked anti-poll tax bill helped set the stage for adjournment by next midweek.

The pending anti-poll tax bill was as good as dead. The Senate Republican Policy Committee agreed yesterday it couldn't break through the Southern talk and hit on another limited action device.

The plan, subject to approval by a full conference of Republican Senators today, is to substitute a Constitutional amendment which Southern leaders have said they would not strenuously resist.

Senate GOP Steering Chairman Robert A. Taft (Ohio) and his fellow policy makers declined to bind themselves to the Constitutional amendment route, however.

They will simply submit it today to the Republican conference "without recommendation." What happens next will be up to the conference.

Morse Takes Floor

During the night session Southerners relaxed while Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.) defended the constitutionality of the anti-poll tax bill. Morse said he is perfectly willing to let the constitutional question be settled by the United States Supreme Court.

As the night meeting got under way, Senate Democratic Whip Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) questioned GOP sincerity in calling up the bill and said Republicans "never intended to pass it."

"You are not fooling the American people by this sham battle on the poll tax," he said.

The Senate recessed at 10:16 p. m. until 1 p. m. today.

Other developments in the drive to give Mr. Truman's 11 points a lick and a promise and go home were:

I. The House Foreign Affairs committee separated the proposed loan to complete U. N.'s New York headquarters from a

Patton Tops Ewell In Olympic '200'; D. C. Riflist Wins

Washington had an Olympic gold medal winner yesterday when Arthur Cook, 20-year-old 114-pounder, took the 50-meter small-bore rifle championship.

Cook, University of Maryland student who lives at 1355 Montague st. nw., had a near-perfect score of 599 out of 600.

Uncle Sam's athletes continued to dominate the track and field events of the 1948 games in London when Mel Patton, who could do no better than fifth in the 100-meter sprint, led Barney Ewell to the wire in the 200-meter race in 21.1 seconds.

Americans made a clean sweep of the first three places in the shot-put event and all bettered the previous Olympic record. Winning heave, 56 feet 2 inches, was made by Wilbur Thompson, University of Southern California stalwart.

Another Olympic and world's record was made by America's 800-meter relay swimming team. The quartet, Wally Ris, Jimmy McLane, Wallace Wolfe and Bill Smith was clocked in 8 minutes 46 seconds, 5½ seconds faster than the old mark.

Truman Gets Smith Report

Another Parley With Stalin Or Molotov Expected Today

Moscow, Aug. 3 (U.P.)—A new step in negotiations between the western Allies and Russia on the crisis in their relations is expected within 24 to 36 hours, well informed sources said today.

It is believed almost certain that the next step will be another talk between the envoys of the United States, Britain and France, with either Premier Josef Stalin or Foreign Minister Viacheslav Molotov.

American, British and French embassies conferred today on the talk last night between the western envoys and Stalin.

Long reports on the talk with Stalin were still being coded and dispatched to Washington, London and Paris as dawn broke over Moscow. It was figured that by the time the reports had been decoded and studied in the respective capitals, and discussed by the three governments among themselves, another full day would have passed.

Hence it was suggested that Allied replies to whatever statements Stalin may have made could not be expected before Wednesday or Thursday.

At last night's talk between the western envoys and Stalin in Molotov's presence it was understood the conferees got down to fundamental questions after a minimum of rehashing old arguments.

Thus there must have been an exhaustive examination of the positions of the respective sides and this alone would have been sufficient to cause the general spirit of optimism which was apparent afterward.

Truman Gets Full Report From Smith of Talk

By The Associated Press

President Truman has received a full report on Monday night's American-British-French conversations with Josef Stalin on the German crisis, the White House said late yesterday.

Charles G. Ross, presidential secretary, said a report from Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith, plus a transcript of his talk with the Russian premier, had been delivered to the Chief Executive.

He had nothing to say about the contents of the report.

Virginia Primary Results

Incumbent Democrats Score Easy Victory in 8th District

The incumbent Democrats in the Eighth Virginia District last night achieved easy victory in the party primary, but Representative Howard W. Smith got an unexpected "slap in the face" from his home town of Alexandria.

Representative Howard W. Smith, incumbent Congressman from the District and Senator A. Willis Robertson had comfortable majorities in the Eighth District.

Unofficial returns from 166 precincts gave Robertson 9211 votes to 4014 for Hart. Smith tallied 9335 votes in 164 precincts to 4135 for his opponent, Businessman Arthur F. Souther of Arlington.

Republican returns from 166 precincts showed Columnist Tyrell Krum of Fairfax ahead with 2136 votes to 1020 votes for his opponent, Charles O. Pratt, Arlington attorney.

On the basis of incomplete and unofficial returns, Smith led Souther 24 votes in Alexandria.

Incumbent Senator A. Willis Robertson trailed James P. Hart, jr., for the senatorial nomination in Alexandria.

In the five areas making up the Northern Virginia area, Krum had 1593 votes to 866 for Pratt, on the basis of unofficial returns from all but a few precincts.

In a statement to The Washington Post last night, Krum characterized the primary as the "opening wedge in establishing a two-party system in Virginia." He predicted he would carry the district in the general election in November by 1500 votes.

The vote in yesterday's Eighth District primary, one of the lightest in recent years, clearly showed the change in the character of the suburban Virginia area.

Alexandria's six wards gave Robertson 929 votes to 970 for Hart. They gave Smith 994 votes to 970 for Souther. Krum took 146 votes to 173 for Pratt.

In Arlington County, the vote was 2791 for Robertson to 1644 for Hart, in the Senatorial race. In the contest for nomination to the House of Representatives, Democrats gave Smith 2710 votes to 1768 for Souther.

In the Arlington County Board race, incumbent Alfred Frisbie tallied 2349 votes to 811 for William C. Nemeth and 1182 for Harold L. Schilz.

In the Republican primary, Krum had 519 votes to 544 for Pratt.

Fairfax County's 27 precincts gave Robertson 1388 votes to 691 for Hart. Smith had 1402 votes to 738 for South. Krum had 752 votes to 97 for Pratt.

In Loudoun County, with 23 of 28 precincts reporting, unofficial returns gave Robertson 693 votes to 163 for Hart. Smith had 772 votes to 93 for South and Krum had 100 votes to 22 for Pratt.

In 16 of 17 Prince William County precincts, the count was 564 for Robertson to 83 for Hart.

Auto Dealers' Gray Market Probed Here

House Group Collects Background Data, May Call Hearings

Gray market operations of automobile dealers in the Washington area are being probed by a House committee, Representative W. Kingsland Macy (R., N. Y.) revealed last night.

Background information, which may lead to public hearings "if warranted," is being collected by the House committee to investigate questionable trade practices, said Macy, chairman.

The investigation here, he said, is "by way of partial compliance" with requests for inquiries in many areas of the country. The Washington study, which Macy said his committee undertook with hesitancy because of "the magnitude of this business and consequent expense of investigation," may provide "a pattern of practices prevailing" in the country.

The local probe is an outgrowth, he said, of a study of the steel gray market in the Chicago area. Macy said his committee will hold public hearings on this problem next Tuesday, at 10 a. m., room 1302, New House Office Building.

Macy reported that the District study has been under way 10 days. As yet no witnesses have been summoned, he said.

President Back From Trip Home; Hoffman Reports

President Truman returned to the capital yesterday after a weekend air trip to his home at Independence, Mo.

Mr. Truman, who voted in the Missouri primary election early yesterday morning, arrived at National Airport at 12:20 p. m. (EST).

The President later received Paul G. Hoffman, Economic Cooperation administrator, and got a report on Hoffman's recent European trip.

He said he will not see Secretary of State Marshall until his regular Thursday conference with him.

GOP Leaders Agree to Press Limited Anti-Inflation Bill

By The Associated Press

Republican leaders reached an agreement last night to start a limited anti-inflation bill rolling through Congress today.

The agreement was announced by Senator Taft (R., Ohio), chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee, and Representative Wolcott (R., Mich.), chairman of the House Banking Committee. Their announcement followed a two-hour meeting of Taft, Wolcott and several members of the Senate Banking Committee.

As outlined by Wolcott, the House Banking Committee will start consideration today of a Senate-approved bill to reestablish consumer credit controls.

Wolcott said the bill would be used as a base. He explained that he would offer amendments in committee to restore the old reserve requirements for Federal Reserve banks to their 1945 level, and probably an amendment to increase the reserves of Federal Reserve banks by 3 per cent on demand deposits, and 1 per cent on time deposits.

Increasing the reserves cuts down the amount of money banks can lend. The theory is that this is a check on inflation.

President Truman had recommended that the Government be empowered to increase reserve requirments on time deposits by 4

Remington Says He Was Duped By Clever Reds In Meeting 'Spy'

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

William W. Remington, boy-wonder Government economist accused of feeding information to a Russian spy ring, yesterday traced his loyalty troubles to youthful zeal and ardent patriotism.

In six weary hours of testimony before a Senate investigating committee, the 30-year-old Commerce official described himself as something of a boob—despite his Phi Beta Kappa key—who was duped by clever Communist agents.

But throughout the grueling day of questioning by a half dozen Senators—even after his early aplomb had given away to floundering—the tall, reddish-haired former Naval officer grimly proclaimed his innocence of wrongdoing.

Denies Information Secret

Again and again, Remington insisted that the "secret" information he is accused of giving to Elizabeth T. Bentley, self-admitted Soviet spy, was nothing more than public material available to any researcher.

For example, he once hastily read two copies of the Kiplinger Letter before rushing off for an interview with Miss Bentley, whom he knew as "Helen Johnson," a researcher for New York newspapermen and writers. Other times, he interpreted facts and figures already published by the New York Times, Newsweek and Time.

Sometimes, Remington explained, he gave Miss Bentley copies of his own memos, or official papers—but all of this stuff was public information, he maintained.

These interviews—at most 10, according to Remington; perhaps 20, according to Miss Bentley—took place in 1942-43, when he was a $3200-a-year minor official with the War Production Board. Currently, Remington is $9975-a-year director of the Commerce Department's export programs staff. He presides over a committee which decides what goods can be sold to Russia.

"Important," Not "Classified"

"I gave her important information," Remington declared over and over, "and never classified, confidential, or secret information."

By "important information," Remington said he meant information that showed what a really great job was being done by the War Production Board at a time when that agency was being charged by some critics as conducting its program on a "business as usual" policy.

"Wasn't that the Communist line at that time?" queried Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.), committee chairman.

"Senators Truman and LaFollette were making similar charges," Remington retorted. President Truman was then head of the Senate War Investigating Committee. Robert M. LaFollette, jr., was then Senator from Wisconsin.

Several Senators wanted to know why Remington failed to conduct

ALGER HISS

LEE PRESSMAN

Named by witness as members of underground that sought to infiltrate United States Government

List Includes Nathan Witt, Alger Hiss and Lee Pressman

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Charges that certain top policy making officials of the Roosevelt-Truman Administration were continuously under orders from a secret foreign agent of the Soviet Union rocked Capitol Hill yesterday.

The charges were made by Whittaker Chambers, a former Communist, now associate editor of Time magazine, who testified that he was a former courier for the Communist underground network.

Among those officials Chambers named Alger Hiss, former State Department official who became secretary-general of the San Francisco conference at which the United Nations was launched. Hiss has denied the charges.

White Also Named

He named also Harry Dexter White, former Treasury official who was the chief author of the Bretton Woods monetary agreements under which the World Bank was established.

Chambers named as members of an underground ring with Alger Hiss:

Nathan Witt, who served successively as attorney and executive secretary for the National Labor Relations Board.

Donald Hiss, former State Department employe, and younger brother of Alger Hiss. He also denied the charges flatly.

Lee Pressman, formerly general counsel for WPA; now active in the third party candidacy of Henry Wallace. Pressman said last night he would issue a statement "at the proper time."

John Abt, former assistant general counsel for WPA, now a labor lawyer and an important figure in the Progressive Party.

Henry Collins, former Agriculture Department employe.

Victor Perlo, former WPB official, also named by Elizabeth T. Bentley, self-styled Russian spy and previous witness.

Charles Kramer, former counsel for a Senate Education and Labor Subcommittee.

White worked with the group but was not actually in it, Chambers said.

"I can't say positively that he was a registered member of the Communist Party," he declared, "but he certainly was a fellow traveler so far within the fold that his not being a Communist would be a mistake on both sides."

The secret Russian agent who laid down the policies for the whole undercover ring to follow, Chambers said, is J. V. Peters, an alien, who was a member of the Soviet government in Hungary after World War I. This Government arrested Peters on May 3, 1942, and tried to deport him but no country would receive him. His present whereabouts is unknown, but his name has woven in and out of all exposes of communism for years.

Demand for Facts Rising

Peters is the author of "The Manual on Organization" for the Communist Party.

Hiss and White as well as others named by Chambers have now left the Government service.

The House committee will continue open hearings today with the testimony of N. Gregory Silvermaster, former Commerce Department employe, charged by Miss Bentley with being master of a spy ring here.

Chambers' charges, following right on the heels of similar, and in some cases the same charges made by Miss Bentley, prompted a rising demand on Capitol Hill and elsewhere for the Administration to disclose promptly to the American people all the facts concerning Soviet infiltration and espionage in this Government.

Chambers told the House Committee on Un-American Activities that he joined the Communist Party in 1924, served in its underground for many years, and finally in 1937 "at whatever risk to my life" decided to break away.

Two days after Hitler and Stalin signed their nonaggression pact on August 24, 1939, Chambers said, he decided this Government must have the information about the

Dennis, at Communist Parley, Says General Is Being Saved for Crisis

New York, Aug. 3 (AP).—Eugene Dennis, general secretary of the Communist party, told the party national convention today "big capital is saving (Gen. Dwight D.) Eisenhower for a more acute emergency."

Dennis devoted most of his speech at the closed convention session to the 1948 elections. He said the Communists would continue to support the Progressive party despite contentions they should withdraw this backing if they "really want to help beat reaction."

Portions of the speech were released by the convention publicity staff. Dennis was one of 12 top Communist officials recently indicted by a Federal grand jury on charges of seeking to overthrow the U. S. government.

Crisis Predicted

"It should be noted," Dennis said, "that the very emergence of the new anti-monopoly people's party (the Progressives) is an expression of the developing crisis within monopoly's two-party system."

Symptoms of the crisis, he continued, include the "short-lived Eisenhower boom, which united Southern bourbons, Northern machine Democrats, the ADA (Americans for Democratic Action) crowd and various CIO leaders in a desperate search for a winning candidate."

But, the secretary said, "big capital is saving Eisenhower for a more acute national emergency, where he can appear in the guise of a nonpartisan candidate and play the Cincinnatus role of national saviour.

"Nevertheless, big business seeks to assure that the crisis in the Democratic Party does not develop into a death crisis for the two-party system.

"Therefore, while placing its

Move Follows Charge By Studebaker He Barred Anti-Red Talk

The resignation of Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing, charged with hindering the exposure of communism in schools, was demanded in the Senate yesterday by Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) and James O. Eastland (D., Miss.).

Former Education Commissioner John W. Studebaker has complained that Ewing's office banned a speech he planned to make urging teachers to expose communism in their classes. Studebaker protested in a letter to Ewing and sent copies to the Senate and House Appropriation Committees.

Bridges wrote Chairman Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) of the Senate's Investigating Committee that Studebaker's letter indicated a "betrayal" within the FSA. Ferguson assured him he would "get the facts."

Eastland congratulated Bridges on his move and invited the New Englander to campaign for Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, the Dixiecrat presidential candidate.

Bridges agreed that a change in Administration was necessary, but said the next President probably would be a "gentleman from New York."

Eastland replied that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey "wouldn't drive the Communists out, when for all practical purposes New York is a Communist State."

Bridges dissented, but told Eastland they could get together on getting Ewing "sent home where he belongs or deported to some other country."

Brother's First Aid Saves Va. Woman Bitten by Snake

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 3.—Mrs. Medford Christy, 33, of Falmouth, Va., owes her life today to the quick action of her brother.

Awakened from sleep by a nearby fire alarm Monday night, she walked into the living room and was bitten by a copperhead snake. She telephoned her brother, William P. Quesenberry, who rushed to the Christy home, sliced open the wound with a razor blade and sucked out the poison.

Mrs. Christy was later treated at Mary Washington Hospital here where her condition is reported as good.

English Princess' Name Linked With Churchill Cousin's

London, Aug. 3 (AP).—London society is talking about a possible new royal romance. It links Princess Margaret with the handsome Marquess of Blandford, 22-year-old cousin of Winston Churchill.

Princess Margaret has said she wants to marry "when I meet the right man," palace sources report. She will celebrate her eighteenth birthday August 21 and become officially of age.

Palace sources say Blandford, a lieutenant in the Life Guards, ranks ace high with Margaret right now. Others mentioned in the past include Lord Porchester, Young Lord Ogilvy, Lord Milford Haven and other peers. They have been her escorts many times.

Blandford, who returned recently from service in the Near East, is a son of the tenth Duke and Duchess of Marlborough. Their estate, Blenheim Palace, is said to be the largest private home in England.

Six District Residents

Ten New Cases of Polio Bring Washington Area Total to 43

Ten new cases of poliomyelitis—six involving District residents and four nonresidents—were reported to the District Health Department yesterday.

These latest diagnoses bring the District resident total to 20 and the nonresident area figure to 23 in contrast to last year's figures of 3 resident and 7 nonresident for the same period.

District resident cases diagnosed yesterday involved:

A 10-month-old boy of the 2700 block Terrace rd., se., entered Children's Hospital, July 21;

A girl, 22, Nebraska av., at Ward Circle nw., Gallinger, July 29;

A girl, 6, first block E st. se., Gallinger, July 27;

A man, 20, 1300 block D st. se., Gallinger, July 27;

A woman, 37, 700 block Princeton pl. nw., Gallinger, July 29;

A boy, 11, 4500 block Eads st. ne., Gallinger, Monday.

A boy, 12, Oxon Hill, Md., Gallinger, July 24.

A boy, 3, 6300 block Field st., Seat Pleasant, Md., Children's Hospital, July 30.

No deaths have resulted here from polio this year. As of July 31, 10 patients have been released.

In the meantime hopes grew in North Carolina that its worst polio epidemic may be abating when only 16 new cases were reported yesterday.

It was the smallest daily total since July 6 when 16 cases also were reported.

Total for the year in the State now stands at 1139 and the total for July at 724. There have been 62 deaths this year.

Despite the decline of cases in North Carolina, the American Automobile Association warned against vacation travel for youngsters through that State and South Carolina.

"If children must be taken in automobiles through those two States, avoid all crowded places," urged Charles F. Pratt, AAA manager of touring services. He urged the precaution be taken "especially while the warm weather continues and the polio epidemic rages."

Atom Bomb Custody Situation Is 'Improved' in Military Eyes

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Military men reported yesterday that there has been recent improvement in conditions surrounding the custody of America's stockpile of atomic weapons and their ready availability for possible use in a war emergency.

The armed forces have been urging a change in the custody of the Nation's completed A-bombs. They want to assure that military commanders would have immediate and unobstructed access to them so that they could retaliate instantly in the event of a foreign attack.

Nonmilitary agencies of the Government have opposed a transfer of atomic bomb stockpiles from the civilian Atomic Energy Commission to the military services.

They contend that control of such a terrible weapon should remain in civilian hands. Present procedures are adequate to give the armed forces ready access to the bombs when ordered by the President in an emergency, civil officials declare.

The question was taken to the White House, and President Truman—who must personally order any transfer of A-bombs from the

Altercation Stalls Danube Conference

Berlin Optimism

Blockade End Expected as Fruit of Talks

By Homer Bigart

Belgrade, Aug. 3 (NYHT).—The 10-nation Danubian Conference degenerated today into a typical exchange of unpleasantries between the East and the West.

The adversaries were Andrei Vishinsky, chief of the Russian delegation, and the British Ambassador, Sir Charles Peake. Each accused the other of tough talk and intimidation.

Their speeches consumed the entire session, and delayed until Wednesday discussion of the proposed draft Vishinsky submitted yesterday of a new convention for the control of Danube navigation.

As it stands, the Vishinsky draft is unacceptable to the United States, Britain and France. Unless it is radically amended none of the three Western powers is likely to sign it.

Apparently that would not bother Vishinsky, who has said, "The door is open for them to go out." His draft would bar western participation on the new Danube Control Commission.

Sir Charles was in Churchillian mood today when he rose to answer Vishinsky. Last Saturday Vishinsky had accused Sir Charles of trying to frighten the conference with a verbal ultimatum to the effect that Britain would not sign the new convention unless her rights under the old convention of 1921 were perpetuated.

"Has he mistaken me for a prisoner in the dock?" cried Sir Charles. "I have no intention of being intimidated. I will not jump to the crack of Vishinsky's whip."

All he had said, Sir Charles recalled, was that the 1921 convention could not be abrogated without the consent of all signatory nations (they included Belgium, Italy and Greece, not represented at this conference). It was still a legal statute, he maintained, in contradiction to Vishinsky, who held that it had been nullified by the greater international agreement.

Vishinsky threw back his head and laughed. In his reply he said he still regarded Sir Charles' statement as an ultimatum since it spoke of rights under the 1921 convention that must be honored and must not be changed.

Small Hand Grenade Found in Vatican City

Vatican City, Aug. 3 (AP).—A street sweeper found a small hand grenade this morning near the entrance to St. Peter's Square. It was nestled at the bottom of the first column in the right arc of the Bernini colonnade.

The Italian War Ministry's artillery headquarters sent explosives experts who nudged the grenade some yards from the colonnade, sandbagged it and set it off harmlessly.

Czechs Renew U. S. Charges

Prague, Aug. 3 (AP).—The Czechoslovak foreign ministry charges that a can accused of trying to kill the defense ministry, Gen. Dudvik Svoboda, had been instructed for the task in the presence of a dozen American officers.

This statement was contained in a note delivered to the U. S. Embassy several days ago. It replied to an American protest against official Czechoslovak statements linking American Army personnel to the reported attack on Svoboda and the slaying of Maj. Augustin Sram, a Communist Party official.

The Czechoslovak note said authorities had questioned 79 persons arersted in connection with the case and got this account:

Milan Choc, who was arrested for the killing of Sram, left the American zone of Germany for Czechoslovakia with the knowledge of the American Counter Intelligence Corps. Before his departure from Regensburg, Germany, he saw a CIC officer who instructed him and promised him right of asylum.

A CIC captain gave instructions to Miloslav Barak, an agent of the CIC, who was sent to Czechoslovakia with the mission of killing Svoboda.

U. S. Army Calls Austrian Story of Agents False

Vienna, Aug. 3 (AP).—The official Soviet news agency Tass charged today that a number of Austrians arrested recently by Soviet authorities were known criminals who acted as agents for the U. S. Army intelligence service.

American officials said the charge was without foundation. The Tass statement mentioned Capt. Frank Harris, described as chief of the 430th Counter Intelligence Corps, as an American who hired one of the Austrians. American CIC officials said they had never heard of any Captain Harris.

Jap Officials Face Red Ire

Tokyo, Aug. 3 (AP).—Japanese Communists today plastered Tokyo with posters shouting defiance of the government and the occupation.

The Communists, who have seized on General MacArthur's recent stand against strikes by government workers, were careful not to mention the occupation directly.

"We hereby declare war against fascism and third party interference which are running berserk," said the posters. The "third party" is the Communist way of referring to the occupation.

The party's newspaper also trumpeted an editorial calling for "revolution against the governing class."

Authorities regarded all this tumult as a warmup for a big Communist homecoming rally in downtown Tokyo Wednesday for party secretary, Gen. Kyuichi Tokuda.

Tokuda escaped with slight injuries when a bomb thrower tried to assassinate him on Kyushu, the southern Japanese island.

Meanwhile, Blaine Hoover, chief of MacArthur's civil service division, said MacArthur had been forced to take a stand against government worker strikes "to restore a semblance or order to a rapidly deteriorating situation."

He issued a statement terming "complete nonsense" the position taken by John S. Killen, who quit as head of MacArthur's labor division in protest to occupation policies on government workers.

Reds Malay Coup Blocked

Singapore, Aug. 3 (AP).—A Communist timetable which called for taking over Malaya today is made public by Malcolm MacDonald, High Commissioner for the United Kingdom in Southeast Asia.

MacDonald said the Communist Republic of Malaya was to have been proclaimed today but instead the insurgents are "licking their wounds in the jungle."

MacDonald said in a broadcast tonight that he was speaking "in the unavoidable absence of the chief commissar of the republic."

He said British military offensives "seriously" interrupted the revolutionary timetable and left the Communists in "grieviously weaker positions." He expressed optimism that Britain now holds the military initiative in her rechest possession and indicated indirectly that Britain hopes to restore peaceful conditions within a few months.

Szakasits President Of Hungary

Budapest, Aug. 3 (AP).—Arpad Szakasits, pro-Communist Socialist, succeeded to the Presidency of Hungary today.

He was sworn in immediately, taking the place of Zoltan Tilby, a member of the Smallholder Party, who resigned Friday when his son-in-law was accused of spying and treason.

Szakasits, a former brick mason and Socialist newspaper editor was declared elected unanimously by the Parliament after about 30 members of the Democratic Peoples Party and the Christian Women's Camp walked out. The opposition groups returned after the ballot.

His election had been forecast since Saturday, when the dominant United Workers Party—a merger of Communists and Socialists headed by Szakasits—had declared for him and other parties followed suit. His was the only candidacy presented to Parliament.

Szakasits, at a swearing-in ceremony, promised to deal with "satellites of imperialists at home" with an iron fist and to cooperate closely with neighboring "peoples' democracies"—the countries of the Soviet bloc.

Szakasits was Vice Premier and for many years was a Socialist deputy in Parliament.

Russia Trains Cadets From Balkan Lands

London, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—Important details of military cooperation between Russia and her satellites slipped out during bitter exchanges between the Cominform and the Yugoslax Communist Party, British Balkan experts said today.

Informants said the dispute showed that Yugoslavs are receiving military, political and other training at at least seven top-level Soviet institutes—the military-political Lenin Academy in Moscow, Voroshilov Military Academy in Moscow, Stalin Tank Academy in Moscow, Artillery Institute in Kiev, Frunze Military Academy in Moscow, Engineering Academy in Kuibishev and Dzerzhinsky Artillery Academy in Moscow.

Czechoslovak military circles here said Czechoslovak students were studying in Russia even before the Communist coup in February.

Next to the Yugoslavs, it was believed the largest cadet or student corps in Russia hails from Bulgaria.

A large number of Romanian Communists were understood to have been sent to Moscow for military training after the appointment last December of a Communist Defense Minister, Emil Bodnerash, a member of the politbureau of the Romanian United Workers Party.

Greeks Score Victories on Two Fronts

Athens, Aug. 3 (AP).—The Greek army offensive against stubborn rebel resistance moved into high gear today with the capture of important guerilla strong points on both eastern and western fronts.

The reshuffled Greek army command announced that national forces, using British-made 18-ton Centaur tanks, had captured Amouda Heights on the eastern front. Amouda had withstood violent attacks for six weeks.

An earlier announcement said army forces had captured positions on the north and south flanks of the rebel western front defense line. The capture of Kerassovon, southern anchor of Markos Vafiades' defense line, narrowed the gap between the government Ninth and Second Divisions in that sector to only 2½ miles.

A general staff spokesman said that reports had been received that the Ninth Division had captured Kamenic Heights at the northern end of the western defense line.

An American observer said the guerilla leader might attempt to withdraw into Albania.

Time Editor and Ex-Communist Rocks Capitol Hill With Story

underground ring of Communists in the Government.

On advice from the White House, he said, he reported his information to A. A. Berle, the Assistant Secretary of State, who acted for President Roosevelt on intelligence matters.

A great deal later, he said, he discovered that apparently nothing had been done about the matter.

Berle, in New York yesterday, confirmed the fact that Chambers had come to him. Berle said he was available for questioning on details of the matter to any congressional committee that cared to call him.

In about 1936, Chambers said, it was decided that three of the men involved were going far in the Government and that they should be detached from the underground "apparatus."

One of them, he said, was Alger Hiss, who finally rose to a top policy level in the State Department. Another was Lee Pressman and still another was Collins. Collins did not rise as far as expected and Pressman left the Government service in 1936 to become general counsel for the CIO. He was recently forced out by CIO President Philip Murray in Murray's drive against Communist influence in the union.

It was Peters, the alien Russian agent who made the decision to detach these people, said Chambers.

"The decision was," Chambers testified, "that we would take these people out of that apparatus and separate them from it physically.

"That is, they would have no further intercourse with the people there. But they would be connected still with that apparatus and with Peters through me.

"It was also decided to add to this group certain other people who had not originally been in that apparatus. One of these people was Harry White."

Miss Bentley had earlier testified that White was one of the sources of information for her espionage ring, although she said she never met him personally.

Chambers said he knew White well and had begged him to leave the underground Communist movement when he did.

For that reason, Chambers testified, he did not mention White's name to Berle. Four years later, he said, when he became convinced that White had not left the movement he gave his name to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Representative F. Edward Herbert (D., La.), asked Chambers what he thought of White's comment that Miss Bentley's charges were "fantastic and shocking."

"After my evidence, my testimony, I should think he would have to find some more adjectives," Chambers returned.

Tells of Seeing Hiss

After he decided to break with the Communist Party, Chambers testified, he tried to persuade Hiss to do likewise.

"I went to the Hiss home one evening at what I considered considerable risk to myself and found Mrs. Hiss at home. Mrs. Hiss is also a member of the Communist Party."

He explained that he referred to Mrs. Alger Hiss, because he thought Mrs. Donald Hiss, wife of the other brother, was not a party member.

"Mrs. Hiss attempted while I was there to make a call, which I can only presume was to other Communists, but I quickly went to the telephone and she hung up and Mr. Hiss came in shortly afterward and we talked and I tried to break him away from the party.

"As a matter of fact, he cried when we separated, when I left him, but he absolutely refused to break."

He added that he was "very fond" of Mr. Hiss at the time.

Hiss gave only reasons that were "the party line" for refusing to join him, Chambers said.

From his New York office yesterday, where he heads the Carnegie Foundation for World Peace, Hiss denied even knowing Chambers.

"I don't know Chambers. So far as I know I never laid eyes on him," Hiss told The Washington Post. "There is no basis for his statements about me.

"I have telegraphed the Thomas Committee asking permission to appear before it and make my denial under oath."

Informed of Chambers' detailed report of the farewell meeting, Hiss declared: "Well, he has a vivid imagination anyway. Perhaps he should be writing mystery stories instead of editing."

Chambers Gets Support

Support, however, for Chambers was forthcoming from Representative Karl A. Mundt (R., S. Dak.), acting chairman of the committee.

"Mr. Chambers," said Mundt, "I am very much interested in trying to check the career of Alger Hiss. I know nothing about Donald Hiss, but as a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, the personnel committee, I have had some occasion to check the activities of Alger Hiss while he was in the State Department.

"There is reason to believe that he organized within the department one of the Communist cells which endeavored to influence our Chinese policy and bring about the condemnation of Chiang Kai-shek, which put Marzani in an important position there."

(Mundt referred to Carl Marzani, convicted in United States District Court here of falsely swearing to a superior that he had never been a member of the Communist Party. The conviction was upheld by the Court of Appeals. Marzani served a month at Lorton, then was released on $2500 pending a Supreme Court decision on his case. This is expected in October.)

Hiss in Influential Posts

At Dumbarton Oaks and other preliminary conferences leading up to the United Nations Conference in San Francisco, Hiss was in a position to exercise great influence on the language of the draft Charter presented to the conference for consideration and revision.

It was during these pre-San Francisco conferences that the controversial great power veto was injected into the Charter.

Efforts by smaller nations to soften the veto at San Francisco were beaten down by the United States and Soviet delegations.

At this time, Hiss was chief American draftsman of the Charter.

Hiss was executive secretary of the Dumbarton Oaks meeting.

Within seven months, Hiss was promoted from special assistant to the director to the post of deputy director of the State Department's Office of Special Political Affairs.

All matters relating to the proposed United Nations security organization thus came under his supervision.

In 1945, Hiss went to the Yalta conference on the staff of President Roosevelt's advisers. When he came back he succeeded Leo Pasvolsky as director of the OSPA.

It was at Yalta that the decision was made to call the United Nations conference in San Francisco on April 25. Hiss was named temporary secretary-general, and later was confirmed in that post by the United Nations. Then Hiss was made secretary of the Preparatory Commission which was the official link between the San Francisco conference and the United Nations.

In June, 1945, it was Hiss who flew the United Nations charter from San Francisco to Washington for ratification by the United States Senate.

Hiss Succeeds Butler

After artification of the charter was effected, Hiss went to London for a month in 1946 as principal adviser to the United States delegation to the General Assembly of the United Nations.

On his return to the United States he continued his work with OSPA, which had expanded to a staff of 200 persons.

At the end of 1946 Hiss was elected president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace to succeed Nicholas Murray Butler. This is a foundation with a 30-million endowment fund to conduct research into the causes and effects of war with the purpose of abolishing it.

Donald Hiss, younger brother of Alger Hiss, left an $8250 job in the State Department's Office of Economic Affairs in 1945 to become a partner in a Washington law firm. Chambers told the committee yesterday the firm was the one headed by Thomas G. (Tommy the Cork) Corcoran, onetime New Deal braintruster. (Donald Hiss, as a matter of fact, has never been with the Corcoran firm and is a member of a different law firm here.)

Donald Hiss taught constitutional law part-time at the Catholic University law school here from about 1938 to 1940. Contemporary faculty colleagues recalled him last night as a "fine, intelligent fellow," with "an excellent reputation" at the school.

Polish Loan Cited

Donald Hiss was "connected with negotiating the loan to Poland," Chambers said.

The loan to Poland has been a source of much interest to members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Following developments closely, House Foreign Affairs Committee members have predicted that if all the facts come out, action taken to discharge certain employes of the State Department will be found justified. (Hiss was not among those discharged.)

These members point to a certain embarrassment suffered by Secretary of State George C. Marshall in connection with the Polish loan. One member said yesterday that although Secretary Marshall was widely criticized in the press for "summary action," full disclosure will eventually redound to his credit.

At one time, some members were told, an Ambassador of this Government found that his official reports were mysteriously altered after they had left his hands and reached the State Department.

Career of Donald Hiss

Like his brother, Alger, Donald Hiss at one time served as a secretary to a Supreme Court justice. Alger was secretary to Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, a post he obtained through Justice Felix Frankfurter.

Donald Hiss came to the State Department in 1938 as assistant to the legal adviser. He served as a member of an economic mission to French North Africa during the war, and later was appointed executive assistant to the Assistant Secretary of State.

The 44-year-old Alger Hiss, a native of Baltimore, Md., entered the Government in 1933 as an employe of the Department of Agriculture, serving first as assistant to the general counsel for the AAA. He became assistant general counsel and later in 1934 and 1935 served as a legal assistant for the Department of Justice on a special Senate committee investigating the munitions industry.

In 1936 he joined the Department of State as assistant to Assistant Secretary of State Francis B. Sayre.

Harry Dexter White

Of equal importance in shaping Government policies was Harry Dexter White, a resident of Bethesda, who has also resigned from government service.

White was the author not only of the controversial "Morgenthau plan" to deal with Germany after the war but also the chief author of nearly every Bretton Woods measure.

White came to Washington in 1934 from Lawrence College in Appleton, Wisc., where he was an economics professor. He was brought to Washington by Professor Jacob Viner of the University of Chicago.

He entered the Treasury Department and became Director of Monetary Research, a title he kept until he left. In 1943, White became known as the man behind the then Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau's postwar monetary proposals.

Members of various committees on Capitol Hill commented yesterday that if any proof of the charges made yesterday should be forthcoming, Congress will no doubt scrutinize and review every international agreement made during this period because of the importance of the posts held by the men named.

Administration Democrats are greatly concerned that whether proof is forthcoming or not campaign ammunition in enormous chunks has been offered the Republican Party. Several Democrats said they had urged Administration leaders long ago to "clean their own house" and make public any real facts concerning Communist infiltration in the Government.

Ironically, none of these charges, The Washington Post learned, would have been made public before the elections had a special session not been called by President Truman.

Testimony Dovetails

On the Senate side, members of the Senate Committee on Executive Expenditures had originally decided to hold no public investigation before the elections because they felt the matter too important to have even a tinge of politics. They changed their minds after the special session call.

On the House side, Representative F. Edward Hebert (D., La.), a member of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, said that group would not have gone forward at this time except for the necessity of returning for the special session.

Chambers said yesterday he did not know Miss Bentley, who according to testimony held the same courier post several years later Chambers said he held with the underground Communist movement. Their joint testimony, however, dovetails in many respects.

The Time editor began his testimony with this statement:

"Almost exactly nine years ago, that is two days after Hitler and Stalin signed their pact, I went to Washington and reported to the authorities what I knew about the infiltration of the United States Government by Communists.

"For years international communism (of which the United States Communist Party is an integral part) had been in a state of undeclared war with this Republic.

"With the Hitler-Stalin pact, that war reached a new stage. I regarded my action in going to the Government as a simple act of war—like the shooting of an armed enemy in combat."

Underground Organization

Later he told the committee:

"The heart of my report to the United States Government consisted of a description of the apparatus to which I was attached. It was an underground organization of the United States Communist Party developed, to the best of my knowledge, by Harold Ware, one of the sons of the Communist leader known as 'Mother Bloor.'

"I knew it as its top level, a group of seven or so men, from among whom, in later years certain members of Miss Bentley's organization were apparently recruited.

"The head of the underground group at the time I knew it was Nathan Witt, an attorney for the National Labor Relations Board. Later, John Abt became the leader.

'Infiltration of Government'

"Lee Pressman was also a member of this group, as was Alger Hiss who, as a member of the State Department, later organized the conferences at Dumbarton Oaks, San Francisco and the United States side of the Yalta conference.

"The purpose of this group at that time was not primarily espionage. Its original purpose was the Communist infiltration of the American Government. But espionage was certainly one of its eventual objectives. Let no one be surprised at this statement.

"Disloyalty is a matter of principle with every member of the Communist Party. The Communist Party exists for the specific purpose of overthrowing the Government (at the opportune time) by any and all means, and each of its members, by the fact that he is a member, is dedicated to this purpose."

In the 10 years since he broke away from the party, Chambers said, "I have sought to live an industrious and God-fearing life."

Stating that he had since then fought communism continuously, Chambers declared, "I am proud to appear before this committee."

His voice broke and for a moment he could not continue as he added: "The publicity inseparable from such testimony has darkened, and will no doubt continue to darken, my effort to integrate myself in the community of free men."

Nathan Witt, mentioned by Chambers as a member of the original underground apparatus, was born in New York City in 1903. He served as executive secretary of the National Labor Relations Board from 1937 to 1941 when he was responsible for selecting the cases and determining the order in which they would go before the board.

He was formerly associated with Lee Pressman in private law practice and not represents left-wing labor unions in New York. Witt once wrote a House Committee he never had been a Communist, a Communist sysmpathizer or "one who hews to the Communist Party line."

Pressman was also born in New York City—in 1906. He joined the AAA in 1933 as assistant general counsel. After two years, he became general counsel for WPA, and resigned in 1936 to go with CIO. Pressman ran the platform committee at the recent Wallace convention in Philadelphia.

The pudgy Time magazine editor said he lived for a year "in hiding, sleeping by day and watching through the night with gun or revolver within easy reach" right after he left the Communit Pary.

Chambers told the committee that when he decided the Government should have his information he went to Isaac Don Levine, a writer, now editor of Plain Talk magazine, who in turn approached the late Marvin McIntyre, the late President Roosevelt's secretary. McIntyre informed Levine that Berle was the man to see. Chambers emphatically pointed out to the committee that Berle was and is very definitely "an anti-Communist."

Representative F. Edward Hebert (D., La.) said he had "every reason to respect the integrity of Mr. Berle" and demanded he be called as a witness. Mundt said the committee would take that up in executive session.

A member of the Regular Army from 1908 to 1919, Colonel McDonnell headed his own civil engineering firm in China until 1937, then became general manager of the William Hunt Co. there.

When the Japanese invasion forced him out of China in 1941 Colonel McDonnell returned to Washington where he served in the adjutant general's office for 18 months. He went overseas in October, 1943, as a member of General Bradley's Twelfth Army Staff in Europe.

FTC Aide Quits Unitarian Parley

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 3 (AP).—Resignation of Federal Trade Commissioner Lowell B. Mason from the Unitarian Star Island conference because of remarks by Prof. Goodwin Watson of Columbia University Teachers College today brought an assertion that Watson's speech did not "keynote" the meeting.

"He was just another speaker, although he happened to be the first of a series," American Unitarian Association headquarters said.

Mason, in resigning, said the conference leadership "had been used by alien forces" and that Professor Watson's speech had "attacked democracy while favoring communism."

A spokesman for the association, calling attention to a current article in the church's publication attacking the presidential candidacy of Henry A. Wallace, said the association indorsed no political aspirant and that the next issue of the magazine would contain two articles on Wallace, one written by a sympathizer and the other by an opponent—both ministers.

"It is our objective," said the spokesman, "to present all sides of the Wallace controversy."

The association said the conference was drafting a statement "clarifying the situation," and that it would be made public late in the day.

Star Island, one of the Isles of Shoals, is without telephone or telegraph communcation and efforts to contact Professor Watson for comment were not immediately successful.

Duped, Declares Remington

his interviews with "Newspaperwoman" Bentley in his WPB office instead of meeting her on street corners, park benches and in restaurants around town.

"I know it was unusual," replied Remington, groping for words to explain. "In fact, it was quite remarkable, looking backwards."

Were the "clandestine" meetings held in order to hide something, the committee wanted to know.

No, not at all, Remington said. Somehow or other Miss Bentley always had a "plausible" excuse for meeting him at 14th and Pennsylvania ave., in a park or cafe, and once even in the Mellon Gallery, he explained.

Once, for instance, she phoned and said she was way uptown and rushing off to a luncheon date, so could he meet her halfway? His office being in the Social Security Building, at 7th and Independence ave., a good halfway point seemed to be 14th and Pennsylvania.

They Sat in the Park

Then there was the time he urged Miss Bentley to come down to the office for the interview. But she wouldn't. She said: "Oh, it's such a beautiful day! Why don't we sit in the park?" And being a nice guy, Remington indicated, he just gave in to the suggestion.

"I was only 24 years old, and silly enough not to realize it was a preposterous procedure."

Wasn't it more than preposterous, the committee demanded to know? Wasn't her insistence on meeting him away from the office in itself enough to arouse his suspicions?

Not at all, replied Remington. He'd been taken to restaurants dozens of times by reporters, he said. ("They never take me to lunch," commented Senator Edward J. Thye (R., Minn.). And while it was true that he didn't make a habit of meeting reporters on street corners, he once had a quickie interview with Alfred Friendly, Washington Post reporter, in a walk across Lafayette Park.

Remington later told reporters that Friendly met him in Lafayette Park at his (Remington's) request so that Remington could meet a car pool which gathered there. At the time, Remington said he was an official of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion.

(Friendly is presently on leave of absence, serving in Paris as European press chief for the Economic Cooperation Administration.)

What Miss Bentley Wanted

Well, what kind of information did Miss Bentley seek, the committee pressed Remington. Weren't her questions suspicious?

Looking backward, Remington said, it appeared that she seemed to be interested in four subjects: Plane production data; WPB internal policies and personalities; formulas, like making synthetic rubber out of garbage; allocations to Russia.

At first, her queries were not of a suspicious nature, Remington said. The same kind of questions were asked of him at various times by such reporters of "high repute" as Friendly, Bob Kleiman, of United States News, then of The Washington Post, and Fred Neal, formerly of the Wall Street Journal, among others, Remington recalled.

Later on, however, her seeming stupidity in not understanding the basic facts of the program made him wonder if she really was a researcher as she claimed to be. As a result, he kept his interviews short, once his suspicions were aroused.

Why didn't he report her to his superiors, Remington was asked by the committee.

He didn't have any firm grounds to mistrust her, Remington said, only vague suspicions. It was only years later, when questioned by the FBI that he learned she was a "most dangerous kind of Communist," Remington declared.

Witness Happy to Explain

What about the formulas, and in particular, what about the rubber formula which Miss Bentley, though not understanding it, thought to be important and immediately passed along to the Russians?

This question came up after some five hours on the stand, and Remington, who'd slumped and wilted considerably, brightened up. He'd be most happy to explain that one, because it was something of a joke.

It appears, Remington said, that WPB was in charge of the rubber production program and was seeking new ways of making synthetic rubber. Among the ideas that came in were screwball ideas from a number of crackpots, all of which had to be investigated, and all of which consumed time, delaying the ultimate program. As an example, to show Miss Bentley that the delays in the program were legitimate, Remington described to her one such "fantastic" formula for making synthetic rubber out of garbage. "The whole business was so much garbage," Remington declared.

Paying of Dues Denied

What about the Communist Party dues Miss Bentley said Remington gave her?

That was some $30 which he and his wife contributed to a fund of the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee, Remington insisted, and not dues. He also once lent her $1, and several times he paid her in change for copies of the Daily Worker she insisted he take along with him.

How did he happen to meet Miss Bentley in the first place? The answer to that one was a long, involved story, and it threaded through the entire day's testimony. Here's how Remington explained it:

His mother-in-law, Elizabeth Moos, of Croton-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., North, introduced him to Joseph Masses, a Communist publication. Although he, Remington, was a vigorous opponent of communism, he and North maintained a friendly enemy relationship in their discussions.

North introduced him to John Golos, whom he described as a "writer." (Golos has been described by Miss Bentley as head of the espionage ring and the man she loved. He died in 1943.)

Meets Woman in Case

Golos, in turn, introduced Remington to Miss Bentley, whom he identified as "Miss Johnson," a researcher for himself and other writers. And would Remington help out "Miss Johnson" when she went down to Washington for material on the book that Golos was writing about war production?

Remington would and did, never suspecting that he was thus becoming a link in the espionage system, he declared. He wanted, intensely, to get out the right ideas on the war program, and he hoped to set Golos, the writer, on the right track, Remington told the committee.

"It doesn't make sense," commented Senator Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.). "You have a high IQ, a Phi Beta key, and you won honors at Dartmouth. You can't have been so naive."

Nonetheless, that's exactly what he was, Remington pleaded. Sure he was intilligent, and a good economist, but he was young and inexperienced, too, and eager to help the war effort. His effort may have been foolish, Remington insisted, but it was patriotic.

At the end of the day's session, Chairman Ferguson announced that the Commerce Department still refused to turn over to the committee Remington's employment record pending White House approval.

Quizzed About His Jobs

The committee quizzed Remington extensively on the various and increasingly important jobs he has held with the Government, particularly since August, 1945, when Miss Bentley turned herself in to the FBI.

Since that time, the FBI presumably was in receipt of serious loyalty charges against Remington lodged by Miss Bentley, who asserts he was a Communist and a knowing member of the spy ring. The committee wants to know, Ferguson declared, how it was that Remington could move so freely from key post to key post, without the question of his loyalty being raised.

For example, Remington was given a Navy commission and sent to London on an important mission. Later, at the request of John W. Snyder, now Secretary of the Treasury but then OWMR director, Remington was transferred to duty with that agency. Then as a civilian, Remington stayed with OWMR, and later moved over to Commerce Department. Only recently he was considered for a post with the Atomic Energy Commission.

The Snyder letter was found in the same Navy Department personnel folder from which the committee yesterday produced Remington's April, 1944, application for a Navy commission in which he stated that at WPB he had access to all types of highly secret data. The committee found in the list mention of the Manhattan Project, which developed the atomic bomb.

Chairman Ferguson said that was such "a great secret" then that not even the Senate War Investigating Committee (Truman Committee), of which he was a member, could get any information about it. He pointed out that April, 1944, was long before the bomb was used and was a time when nobody outside of the project was supposed to know anything about it.

Remington said he knew the project was getting overriding priorities for equipment and machinery but did not know why.

The committee will continue its hearings today. Remington said he would ask the committee to subpena a number of high-ranking Government officials, including several of sub-cabinet rank, to testify as to his character and work with the Government.

money on the GOP to win, it is doctoring up the donkey to keep it in the race, and to make the Democrats a formidable 'loyal opposition' after November."

Dennis declared "we are determined to launch the most extensive Communist election campaign in our party's history."

The convention, which opened last night with a rally in Madison Square Garden, continues through Friday. The closed sessions are at a hotel. About 250 delegates and 100 guests are attending.

Herbert March of Chicago, a member of the CIO United Packing House Workers Union, was chairman at today's session.

Convention Officials

Other convention chairmen named were Pettis Perry, member of the party's executive board in Los Angeles; Irving Potash of New York, a vice president of the CIO International Fur and Leather Workers Union and one of the indicted leaders, and Elizabeth Gurley Flynn of New York, a member of the party national committee.

Convention secretaries include Sidney Stein of Newark, N. J., chairman of the party in New Jersey.

Donald Hiss Denies Charge Of Chambers

Donald Hiss last night issued the following statement:

"I have read the full transcript of the testimony of Mr. D. Whittaker Chambers given today before the House Committee on Un-American Activities. Among other things Mr. Chambers said that he knew me as a member of the Communist Party, as one of an elite Communist group which regularly met in a certain apartment in Washington, and as the leader of a local Communist cell. With the exception of the facts which he also stated, that I have an older brother named Alger Hiss, that I have been employed in the Departments of Labor and State and that, as an employee of a local law firm (other than the one he named), I assisted in rendering legal service to the Polish Supply Mission in connection with a loan granted in 1946 by the Export-Import Bank, I flatly deny every statement made by Mr. Chambers with respect to me.

"I am not and never have been a member of the Communist Party or of any formal or informal organizations affiliated with or fronting in any manner whatsoever for the Communist Party. In fact the only organizations and clubs to which I have belonged are the local YMCA, The Miles River Yacht Club of Maryland, the old Washington Racquet Club, the Harvard Law School Association, the American Society of International Law, and college fraternities and athletic clubs.

"I have no recollection of ever having met any person by the name of D. Whittaker Chambers, nor do I recognize his photograph which I have seen in the public press. I am not and never have been in sympathy with the principles of the Communist Party. Any interested person could easily have discovered these facts by inquiry of any of the distinguished, respected and unquestionably loyal Americans with whom I have been intimately associated."

Former NYA Head Sees 'Smear' Plan

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 3 (AP).—Former NYA Administrator Aubrey Williams charged the House Un-American Activities Committee today with trying to "smear every liberal in the country."

Williams' remark came in reply to testimony before the committee by Whittaker Chambers, who identified himself as a former Communist.

Asked by Committee Counsel Robert E. Stripling whether he had heard Williams' name mentioned in Communist circles, Chambers said he had heard Communists talk of the former NYA chief "with the highest esteem as a friend of the Communist Party."

In Montgomery, where he publishes the Southern Farmer, Williams retorted "that (House) committee is engaged in smearing everybody."

"The whole thing is a disgraceful performance," he declared. "I don't know Chambers. It is a shameful thing to do to innocent people, who have no opportunity to answer back.

"It looks like they will include every decent man in America before they are through. It is obvious they are out to smear every liberal in the country. This is obvious because they asked Chambers if he knew me."

Wallaceite Campaign In the Red

By $50,000

The national Wallace for President Committee was in the red financially on May 31, records in the office of the House clerk showed yesterday.

The Wallaceites' financial report was filed with the clerk by C. B. Baldwin, manager of Henry A. Wallace's campaign.

Up to May 31, Baldwin reported, the committee's expenditures totaled $341,958, and its receipts from contributions $292,498.

Contributors of $1000 or more during that period were listed as Henry A. Wallace, South Salem, N. Y.; M. F. Reddington, Rye, N. Y.; David Beloff, Abraham L. Pomerantz, Theodore Shapiro, Dr. Harry Ragozin, Charles Goldman, Kalman Marki and Paul Tishman, all of New York, $1000 each.

Mrs. Luke Wilson, Bethesda, Md., $2000; W. McCann, Bridgewater, Conn., $2500; Corliss and Margaret Lamont, New York, $3000; Mary K. Michales, New York, $1044.

GOP to Push Inflation Bill

per cent, and on demand deposits by 10 per cent.

The Republican leaders have marked for the discard most of the Truman anti-inflation program which calls, among other things, for powers to control some prices and wages, and to resume rationing if it is deemed necessary.

Truman Asks Profits Tax

Despite indications that it has no chance of success the President pressed yesterday for passage of another item in his anti-inflation program—an excess profits tax designed to trim the peacetime profits of large corporations.

He proposed a $4,300,000,000 tax much like the wartime levy. Sponsors of the bill said it would discourage price increases. Representative Knutson (R., Minn.), chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, predicted the bill's defeat.

Representative Wolcott said his amendment to increase the reserves that banks are required to set aside to assure payment of their depositors would apply only to members of the Federal Reserve System.

The President, too, asked that the increases apply only to member banks but Federal Reserve officials have said the increase should apply to non-member banks as well.

The President's program made no mention of gold reserves, which back up paper currency. Some officials have said an increase in these would be largely psychological, because the reserves already exceed requirements.

Fast Action Planned

Wolcott told newsmen that his banking committee should agree on a bill today and place it before the House Thursday. He predicted the House would pass it, and send it to the Senate the same day. Taft said it would be referred immediately to the Senate Banking Committee.

Chairman Tobey (R., N. H.), of the Senate banking group, indicated to reporters after he left the meeting that he would propose some amendments to the Wolcott bill. Tobey wants to include both member and non-member banks in the reserve requirements, and has indicated he would like to go along with the Administration proposals for the amounts of reserve increases.

He also hinted broadly that he thinks the gold provision is unnecessary.

The peppery New Hampshire Senator, who frequently disagrees with the Republican leadership, told reporters that "the mountain has labored and brought forth a mouse."

"The public should not get the idea," he said "that this credit stuff is going to be translated into lower prices for them."

He later acknowledged that over a long period it might have some effect.

Details of the White House tax plan came out almost simultaneously with a sharp attack by Marriner S. Eccles, former chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, on Mr. Truman's overall anti-inflation program. Eccles offered a seven-point plan of his own emphasizing a balanced budget.

Eccles, still a member of the board despite his demotion, told a House Banking Committee that both Democrats and Republicans should quit playing politics and consider openly and honestly "the economic facts of life."

The President's anti-inflation measure, the multi-billion dollar excess profits tax, is not as tough as the wartime measure.

For one thing, it would hit only about 25,000 of this Nation's 360,000 corporations now filing tax returns.

Smaller corporations are exempt, and those formed since 1940 are specially favored.

How Tax Would Work

The tax would work like this: Before a corporation would be taxed, it could add 40 per cent to its average profits for the 1935-39 period, plus $50,000. The tax on profits exceeding 140 per cent of the base period would begin at 50 per cent, and run up to a maximum of 80 per cent on earnings in excess of 175 per cent of the 1935-39 period.

Corporations formed since 1940 would receive another $50,000 exemption.

Dingell said the bill would remove $4,300,000,000 from buying power of large corporations; help restore a surplus of Government receipts over expenditures; discourage price raises, and encourage wage stabilization.

Eccles was not optimistic. The former Reserve Board head, removed by Mr. Truman, warned that a "catastrophic" deflation might result if the question of inflation controls is not divorced from politics.

Budget Surplus Need

"There isn't much use talking about controlling inflation," he said, "unless fiscal policy calls for a budget surplus."

Eccles cited the government's multi-billion dollar program for veterans, huge interest on the public debt, big defense expenditures, and foreign aid.

Anti-Inflation Plan

With all this spending going on, he said, it will be impossible to have a sizable budgetary surplus "unless sufficient revenue through taxation is made available to meet the appropriations by Congress."

He offered this program:

1. A balanced budget and a budget surplus.
2. Restore consumer credit controls, including those on installment buying.
3. Restrict bank credit.
4. Encourage the States to cut down spending and let the Federal Government "set an example."
5. Don't let "political reasons" lead the Government into backing a housing program in excess of materials and labor available.
6. Bring down food prices "by encouraging more and not less production."
7. "Adjourn political considerations . . . and both parties . . . consider honestly and openly the economic facts of life."

Reserves Ineffectual

Two Federal Reserve Bank presidents yesterday told the Senate Banking Committee that increasing bank deposit reserves would not be a big factor in combating inflation. Several Senators agreed.

Allen Sproul, president of the New York Bank, said the increase recommended by the Administration would "add very little" to the powers the Federal Reserve System now has.

Alfred H. Williams, president of the Philadelphia Bank, urged that the reserve be increased, but said it "should be explained to the public for what it is, and not as a panacea."

Both Sproul and Williams said if Congress passes such a law as the President asked, it should apply to nonmember as well as member banks of the Federal Reserve System.

Disastrous Undertaking

Senator Flanders (R., Vt.) said he intends to tell the Senate that any attempt to conquer inflation by credit measures alone "would be a disastrous undertaking."

Senator Fulbright (D., Ark.) said the reserve provision of the Administration bill "seems exceedingly puny to me, if this is all we are going to do."

"It is beginning to appear," he said, "that this is the only bill the present Congress is going to pass, and, if so, I doubt if it is worthwhile."

H. G. Leedy, president of the Kansas City Bank, and C. S. Young, president of the Chicago Bank, urged that any bill apply to nonmember banks, the latter saying that the Federal Reserve System would lose members if this were not required previously reported comprehensive policy measure to strengthen the United Nations. The loan bill was then dispatched to the House. The House may pass the bill today. The Senate approved it last session.

GOP to Act on Only Four of Truman's Points

2. House and Senate Banking Committee leaders unveiled the GOP's limited inflation control and housing measures following a late afternoon conference. The tentative plan is to tie tightened bank credit and gold reserve authority and some short-range housing action to the consumer credit control bill that passed the Senate last session.

3. The House Rules Committee approved session-end procedure, permitting suspension of House rules during the remaining days of the Congress for quick passage of the few green-lighted measures by a two-thirds vote. This procedure, omen always of a swift adjournment, failed to clinch definitely a getaway this week. The group debated putting a "this week" line in the special rule, but struck it out on the chance that the session may continue until next Tuesday or Wednesday.

Can't Break Filibuster

Following yesterday's Republican Policy Committee conference on antipoll tax strategy Senator Taft told reporters:

"It is absolutely impossible, in my opinion, to break the filibuster. The only solution is to change the Senate rules so that we can limit debate, but I don't think we can do that before the regular session in January."

Taft said there was "considerable difference of opinion" in the policy-making group over a compromise move for a constitutional amendment and "we will make no recommendations" to today's Republican conference.

Acting Senate GOP Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.), nonetheless, told reporters he would vote for the constitutional amendment if it is submitted to the floor.

Senator Lister Hill (D., Ala.), meanwhile, carried the ball for the filibustering South, taking the Senate floor at 12:39 and speaking to a nearly empty chamber through most of the afternoon.

Sets Filibuster Record

He spoke for 6 hours and 13 minutes, a record for the present four-day filibuster. Senator A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.) previously held the record with Monday's three-hour and 39-minute speech.

Hill argued that passage of an antipoll tax bill would "break the Constitution" and clear the way for more "illegitimate interference" by Congress in State affairs. Hill said he opposed use of the poll tax as a prerequisite for voting but said the States should resolve the issue themselves.

Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.) asked Hill if he would support a constitutional amendment ending poll taxes.

Hill said he couldn't say he would join in submission of such an amendment but that method "is the only way by which this matter can be constitutionally and lawfully handled."

Acting Leader Wherry told reporters he hoped the antipoll tax issue can be "cleared up" today so the Senate will be free to pass on any anti-inflation and housing legislation reported by the Banking Committees.

Statement on U.N.

In approving a separate bill authorizing the 65-million-dollar loan to U. N., the House Banking Committee voiced regret that broader provisions for enlarging and strengthening American representation and assistance to the United Nations could not be passed along with it.

The committee statement said it agreed to report the loan separately after House leaders assured them the broader policy features will be called up in the House early next session.

Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr. (Mass.) and House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck (Ind.) issued a joint statement saying only the U. N. loan could be handled at this time under the GOP high command agreement to consider "only matters of an emergency nature which can be promptly disposed of." They said they promised the Foreign Affairs Committee comprehensive U. N. strengthening proposals will be considered at the opening of the Eighty-first Congress.

The 65 million dollars would be advanced to U. N. with the understanding that it will be paid back in annual installments between July 1, 1951, and July 1, 1982. The loan would not bear interest.

Special Session Scoreboard

Following is the congressional score sheet on the President's 11-point program after the ninth day of the special session:

1. Control inflation. House and Senate leaders agree on limited program sidetracking most of Truman proposals.
2. Low-cost housing. No House committee action on Senate-passed bill. Petition drive jeopardized by proposed quick adjournment. Leaders propose limited program.
3. Federal aid to education. No House committee action on Senate-passed bill.
4. Increase social security benefits. No action.
5. Amend Displaced Persons Act. Senate bills introduced last week. No action.
6. Loan to build United Nations headquarters. House committee approves loan previously passed by Senate.
7. Ratify international wheat agreement. Hearings continue Thursday.
8. Funds for TVA steam plant. Bills introduced last week. No action.
9. Raise Federal pay. No action.
10. Civil rights program. Senate motion of last week to call up House-passed antipoll tax bill still under filibuster. Compromise on constitutional amendment considered.
11. Increase minimum wage level. No action.

Eisler, 4 Others To Get Hearing On Bail 'Abuse'

New York, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals today directed new hearings for five Communists to determine whether Attorney General Tom C. Clark "abused his discretion" in denying them bail while they awaited deportation proceedings.

But the ruling was only a technical victory for Gerhart Eisler, alleged No. 1 Communist in this country, and his four colleagues. They hav been free on bail pending their appeal to the circuit court.

The court's ruling set a precedent. Heretofore the court have ruled that the Attorney General's discretion in granting bail to aliens awaiting the outcome of deportation hearings could not be challenged.

Federal District Court judges had granted the five bail pending their appeal, but had refused to admit the grounds that the Attorney General had abused his discretion.

Incumbents Lead In Kansas Primary

Topeka, Kans., Aug 3 (AP).—Most Republican incumbents jumped to an early lead in State-wide races in Kansas' primary election today.

Gov. Frank Carlson, seeking a second term, led two opponents—James A. McClain, Sabetha, running on a "wet" platform, and W. P. Lambertson, former Congressman and an avowed "dry"—in their Republican contest for the gubernatorial nomination.

The issue of prohibition in the now dry State will be decided by the voters in the November general election.

The unofficial returns from 243 of the State's 2772 precincts gave: Carlson 15,195, McClain 1841, Lambertson 1881.

Andrew F. Schoeppel, former Governor bidding for Republican nomination to the United States Senate seat to be vacated by the veteran Arthur Capper, got away to a fast start over Harold H. Malone, Wichita lawyer. The unofficial count in 234 precincts was: Schoeppel 13,902, Malone 3611.

On the Democratic side, the incomplete returns from 192 precincts gave George McGill, Wichita, former Senator, a lead of 2893 to 1322 over E. K. Dean, St. Mary's farm leader, in their race for the United States senatorial nomination.

There was little to choose in the early returns between Randolph Carpenter, Marion, who resigned as United States District Attorney to make the race, and Ewell Stewart, Topeka, in their contest for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. The vote in 197 precincts was: Carpenter 2398, Stewart 1605.

After Labor Day

Dewey Drive Seen Opening In Midwest

Pawling, N. Y., Aug. 3 (AP).—Campaign plans possibly calling for an opening swing through the Midwest and perhaps to the Pacific Coast shortly after Labor Day were mapped today by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Herbert Brownell, jr.

Dewey and Brownell, the Republican presidential nominee's campaign manager, held a three-hour strategy session.

James C. Hagerty, Dewey's press secretary, told reporters "nothing will be announced at this time."

Early Start Desired

It is no secret, however, that Dewey wants to get started early next month on a vigorous drive. Word from Dewey aides is that the opening tour probably will be what they call "a big swing" into the Middle West.

The curtain-raiser trip also may take him to the Far West although Dewey's running mate, Gov. Earl Warren of California, is expected to bear the brunt of the campaign in that area.

After the first big junket, Dewey's plans are reported to call for a return to his Governor's desk in Albany, with later shorter trips around the country from there. One of those is expected to carry him into some of the Southern States where he hopes to capitalize on the split of Dixie Democrats away from President Truman.

Neither Dewey nor Brownell talked to newsmen.

Called Rubbish

Meanwhile, Hagerty denied for the fourth time that Dewey made slurring remarks about the activities of the teachers' lobby.

"It's still rubbish," Hagerty said in reply to a statement by Gov. Ernest Gruening of Alaska.

"Rubbish" was the term Hagerty applied to a similar statement over the weekend by Gov. Herbert B. Maw of Utah. Gruening and Maw are Democrats and their statements were issued by the Democratic National Committee.

Both Gruening and Maw said Dewey told the Governor's Conference in Portsmouth, N. H., in June that something had to be done to halt the higher-pay campaign of the teachers' lobby.

Thompson Takes Slender Lead In Missouri Governor Voting

St. Louis, Aug. 3 (AP).—Murray E. Thompson took a narrow lead in the tight race for the Republican nomination for Governor of Missouri tonight.

Early returns from 173 of 4611 precincts gave Thompson 7341 and his principal rival, Manvel H. (Cap) Davis of Kansas City 5669. Thompson is speaker of the State House of Representatives, and Davis, making his fourth Statewide bid, is a lawyer.

Third man in the race, William McKinley Thomas, St. Louis shoe factory worker, trailed with 1242.

Few Big City Votes

The early tabulation included only a smattering of votes from heavily populated St. Louis and Kansas City. St. Louis was a campaign battleground for Davis and Thompson.

In the Democratic Governorship primary, State Auditor Forrest Smith piled up a better-than-2-to-1 lead in the first returns.

The vote in 219 of 4611 precincts gave Smith 10,239, Dan M. Nee of Springfield, former internal revenue collector, 3921, former Attorney General Roy McKittrick 2337, former State Senator Raymond E. Cox of Centralia 1145, and William D. Cochran of Columbia 371.

Nee ran with the backing of the Pendergast organization in Kansas City, and Smith had the backing of Pendergast's enemies.

In the hard-fought Seventh Congressional District battle, veteran Representative Dewey Short of Galena took better than a 2-to-1 lead in early returns.

In 13 of 389 precincts, Short had 1315, young Quentin Haden of Ava 687 and Glen E. Hooper of Sparta 66.

Republican nomination is equivalent to election in the one-sided Seventh of southwestern Missouri. Short, seeking a ninth term, is slated to be chairman of the House Armed Services Committee if he is reelected and the House continues Republican.

In the Second District, Morgan M. Moulder of Camdenton held early honors. Voters in 20 of 400 precincts gave him 718, Daniel C. Rogers of Fayette 535 and Fred E. Klein of Fayette 256.

On the Republican side, incumbent Max Schwabe of Columbia appeared to be far out in front of former State Senator Henry B. Hart of Versailles. Returns in 17 precincts gave Schwabe 1264, Hart 431.

"As President of the United States, I regard the continued control of all aspects of the atomic energy program, including research, development and the custody of atomic weapons, as the proper functions of the civilian authorities . . .

"There must, of course, be very close cooperation between the civilian commission and the military establishment."

The latter statement was regarded in some quarters as a directive for potential military employers of the weapons and their civilian custodians to get together and work out improved procedures for inspection and access to the A-bombs by the military.

Surrounded by Secrecy

The whole matter is surrounded by necessary secrecy, so it is difficult to determine whether there was anything in the prior complaints of some military men that such procedures were inadequate.

Nonmilitary agency officials insisted that fears expressed by members of the armed forces that the AEC would not have the bombs ready in an emergency were groundless. Detailed plans have been worked out to assure that they will be ready for the Air Force's Strategic Air Command to load aboard its B-29s whenever the President orders such a move, it is said.

Under the law (the Atomic Energy Act of 1946) the President can convey A-bombs or the entire stockpile to the defense forces at any time. He must personally order their employment in time of war.

Many top military chiefs, who favor a transfer of custody of the weapons now, agree that present procedures and cooperation between the AEC and armed forces as to availability of the atomic bombs is reasonably satisfactory now. They declare that relations between the two never have been better and that close coordination exists, particularly at the upper levels.

However, these military men object in principle to divided control of our foremost weapon. They point out that our basic strategy is that we will start no war, but in case of attack will launch an instant and terrible counterattack.

Fear of such retaliation—by airborne atomic attack—will prevent any aggressor from attacking us and is our best defense, it is felt. But our devasting counterpunch might be blocked by an initial blow so paralyzing that confusion in governmental circles would prevent it from being launched. And in case of "an atomic Pearl Harbor," it might not be possible to go through the planned steps to transfer for the bombs from the AEC to the military forces.

This, in essence, is the military case. It was and is discussed with AEC officials on an amicable basis of what is best for the Nation. There has been no controversy, in the usual sense.

Therefore, President Truman's decision to keep custody of the A-bomb under the AEC will not end the matter. The question, undoubtedly, will be revived next January if there is a new Administration.

Meanwhile, military and civilian officials alike are gratified at the report of officers primarily concerned with ready availability of the bombs that there has been a recent improvement in this situation.

Whether or not it is the result of a secret directive from the White House or simply the result of better spadework at the AEC-military working levels is not known.

Nor is any indication given of what has been done to improve the custody situation in military eyes. The whole question is secret.

And when and if a President decides to transfer custody of the bombs to the military, it well may not be publicly disclosed. AEC Chairman David Lilienthal made this plain several days ago when questioned about the matter.

He declined to state whether or not any bombs at all were in military hands. That was a question for White House, not AEC, comment, he stated. A lot of people in the world would like to know, for sure, officials note, whether or not any of the weapons are in England, for example, ready for loading in one of the B-29s now based there for training.

Fire on Coast Razes Half-Mile Lumber Dock

Longview, Wash., Aug. 3 (AP).—The half-mile-long cargo dock of the Weyerhaeuser Timber Co. was being razed by fire tonight.

Great pillars of dark smoke, fed by creosated railroad ties piled on the dock and the oiled decks and pilings, billowed over the Columbia riverfront area. An unknown quantity of lumber was stored on the structure, waiting shipment.

There were no ships berthed at the dock.

Gen. Gerow Terms Progress of D. C. National Guard Units in Camp Excellent

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Camp Pendleton, Va., Aug. 3.—Lieut. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, Second Army commander, inspected District National Guard units in training here today and pronounced their progress "excellent."

Gerow flew to Camp Pendleton this morning, spent two hours watching the troops at work, talking with officers and men and looking over their equipment. Then he flew back to Fort George G. Meade, Md., his headquarters.

The three firing batteries of the District's 260th Antiaircraft Artillery Group were training gun crews in tracking targets and firing at Fort Story and the Navy's Dam Neck positions. Gerow found that very few of the officers and men had ever served in artillery units but commended them for their aptitude and enthusiasm.

"They are doing very well, indeed," he said. "Everybody is interested and I heard no complaints."

Col. Leroy S. Mann, group commander, said that of the 734 men at Pendleton, only about 30 per cent had previous military service and less than half of those had served with artillery. Of the 66 officers, he said, less than half had World War II experience.

Mann reported to General Gerow that the health of the District troops was exceptionally good despite hot weather and four days of intermittent rain.

Thirteen men, he said, had been sick in quarters since arrival July 25 and only three had been in hospital, all with ailments existing when they left Washington for camp.

There is some crowding in barracks and in messhalls, Gerow found, due partly to the deterioration of buildings

1918—1948...Will We Again Repeat Our Blunders?

Memo To American Taxpayers

". . . no other conquered nation has been treated with greater consideration." (Lt. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, October 1, 1947.)

You and your fellow-taxpayers have poured billions of dollars into Germany—and the end is not in sight:

Three billion dollars since V-E Day. More billions to come from Marshall Plan aid! This is the blank check drawn up by the "Germany Firsters," bearing your signature.

And the "explanation?" We are told that you and your fellow taxpayers are duty-bound to make Germany "a going concern"—to preserve her markets and economic stranglehold over her neighbors; that your billions will do all this, and in the long run you will be rewarded!

This is where your money goes!

Did our boys fight and die from Normandy to Berlin to build up Germany's export trade? Have we forgotten their heroic sacrifices?

Have we forgotten the millions who were ground under the German boot?

Who is responsible for this betrayal, which preserves German cartels and junks denazification;

restores to power Germany's industrial war lords and Hitler's supporters;

makes a farce out of the war crimes trials of the Flicks, the Krupps, I. G. Farben; sabotages the delivery of reparations, capital goods and raw materials to Germany's victims, and maintains Germany's war potential?

What are the "fruits" of this new policy of greater consideration for the Germans?

"U. S. officials have frankly conceded that they are no longer able to exercise enough control in Bizonia to force the Germans to execute the economic policies to which the U. S. commits them." (N. Y. Times, May 25, 1948.)

And the Results:

(1) 6,319,000 head of cattle disappeared into the German black market during 1947.

(2) 7 million pairs of shoes are hoarded in Hamburg.

(3) 90% of all finished goods is hoarded by German producers, etc.

(4) Thousands of bales of American cotton disappear before they ever reach German factories for processing.

(5) The Germans hoard and refuse to make available for export ten million tons of scrap iron so badly needed in the United States and Western Europe.

(6) 50,000 tons of Ruhr coal disappear into the German black market every day.

No wonder Mr. Robert H. Estill, Chairman of the U. S.-U. K. Control Group, has publicly charged the Germans with sabotaging Ruhr coal production!

No wonder he has had to admit that the Germans have "tricked" Allied officials into believing German statistics on coal production!

Operation—Rat Hole:

You are being bombarded with starvation tales about the Germans—that they have to subsist on 1550 calories daily.

This is a fraud. The United States Government recently revealed that the average German consumption exceeds 2300 calories—but we know it is much more.

Germany will be self-supporting in a few years—say the "Germany Firsters."

We say: Taxpayers, this is another fraud!

Building up Germany has been imposed on you as an obligation, while we allow the Germans to sabotage their coal and food production. They lay down on the job, and will continue to squeeze dollars out of your pockets.

Why? Because many of those who are actually making American policy in Germany are former Nazis and staunch Hitler supporters!

Shocking? Incredible? Outrageous?

Do you know that:

(a) During the year 1947, more than 9 thousand million pounds of foodstuffs were delivered to the Germans. You and your fellow taxpayers pay for every pound of such food—the Germans pay nothing.

(b) The Germans retain about 80% of all Ruhr coal. Her victim nations are forced to pay $23.00 per ton for U. S. coal—with your money.

This is the kind of economic insanity that you and your fellow-taxpayers are obliged to subsidize.

It is time to call a halt to this spoon-feeding policy which will be a perpetual Operation—Rat Hole!

We demand that our policy on Germany be carried out by persons faithful to the principles for which we fought.

Those "Germany Firsters" who always plead the Germans' case; those special interests which helped build the German war machine after World War I and, immediately after Pearl Harbor, prepared plans for rebuilding Germany's power if she were defeated—should be ousted from their positions in high places of government.

WE DEMAND that our government take concrete measures to break up I. G. Farben and the other huge German trusts and cartels.

WE DEMAND that the government prosecute and punish Hitler's "circle of friends"—the Hugenbergs, the Dinkelbachs, the Kosts, etc.

WE DEMAND immediate investigation of the handling of the war crimes trials of the notorious Flicks, Krupps, I. G. Farben.

WE DEMAND the fulfillment of the lofty principles of the Marshall Plan, by carrying out our original policy towards Germany, including the reparations program which would help Western Europe to recover and save many of your hard earned dollars.

WE DEMAND the implementation of the Allied agreement to seize the German assets abroad.

WE DEMAND the elimination of Germany's war potential.

WE DEMAND a genuine western international ownership and control of the Ruhr's coal, steel and chemical industries—instead of the present Anglo-American control.

The E. R. P. must not fail! It must not become a facade behind which the German powerhouse is revived.

It must not be used as an instrument to bludgeon Germany's victims into submitting again to German economic domination.

The rebuilding of German industrial war potential is the first step towards World War III. It must be prevented!

Univis Plant Opens Under Troop Guard

Dayton, Ohio, Aug. 3 (AP).—Peace—enforced by National Guard guns, bayonets and tanks—came to the strike-troubled Univis lens plant today.

But not to the CIO United Electrical Workers, whose 91-day strike for bargaining rights resulted in picket-line battles and a municipal state of emergency.

The company resumed production today when approximately 350 of its normal 658 employes returned to the plant between lines of steel-helmeted troops who resorted once to use of tear gas.

Kaplan Goes to Jail

While nearly 1400 Guardsmen maintained a cordon about the plant area, to keep out strikers, sympathizers and the curious, union members ran into trouble elsewhere.

Lou Kaplan, UE field agent and leader of the strike, was clapped in jail for 10 days for contempt of court.

Kaplan and four other strike lieutenants, including former State Senator Kermit N. Kirkendall, were fined $100 for contempt. All were jailed pending posting of $2500 bond each to guarantee they would remain out of the strike zone.

Two other union leaders were picked up on charges of engaging in picket line skirmishes last week, and two men employed by a bakery were seized for interfering with the Guardsmen.

Judge Assails Action

Common Pleas Judge Paul T. Klapp, sentencing the five contempt defendants, told them "You have done an unjustifiable and miserable thing to this community and have only hurt your own cause."

Criticizing last week's five days of disorder, when pickets massed by the scores in disobedience of a court order limiting them to six, Judge Klapp added:

"It is probable that in the history of Dayton there have never been such unnecessary scenes as recently."

He imposed the $100 fines because the five ignored his order to remain away from the plant. Kaplan got his 10 days because he overslept and kept the court waiting an hour and a half.

Demonstration Called Off

The union, which planned a big demonstration at the plant gates this morning, changed its mind after the Montgomery County CIO Council withdrew support of the strike and National Guardsmen with full field equipment rolled into the city.

When Sheriff Ben Smith read the riot act at 7:30 a. m. today, just as the return to work began, only six pickets—the court-specified quota—and a handful of spectators were there to hear it.

Later some 300 persons slipped through the guard's lines and assembled opposite the plant, only to be driven away when the troops moved on them with a Sherman tank, armored car and fixed bayonets.

Still later a 10-man squad in an Army truck tossed five gas grenades and sent scurrying about 75 persons gathered in front of a tavern about a block away.

Governor Flies Over Scene

Gov. Thomas J. Herbert, who ordered the guard to move in when his peace negotiations collapsed, flew over the scene this afternoon with Adjt. Gen. C. W. Goble, commander of the National Guard, and Asst. Adjt. Gen. Kenneth Cooper.

"My only responsibility now," said the Governor, "is to see that orders of the courts are sustained and that peace is preserved."

The strikers arranged a demonstration tonight—away from the plant—to protest the use of troops and "take whatever steps are deemed advisable," said Arthur L. Garfield, international representative of the UE.

The State liquor control department closed all State liquor stores in Montgomery County and urged taverns to quit selling beer, wine and whisky during the strike.

Two Unionists Defy Probers On 'Red' Query

A House Labor Subcommittee got two steadfast refusals to answer and one "no" yesterday from three witnesses who were asked whether they are Communists.

The refusals were from Mrs. Marcella Loring Michelson, an official, and Mrs. Roberta Felsen, an employe, of the CIO Department Store Workers Local Union at Macy stores in New York.

The "no" was delivered crisply by Sam Kocenetsky, a founder and president of the local, but he said the committee was interfering with his rights by asking.

The three testified as a subcommittee headed by Representative Kersten (R., Wis.) resumed hearings on its investigation of Communist infiltration into New York unions. Kersten said the hearings may run into next week.

Kersten told a reporter the subcommittee will decide after the hearings are finished whether to recommend that Mrs. Michelson and Mrs. Felsen be cited for contempt of Congress for refusing to answer questions. The subcommittee already was voted to ask citations for several witnesses who have similarly refused, he said.

The subcommittee's action is subject to the approval of the full committee.

Kovenetsky, the day's first witness, answered Kersten without hesitation.

"My feeling is that the question is something that is definitely treading on the Constitution," he said. "Though I am not a Communist, I think this committe has taken an awful lot of liberty in prying into my political beliefs."

Mrs. Michelson, first vice president of the local, met Kersten with this:

"I will not join with you in subverting the Constitution of the United States. I stand on my constitutional rights, and will not answer your question."

Mrs. Felsen, an attractive blonde who works in the Union's Jamaica, N. Y., office, refused to answer the question on the same grounds as Mrs. Michelson.

She also refused to tell Kersten whether she once worked for the Tass news agency, and what jobs she held between leaving Macy's in 1942 and going to work for the union last year.

Kovenetsky and Mrs. Michelson said their union has voted several times not to require the non-Communist affidavit of its officers, and will vote again soon on the question.

Michigan's Labor Law Held Invalid

Detroit, Aug. 3 (AP).—Michigan's controversial Bonine-Tripp labor law was ruled unconstitutional by a circuit judge today.

The test case was brought to court last May by the CIO United Auto Workers. The union obtained an injunction to prevent the arrest of some of its member on strike at that time at Chrysler Corp.

Judge Theodore J. Richter handed down the decision specifically in the Chrysler case. He held that the company is engaged in inter-State commerce and therefore its employes are covered by the Federal Taft-Hartley act.

For that reason, the court ruled, Chrysler workers could not be forced to submit to a State-conducted strike vote, as required by the Bonnie-Tripp law. The UAW admittedly ignored this provision.

Indications were that the case would be appealed to the State supreme court.

Under the decision, Judge Richter said, the State still might legally require its own strike vote before employes of a strictly intrastate company leave their jobs.

But he added:

"The question is whether the right to strike for any group of employes may be made subject to the approval of a majority of employes in a bargaining unit.

"It is not inherently reasonable the right should exist with majority approval and be denied without it."

State's Farmers Are Found Cool To DP Labor Idea

The University of Maryland Farm Extension Service yesterday said initial returns from a survey it was making indicated the State's farmers did not need 1500 workers said to be headed in this direction from a displaced persons camp in Europe.

An announcement from Frankfurt, Germany, said that 1500 Ukrainian agriculture workers had been lined up for transfer to Maryland.

Dr. T. B. Symons, dean of the university College of Agriculture and director of the extension service, directed an inquiry among county agents at the behest of the State Employment Service.

Twelve of the State's 23 counties have responded. Some of them said they could use up to a hundred workers. Some said they needed none.

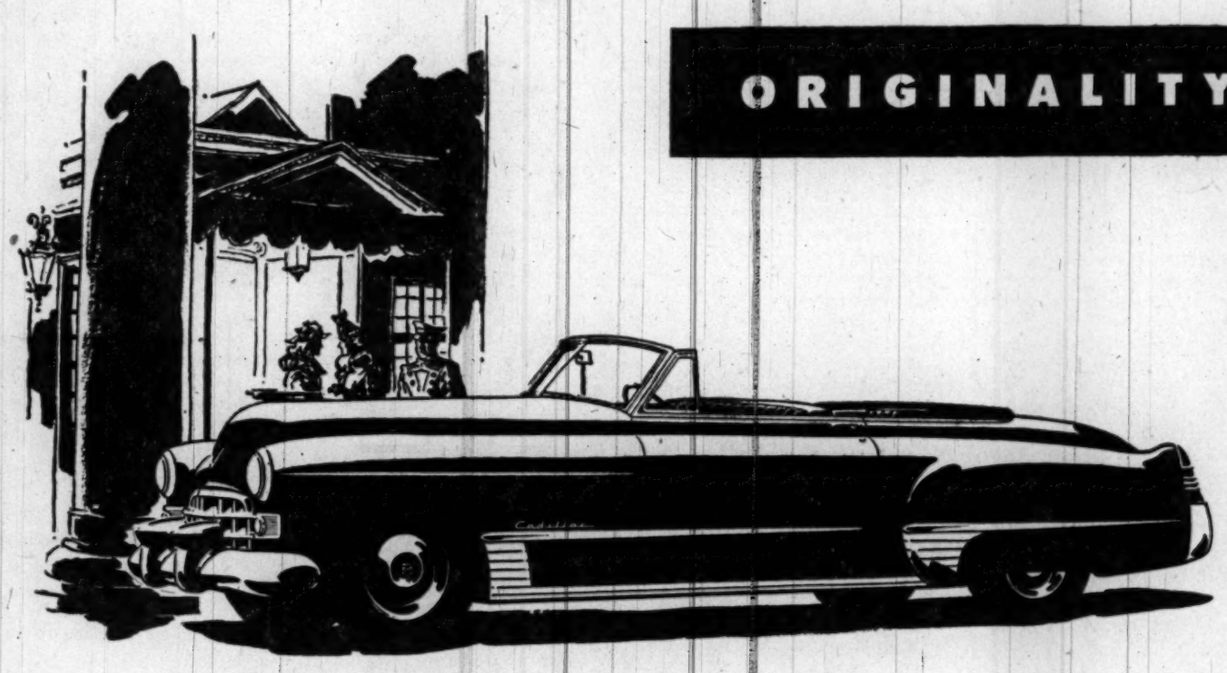
Cadillac
ORIGINALITY



Originality is a basic Cadillac word. For Cadillac is always the pioneer—striving constantly to endow its cars with a greater measure of all that is good and desirable in an automobile.

But the new Cadillac cars now gracing the streets and highways have reached a degree of originality that is unusual even for Cadillac. You notice this first in their smart and distinctive appearance. And you notice it again when you take the wheel—for here is performance so incomparable that there is literally nothing with which to compare it.

The public reaction is what you would logically expect. Orders for new Cadillac cars are breaking all records in Cadillac's long and impressive history of public acceptance.

3 Die in Air Crash Near Martinsburg

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 3 (AP).—Two businessmen prominent in Baltimore and the nearby West Virginia-Maryland - Virginia area were killed with their pilot today when a light plane crashed near here.

The dead:

Frank C. Thomas, 57, vice president and general manager of the Standard Lime & Stone Co., with headquarters in Martinsburg.

George Baker Treide, 34, Baltimore attorney and a director of the company.

E. C. Parkinson, 37, president of the Martinsburg Flying Service and manager of the municipal airport here.

They had taken off in Parkinson's single-engine Beechcraft Bonanza charter plane at 8:57 a. m. (EST) for an inspection tour of Standard operations at Kimballton, Va., and Knoxville, Tenn.

The plane apparently crashed at 9:05 on a wooded hillside near the home of Lewis Staubs between Gerrardstown and Arden, not far from the Virginia-West Virginia line between here and Winchester, Va.

The spot is about four air miles from the airport.

Staubs said the motor was roaring full blast when the plane dived into the hillside. There was no explosion and the wreckage did not burn.

Thomas, a native of Buckeystown, Md., had headquarters in Martinsburg for the past 30 years. He was a member of the school board at one time, and was active in civic affairs.

Treide is the son of Henry C. Treide, prominent Baltimore financier who was regional director here for the War Manpower Commission. Young Treide was a graduate of Princeton University and the Harvard Law School and served aboard destroyers in the Pacific during the war as a naval lieutenant.

He was married only last March to Miss Juliana Clark, member of another socially prominent Baltimore family.

'Missing' Plane, 3 Aboard, Lands at Annapolis

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 3 (AP).—A small plane with a man, woman and child aboard landed safely at Dixie Airport near Annapolis this afternoon after an unreported overnight stop that started a widespread search.

Mrs. Charles B. Haas, wife of one of the co-owners of the airport, said the ship piloted by James Curlott had found it necessary to land on Maryland's Eastern Shore last night because fuel ran low. The plane was en route from Atlantic City, N. J.

Besides Curlott, those in the two-seater plane were Mrs. Lavinia Haas, 25, wife of Edward Haas, the other airport owner, and her 10-month-old son, Edward, jr.

Commerce Action

Toilets Hit By Exports Controls

The Commerce Department yesterday announced its first crackdown under its tightened export control program—the detention of 600 crates of vitreous china watercloset destined for shipment abroad.

The Department's Office of International Trade, which controls exports, said the United Sttaes District Court in New York had signed a warrant ordering cotinued detention of the watercloset. They had previously been seized by Customs officials while on dock awaiting shipment.

Export declarations listing the goods as cast iron watercloset had been filed, signed by R. W. Wilson Co., Inc., New York, for the account of Leon S. Kahn Son, New York, OIT said.

The OIT explained the case this way:

Cast iron watercloset, in little demand here, are not under export controls. Vitreous china watercloset, in "extremely tight supply," are.

OIT noticed that more cast iron watercloset were being shipped than were being made. They suspected that the scarce, higher quality vitreous china articles were being substituted illegally for the cast iron products, and ordered Customs officials to inspect all "cast iron" watercloset shipments.

First results were the seizure of the 600 crates involved in today's case, valued at $10,500. OIT said it will investigate, and if facts justify, prefer charges.

County Heads Receive New Zoning Plan

Prince Georges County's proposed new streamlined zoning ordinance and map was presented formally to the County Commissioners yesterday at Upper Marlboro, Md.

The plan was presented by Irwin I. Main, chairman of the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and received by William A. Carson, president of the Board of Commissioners.

Before acting on the proposal, the county commissioners will announce public hearings at which members of the public may express their feelings on the zoning plan.

The zoning ordinance must be adopted by the county commissioners, sitting as a district council, before it can become effective in the regional district of Prince Georges County. It embodies new wrinkles in zoning planning and enforcement and clarifies the ordinance now in effect.

Accompanying Chairman Main were Herbert W. Wells, another Prince Georges member of the planning commission, and Fred W. Tuemmler, director of planning for the Prince Georges regional office of the commission, under whose direction the proposed regulations and maps were prepared.

Under the proposed ordinance the existing five zoning classifications are further divided into fourteen. The new zoning types include an "R-P-C" zoning classification, which permits provisions for shopping facilities, apartments, detached residences, parks, playgrounds, streets and highways, parking compounds, reservation for educational and similar facilities in one planned community grouping.

Residential zones would be divided into: R-A zone, agricultural residential; R-R, rural residential; R-75, one family, detached, restricted residential; R-35, one-family, semi-detached and 2-family detached residential; R-20-A, one-family, triple attached residential; R-20, two-family, semi-detached residential; R-18, multiple family, low-density residential; R-10, multiple family, medium density residential, and the R-P-C planned community residential zone.

The Pan American Union yesterday announced the appointment of Dr. Hernane Tavares de Sa, 37, Brazilian writer, to head its newly created division of public relations.

An educator, Dr. Tavares taught at the University of Sao Paulo in his native country, receiving a leave of absence to study the U. S. system of higher education. In 1943, he conducted a course on Brazil at Mills College, and then became special adviser to the Office of Inter-American Affairs.

He resigned the latter in June, 1944, after sharply critizing United States policy in Latin America.

White Hall Farm Trailer Permit Is Refused

A trailer-camp permit for the White Hall Farm, between Farmington rd. and Piscataway Creek, Piscataway, was refused yesterday by the Prince Georges County commissioners after a hearing at Upper Marlboro, Md.

The decision to refuse the permit overrode the claims of Defense Attorney Nicholas Orem, jr., that the commissioners were required to issue the permit under the new State trailer-camp law. William A. Carson, president of the board, declared in reply that the board is opposed to any further trailer camps in the county.

The main basis for rejecting the application, however, was given as that part of the State law which says the tract must be zoned for trailer-coach use. The area in question is outside the regional district and therefore has no zoning of any sort.

Orem contended that the land may be regarded as zoned for trailers because any use may be made of the land in the absence of zoning laws.

Approximately 50 residents of the Oxon Hill and Piscataway area were present to oppose the petition, while a small group of officials from Bolling Field urged approval so that men from the field might find quarters for their families.

Adrian Fisher, appearing for the county board of education, pointed out that the camp would have had 630 units which would presage a school population of 1260 children. This, she said, would cost the county $126,000 annually to educate the children, and she added that the county does not have funds at this time.

The applicant was corporation, White Hall Manor, Inc., composed of Eugene B. McAbee, president; Benjamin Simmons, vice president, and Harry Horton, secretary-treasurer. The area affected comprises about 70 acres.

The commissioners awarded two street improvement contracts for special improvement districts. Corson & Gruman, Inc., was awarded a contract of $33,243.80 for reinforced concrete street, curbs and gutters and storm drainage for 1200 feet on 59th ave. in Riverdale Heights, Special Improvement District 4.

Suburban Engineering & Construction Co., with a low bid of $23,334.25, was awarded a contract for curb, gutter, storm drainage and bituminous paving on Red Top, Chillum Manor, Burketon and Raydale rds., and Goode ave. in Chillum Manor, Special Improvement District 34.

Montgomery to Sift Red Book Charges

Fight Referendum

Charter Foes Will Appeal Court Ruling

A bitter legal fight to prevent a popular vote this fall on the proposed Montgomery County charter was promised yesterday by charter opponents.

Lawyers who fought unsuccessfully for a Montgomery County Circuit Court ruling prohibiting a charter referendum said they would appeal the court's final decree ordering the charter election.

Both sides yesterday hailed as a victory the decree which found one provision of the proposed charter unconstitutional but ordered the remainder placed on the ballot in November.

Charterites to Oppose Appeal

The unconstitutional provision specified that an annual budget should be adopted in June. The court held Maryland law requires charter government to adopt the budget in May.

Expressing gratification at the ruling, charter committee leaders issued the following statement:

"The committee hails the decree, which holds that the charter as modified in a minor part is workable, constitutional and shall be placed on the ballot in November."

"The group believes no further action is necessary. But if the opposition should appeal the decree, the charter committee, of course, will take appropriate legal action to oppose the appeal."

Schneider "Disappointed"

Attorneys Hubert A. Schneider, who led the suit in his own behalf, and David E. Betts expressed "surprise and great disappointment" over the charter committee's decision.

"Since the circuit court ruled in our favor on all legal questions presented, there would be normally no occasion for us to take an appeal," they said.

They declared, however, that they would appeal on the ground that the court exceeded its authority in ordering the invalid provision deleted and the remainder of the charter submitted to the voters.

Recent charges that Communist propaganda is contained in some Montgomery County textbooks should be aired in a meeting closed to the public, the county commissioners agreed yesterday.

The decision, which followed a half-hour debate on the question, was contingent on acceptance by Franklin T. Miles, a Chevy Chase (Md.) attorney, who originated the charges.

Miles said last night his previously stated position of refusing to attend a closed meeting still stands.

Opinion May Be Sought

In announcing their decision, the commissioners specified that if a closed meeting is not acceptable to Miles, an opinion by the Board of Education would be sought.

A joint meeting of school and county board officials to hear charges has been set for August 9 in Bethesda. School officials have already minimized the charges and stated a preference for a closed session.

About two months ago, Miles charged before the commissioners that Communist propaganda is contained in at least three high school textbooks. He identified them as the Rugg books, the Building America series and Bruner-Smith book.

School officials countered that the Rugg and Bruner-Smith books are no longer used and the Building America series is sponsored by the National Education Association.

Also yesterday, the Commissioners rejected a request by the County Electrical Contractors Association for prompt enactment of a countywide electrical code.

They also announced the dismissal of Mrs. Mary Hagnar, of Bethesda, as deputy clerk to Commissioner Sauter and the appointment of Mrs. Mary Burns, of Alta Vista, to succeed her. No reason was given for the dismissal.

AFL Insurance Union In Prudential Move

New York, Aug. 3 (AP).—The National Federation of Insurance Agents (AFL) today announced it had filed a petition with the National Labor Relations Board asking certification as a bargaining agent for 14,000 agents of the Prudential Insurance Co.

The CIO United Office and Professional Workers Union, claiming the right to represent Prudential personnel, now is recognized as bargaining agent and has a contract with Prudential expiring October 1.

The United Paperworkers of America, a CIO right-wing unit, also has asked the NLRB for certification as bargaining agent after a campaign charging Communist domination of the UCPWA and its failure to file non-Communist affidavits.

4-H Meeting Has Busy Day

Maryland 4-H Club members attending a week's conference at College Park, rolled out of bed at 6:30 a. m. yesterday to begin their first full day of club activities.

The 1000 youthful farm leaders from 4-H clubs in every Maryland county, accustomed to early rising, disregarded a drizzling rain to be on hand in full force when the mess hall opened at 7:15 a. m.

The formal program of the day got under way with assemblies to discuss the traditions of the club week and rules to be observed during the conference. Maryland head coach, James Tatum, discussed the "Value of Athletics" in the boy's assembly. The boys attended classes, judged livestock, drove tractors and inspected the dairy while the girls discussed clothing, cooking and craft appreciation.

The 4-H-ers ended the day with a square dance on the University quadrangle in which the entire 1000 members participated, and attended the General Motors show, "Preview of Progress."

THIS BEING the heart of vacation time, we might do well by taking a bounce down to one of the nearby resorts for those who will be escaping the toil and tears of Washington during the next week or so. Pick any old warm night when you feel like looking out over the Atlantic from the depths of a night club on Virginia Beach. The entertainment bet down there now is an act called Sears and Haymer at the Dunes Club. Paul Sears and Jonny Haymer are a comparatively young act, having been together on the club circuit for a little over two years. The boys did work together in the Army and got along so well there they decided to stick together in civilian life.

Their mainstay is a subtle, fast-moving parody routine that is all the better because it's written by the boys themselves. In their more serious moments they do a few straight numbers with Sears at the piano and both of the boys singing. Even while they're working a very fast routine they always look pretty much like the guys from down the block who are just kicking up at a party.

Opening night there were the usual troubles with props and lights, but Jonny Haymer (that's right, Mr. Printer, no "h") worked around it with what might almost become a new routine.

THE LOTUS this week is featuring a ventriloquist who, if we're not wrong, last appeared here at the Capitol Theater. Rick Lane has a routine that is sometimes a little too fast for the audience, which usually draws a tirade from his friend and companion, the dummy. They're an amusing team and should do well in the Lotus. The Graham sisters are a sort of jack-of-all-trades act in that they sing, play the violin, toe dance, and then switch back to dancing on their toes while they play a duet on the violin. This is a stunt that probably took a lot of practice to work into a bookable state.

The Colony restaurant has a new angle, at least for this city, on how to please with entertainment. This fall it's opening a cocktail lounge, and will, of course, have some entertainment. Since it's a good idea to give a paying public what it likes, the Colony has been taking a poll of preferences, and the consensus is that a semiclassical pianist will be holding down a piano bench there this fall.

We received a note from Mario and Floria (remember them at the Shoreham?), asking us to say hello to all their friends here and telling us that they're opening in Bill Miller's Riviera next week.

Speaking of the Shoreham, the Andrea dancers have been held over for another week. They're the two guys and the girl of the supple back we mentioned last week. The other half of the act is the team of Kay and Kay, with a routine of dancing and balancing.

Leslie Ford was a recent diner at Normandy Farm. She's the creator of "Colonel Primrose," the detective. Could be she's digging up a little background and setting for another whodunnit.

A few Palladian Roomites noticed a bit in the papers about the tea and supper dancing at the Shoreham and started making their reservations. The room is not open for dancing, but is open for luncheon and Sunday buffet suppers, so you can put the golden slippers back in the closet. According to popular belief, Sande Williams and his boys may be back in the room when it opens some time next month.

Draft Boards To Be Chosen Here Today

The men to staff the District's draft boards, which will process an expected 50,000 men from 18 through 25 here beginning August 30, will be chosen today.

Their names, together with those of members of an appeal board and other key officials, will be handed the District commissioners for approval in time for their meeting Thursday.

Distrift Draft Director William E. Leahy and Frank D. Norton, head of the District Office of Selective Service Records, plan to meet with the board of directors of the D. C. Selective Service Associatios at 8:15 p. m. today at OSSR headquarters, 1901 D st. nw.

"Out of the meeting," Leahy said, "will come the final determination of the number of boards."

He revealed that a total of ten paid clerks will handle administrative detail for the boards, regardless of their number. Either 10 or 15 expected.

Under present planning, the boards will all be housed at one location, with each responsible for a given area of the city, he said. While the location has not been decided, it will be "as convenient as possible," he added.

With all boards in one place, division of the city into administrative areas, as previously planned, will be unnecessary, he said.

Earlier estimates of the number of men here who must register—56,000—have been lowered to 50,000 in the light of current population studies, it was learned. Of these, 55 to 65 per cent are expected to be deferred because of previous military service or for other reasons.

The 50,000 estimate, according to draft spokesmen, does not take into account eligible District residents who maintain legal residence in other States. Such men, however, will be processed here, and their registration card sent to their State draft headquarters.

WHO Lists 5 Health Problems for Concentrated Attack

Dr. Thomas Parran yesterday reported that the United Nations World Health Organization has decided to concentrate this year on five priority health problems—tuberculosis, venereal disease, malaria, maternal-child care and sanitation.

Dr. Parran, chairman of the 21-member United States delegation to the Geneva conference held during June and July, told a press conferenece here that the five-phase program was "chosen from some 30 proposals.

With only a five-million-dollar budget, the 54-member organization decided "to concentrate efforts on a few serious problems rather than dissipate efforts over many," he said.

Dr. Parran, who is medical director of the United States Public Health Service, said:

"Improved health anywhere in the world increases productivity and raises the standard of living. And that means less human discontent and increased chances for prosperity and peace."

WHO's health program, he said, will be administered by offices to be set up in the Western Hemisphere, Africa, the eastern Mediterranean, southeast Asia, western Pacific and Europe.

Dr. Parran lauded the "very competent Russian delegation which participated fully and freely" in planning the organization's program and administrative setup.

Plans call for sending out teams of experts on request of any country with a health problem, he said.

Seventeen committees have already been named, Dr. Parran said, to evaluate and disseminate information about new advances in the health field.

WHO has established a joint committee to work with the International Children's Emergency Fund, he said. Their joint efforts will include giving advice on maternity and child care, information about causes and control of communicable disease, mental and social health of children.

Play Aides Face Checkup

All present and future employes of the District Recreation Board are slated to undergo a police checkup to insure the sex-law violators and others convicted of crimes does not come into contact with youngsters enjoying recreation facilities under supervision of the board.

Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, said yesterday he would cooperate in any request for such screening service.

The police chief's statement followed an announcement by Harry S. Wender, board chairman, that Milo F. Christiansen had been instructed to ask for a police check.

Wender, who fostered the move for such action, said his proposal stemmed from the conviction several weeks ago of a former recreation board employe on a sex law violation.

Wender said that while the man's violation did not involve children, there was a possibility that it might have.

"We must keep a close check that no undesirable persons are in our employ, particularly those who work with children," Wender stated. "Our obligations are so great that there should be no employee who is a liability to our organization.

Robertson, Smith Are Renominated

In 8th District

Few Hitches Mark 2-Party Primary Vote

The first two-party primary in Virginia's Eighth Congressional District yesterday went off on schedule, but not without some hitches.

Refusal of some registered voters to declare their political affiliation gave precinct workers a few headaches. They declared, however, that those who walked away from the polls without voting were few in number.

Another case was the angry cry of one would-be voter that the whole State of Virginia was going "red" because the voter (an unidentified woman) told poll workers she had wanted to vote part Republican and part Democratic, and was being denied her right to do so.

Voters Checked on List

Under the biparty system, voters are checked on a master list, and then must request either a Democratic or Republican ballot.

In Arlington County, where a race for Democratic nominee for a county board seat provided most of the local interest, poll workers said they believed most of the persons who declined to vote rather than reveal their political affiliation were Republicans, who wished to cast their ballot for one of the three candidates in the board race.

J. Harrison Mann, county Democratic chairman, said he believed the Republicans would have "gotten out a lot more voters" if they had entered a county board candidate in their primary.

Yesterday's primary also gave Arlington County the first test of its new system of 24 precincts. The system was adopted after the last election, under the old 11-precinct system, when 30 hours were required to count the Arlington vote.

County registrars hope to iron out any kinks in the 24-precinct system by November, when the general election is expected to bring out a much heavier vote.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 3 (AP).—U. S. Senator A. Willis Robertson and three other organization-backed Democratic candidates swept to easy victories in today's primary elections on the basis of returns from almost three-fourths of the voting precincts.

Robertson

The tall gray-haired incumbent Senator from Lexington, Va., held almost a 2½-to-1 lead over Roanoke Attorney James P. Hart with returns in from 1293 of the State's 1755 polling places. Robertson's vote was 72,516 to Hart's 31,415.

The early returns showed the Roanoke senatorial candidate receiving strong backing from the populous urban areas where the labor vote is more in evidence. However, Hart faltered when the farm vote started pouring in from the counties.

In the three district primaries for congressional seats, the story was about the same but with heavier overtones of organization strength.

Representative Howard Smith, a potent figure in the leadership of the dominant wing of the State Democratic Party, led Arthur F. Souther of Arlington by 9683 to 4213 on the basis of returns from 179 of the Eighth District's 234 precincts.

Near complete returns in the Third District—120 of the District's 126 precincts—gave Representative J. Vaughan Gary 14,529 to 5996 for his opponent, State Senator James E. Gardner, a Richmond business man.

In the Sixth District, Lynchburg's Mayor Clarence G. Burton poled nearly twice as many votes as his two Democratic opponents combined. Returns from 162 of the district's 196 precincts gave Burton 11,160 to 4779 for Robert Nenefee of Roanoke, and 1750 for Delegate Ernest Robertson of Salem.

In the Republican primary in the Eighth Tyrell Krum of Vienna, a Washington newspaperman and radio commentator led Charles O. Pratt, Arlington attorney, 2184 to 1037, with 181 of the precincts reporting.

Hart Concedes Defeat; Pledges His Support

Roanoke, Va., Aug. 3 (AP).—James P. Hart, jr., of Roanoke, conceded victory in the Democratic primary to Senator A. Willis Robertson in a telegram to the Senator at 10:40 o'clock tonight.

His telegram read: "Congratulations and best wishes for a successful tenure of office. I join with you in pledging my wholehearted support to the nominees of the Democratic Party."

ABC Renewal Form Approved

The District Commissioners yesterday approved revision of a renewal form for liquor sales licenses, requiring applicants to list all convictions on misdemeanors or felonies during the previous year. Previously, only listing of felonies was required.

Under present regulations, the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board may not issue a license to a person convicted of a felony. The misdemeanor information was requested by the ABC to assist in judging the character of the applicant.

The new form also adds several questions on "real" ownership of the liquor outlets to uncover hidden or "silent" partners, the commissioners said.

11-Man Group Named to Enforce Rules on Exits

The District Commissioners yesterday appointed an 11-man permanent advisory committee to assist in the enforcement of the building exit regulations. The committee includes the following:

A. Hamilton Wilson, Washington Building Congress, chairman; Watson B. Rulon, Washington Restaurant Association; James A. Cassidy, District Board of Trade; A. Julian Brylawski, Motion Picture Theater Owners of Metropolitan Washington; Joseph H. Abel, Washington chapter, American Institute of Architects.

Also, Charles J. Bauer, Building Owners and Managers Association; Frank E. Weakley, Washington Hotel Association; Alvin Aubinoe, Home Builders Association of Metropolitan Washington; Fire Marshal Raymond C. Roberts, Director of Inspections Robert H. Davis and Ray D. Kinney of the Inspections Department.

License Unit Weighs Question: Is 1-5 ct. per Point Gambling?

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Is playing bridge for a fifth of a cent a point gambling?

That was the question placed before the District License Board yesterday, along with lots of references to "match points," "master points," "rubbers" and other phrases familiar to the Ely Culbertson-Charles Goren fans.

The case arose after a woman, who identified herself only as the wife of a Government official, called License Supt. Chatham T. Nottingham to complain she had lost $200 to "friends" made at a bridge club on Connecticut ave.

Shortly thereafter Charles S. Geier, operator of the Connecticut Bridge, Checker and Chess Club at 2605 Connecticut ave., applied for a license for his newly formed group. Nottingham denied it on the grounds some games were being conducted for stakes ranging about a fifth of a cent per point. This was gambling, he decided.

Geier, a balding, self-acknowledged expert at bridge, chess, checkers and table tennis, appealed the decision to the License Board. Acting as his own attorney at yesterday's hearing in the District Building, he charged:

1. That many other bridge clubs permitted small stakes.

2. That permitting such clubs to operate as long as they were free of "knavery" and "big stakes" was "good administrative policy." If the gambling laws were enforced exactly on bridge clubs, "the jails would be jammed to the rafters."

3. That prosecution of his case was prompted by jealous competitors, who not only resented his growing enterprise, but also his policy of nonracial discrimination.

4. That his club offered the same facilities for middle class patrons as "exclusive country and social clubs" provided for the wealthy.

Calls Small Bets Common

5. That small bets were common practice in many pool halls and bowling alleys in the District, and therefore should not be forbidden in bridge clubs.

Geier, who is a graduate of Harvard Law School and has been admitted to the bar in the District, based his plea for a license, in spite of the acknowledged small stakes gambling, on the maxim, "The law does not concern itself with pins."

The board chairman, Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert D. Wise, took a different view of the law, declaring that for a man in "straightened circumstances" to lose $20 in an evening of bridge was a serious matter, which the law should seek to prevent.

The four-man board, consisting of Wise, Police inspector Clarence Lutz, Nottingham and E. J. Milligan, executive secretary of the Public Utilities Commission, took the matter under advisement. Wise said he would call a conference with police after the 200-page transcript of testimony is prepared to determine whether further prosecution of clubs mentioned is warranted.

Democrats Win Easily

Smith had 536 votes to 103 for Southern and Krum had 76 to 30 for Pratt.

Arlington County, giving its first test to the new 24-precinct system of voting, found the new method a vast improvement over the old 11-precinct system. In the last election, it took 30 hours to count votes at the 11 precincts. Last night the tally on the 24 precincts was completed well before midnight.

County politicians were keeping a weather eye on the new precinct divisions. As they expected, such areas as Fairlington for the first time a precinct by itself, voted strongly against the so-called "machine condidates"—Robertson and Smith. In that precinct alone, Hart had 129 votes to 46 for Robertson, while Souther had 115 votes to only 60 for Smith.

Krum

Smith

In the new Barcroft precinct, largely an apartment development, the division between old line Virginians and "new blood" was much more thinly drawn. The count was 193 for Robertson to 198 for Hart, and 199 for Smith to 196 for Souther. Frisbie showed a clear margin, regardless of precinct lines.

Yesterday's primary vote was less than half that cast in the last general election. At that time, when Senator Harry F. Byrd was opposed for reelection by Lester Parsons, State Republican leader, Byrd polled 5689 votes in Arlington County to 4135 for Parsons. The total vote in both Republican and Democratic primaries in Arlington yesterday was only about 5500.

On the basis of unofficial returns, the Republicans appeared to be voting on a 1-to-4 ratio to Democrats in the county. This trend is not expected to "stand up" in the November elections, when Republicans will have more at stake on a national basis than they had yesterday.

On the basis of the Republican primary yesterday, chief party strength seems to lie in the Woodlawn, Columbia and Barcroft precincts.

Incumbent Frisbie Easily Wins Arlington Board Nomination

Incumbent Alfred E. Frisbie yesterday won the Democratic nomination for election to the Arlington County Board in November.

A. E. Frisbie

Frisbie, who is now serving out an unexpired term, polled more votes than his two opponents combined, the complete but unofficial returns from the county's 24 precincts showed last night.

The returns gave Frisbie 2349 votes to 1182 for Harold L. Schilz, attorney, and 811 for William C. Nemeth, insurance claims adjuster. He carried all but three precincts, losing to Schilz by a few votes in both Arlington and Barcroft precincts, and trailing both his opponents in Fairlington, where Nemeth was given a one-vote margin over Schilz.

Frisbie, who had the support of the county's organized Democratic machinery, has been a member of the board since last November, when he was appointed by Circuit Court Judge Walter T. McCarthy to fill the unexpired term of the late Leo C. Lloyd. He is seeking election to the board for the first time.

The 36-year-old stock broker, who lives at 636 S. 25th st., is a comparative newcomer to county politics. He became publicly identified with the party for the first time last August, when he was elected as a member of the Democratic Executive Committee.

He also is a member of the Jefferson Civic Association, which indorsed him for appointment to the board following Mr. Lloyd's death.

Although Arlington Republicans failed to enter a candidate in yesterday's County Board primary, Frisbie still faces opposition in the general election next November. At least one person, Lee Potter, has announced he will seek election on an independent ticket, and the possibility of other independents entering the race is considered likely.

As soon as the primary results were known, Nemeth issued a statement congratulating Frisbie and pledging his support of the party nominees in November.

States' Rights Ticket Backed In Mississippi

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 3 (AP).—The Mississippi Democratic convention approved today the walkout of the State's delegates at the national convention, and pledged their electoral college candidates to support the States' rights ticket.

Two college student visitors spoke in opposition to the States' rights movement. They were followed by other college students supporting the movement.

In other resolutions the convention:

1. Approved the action of Mississippi delegates in joining the States' rights conference in Birmingham, Ala., July 17 after the National Democratic convention walkout.

Indorse Thurmond, Wright

2. Nominated South Carolina Gov. J. Strom Thurmond and Mississippi Gov. Fielding L. Wright as candidates of the Mississippi Democratic Party for President and Vice President and pledged their electoral college candidates to them. (These are the Birmingham States' rights standard bearers.)

3. Called for a "campaign of education so as to acquaint the people in each county with all the facts pertaining to the States' Rights movement."

4. Commissioned the nine electoral candidates as delegates to a "convention of the democratic parties of the several States to be held in Birmingham" on October 1.

5. Declared that the sense of today's convention is that all candidates for office on the State Democratic ticket should publicly declare their support for the States' Rights plans.

6. Called on Mississippi's congressional delegation and candidates for Congress to declare how they would vote if Congress should have to decide the presidential election. (The election goes to Congress if no presidential candidate gets a majority in the electoral college.)

Florida Democratic Chairman for Truman

Deland, Fla., Aug. 3 (AP).—Florida's Democratic chairman, Alex D. Littlefield, went firmly on record today for reelection of President Truman and expressed surprise that there was ever any doubt of his position.

In a statement yesterday, Littlefield called for party unity, stressed "absolute loyalty to the liberal cause as essential to victory in November" and pledged a "vigorous and successful campaign."

At Jacksonville, Helen Hunt West, a presidential elector, disputed the State chairman's statement that Florida would go for Truman. She said the State either would line up "behind the States' rights Democratic ticket" or be in the Dewey column.

New President Elected by Legion Boys

With all the fanfare and vigor of a real presidential election, the American Legion Boys forum at American University last night elected William Lawrence Geary, 18, of New Orleans, as its president of 1948.

Amid banners, placards, slogans and a band, the "Nationalist" and "Federalist" parties enthusiastically balloted three times before electing the "Federalist" candidate. The vote was 46 to 44.

For vice president they chose Albert D. Hildreth, jr., 17, of Houston, Tex., who ran on the "Nationalist" ticket.

The "Federalist" platform included support of ERP, Federal aid to education and enactment of legislation for universay military training.

Earlier in the day, the 90 boys, representing 45 States at the national government forum sponsored by the American Legion, held a mock Senate session in the House Office Building where they debated controversial issues.

In the afternoon, they visited Secretary of State George C. Marshall at his office in the State Department. Marshall told the boys the United Nations is the "great hope" for world stabilization and for the "security of continued peace." He also told them they should study the U. N. Charter and all various world "situations" before making judgments.

Today, the visitors will hear Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan and visit the Naval Academy at Annapolis. Thursday, after a visit with President Truman at the White House, the session will end, and they will depart for home.

The Washington Educational Touring Club will start a 21-day round trip Saturday to the West Coast.

Strangling Jurisdiction Cleared Up

It was decided officially yesterday that the strangling of Shirley Will, 18, occurred within the city limits of Baltimore as Baltimore police booked her fiance, Duncan Livingstone, jr., 25, on a charge of murder.

The girl was fatally strangled while riding in a car with her sweetheart either late Friday or early Saturday.

About five hours after the girl's death, Livingstone attempted to take his own life while driving on U. S. Route 40 on the outskirts of Aberdeen, Md., by firing a bullet into his own chest.

He has been recovering rapidly at Harford Memorial Hospital at Havre de Grace, Md., and yesterday was transferred to Baltimore City Hospital where he will be kept under a police guard.

Harford County police kept a guard over Livingstone after he was admitted to Harford Memorial Hospital Saturday but soon became convinced any crime involved had been committed outside their jurisdiction. A decision Monday that the crime had been committed in Baltimore County was reversed yesterday after Lieut. Leo Kelley of the homicide squad said Livingstone had changed his story about the scene of the strangling.

The couple was found early Saturday in Livingstone's car after it had plowed into a ditch.

Livingstone was bleeding profusely from his wound. He had fired two more shots to attract attention. Crumpled at his feet was the body of Miss Wills. They had gone together about two years, had been engaged, had a lovers' quarrel, and then were reconciled.

Livingstone's father said his son called about an hour and a half before he was found and said: "I have just choked Shirley and she is dead. I have her in my car. Now I am going to kill myself."

Light Firm Tract Sale Hearing Slated Today

The District Commissioners will hold a hearing today at 10:30 a. m. on a request by the auction firm of Joseph P. Day & Co. of New York City for permission to sell the large tract of land owned by the Washington Gas Light Co. at 26th st. and Virginia ave. nw.

Present regulations require six months' residence here by auctioneers before they may conduct sales in the District. The New York firm, in its request, noted that an out-of-town company had been permitted to auction the property of the late Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean.

Dog Days

Here we are in the midst of dog days, and, according to the almanac, they will hang on until August 20. Yet, like everything else, they are not what they used to be. True, there is the old familiar broiling sun, the sense of humid depression, the lazy, drag-along feeling. But lacking completely is the assurance that nothing is happening, and that nothing can or will happen. In fact, too much is happening, as blaring headlines and tense voices of radio announcers bear witness—momentous conferences of Big Four representatives, spy ring exposures and filibusters on Capitol Hill, booming prices, "bust" warnings, new moves abroad in the cold war, Republicans and Democrats at each others throats at home.

Traditionally dog days were a time when there was no big news, and ambitious reporters were driven to fry eggs on sidewalks and interview community oracles on the imminent menace of free love. Stories of sea serpents, three legged chickens, the birth of triplets, and breach of promise and divorce suits in the lower social brackets made the front page. They were a time when everybody who was anybody, including officials and socialites, was out of town, and when subordinates in offices languidly carried on for the bosses; when everyone dawdled about his business, and didn't bother too much about rumpled coat and wilted collar; when conversation centered about nothing more serious than tall tales of the heat and amateur weather predictions; when everything of importance was postponed "until fall"; when people managed to live one day at a time and that not too arduously. Yes, those were the good old dog days. While we are not ordinarily given to yearning for the past, we wish they could be recaptured.

Resuscitation

New crop statistics are giving the international wheat agreement another lease on life. Latest Department of Agriculture figures indicate that the available American wheat exports this crop year will be 450 million bushels, only 35 million short of last year's record shipments. This prospect, plus falling wheat prices and generally improving food conditions abroad, is causing some second thoughts among those groups which have tended to pooh-pooh the wheat agreement as impractical. The possibility of an annoying surplus problem in the not too far distant future makes the guaranteed market and price stabilization offered by the pact look more and more attractive.

We hope that the Senate will ratify the agreement. That in itself would not assure operation of the pact, since after the United States failed to approve it by the July 1 deadline five important signatories withdrew. But American assent at this time would be a strong inducement for these other nations to return. At the same time there ought to be a surcease of the kind of intemperate blasts leveled by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan during the interim between congressional sessions when he termed the failure to approve the agreement "an outstanding example of the irresponsibility of congressional leaders." It is Mr. Brannan's own department that is subject to that charge—because of its failure to present the matter squarely to Congress when the pact was negotiated last March. It is noteworthy that if the agreement is approved—and there seems to be a more favorable disposition toward it—it will be because of a sense of responsibility of and Republican helpfulness in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Possibly some of the change of heart may be attributed to increased pressure from farm organizations which, in contrast to the milling trades, have taken a strong stand in favor of the wheat agreement. But there also seems to be a broader recognition that the pact is not a one-sided proposition—that just as importing nations will benefit from the five-year contract in times of scarcity, so exporting nations will benefit in times of surplus. Indeed, it is just possible that operation of the agreement, plus a less attractive export market, may force the adherence of Argentina, a principal holdout. As a matter of fact, the end of highwayman tactics is a main principle of the wheat agreement. It requires some concessions from all signatories in an effort to banish the twin specters of surplus and starvation.

It is doubtful whether, considering the present trend of wheat prices, any export subsidies will be necessary for the 185 million bushels the United States agrees to furnish annually at ceiling prices diminishing from $2 to $1.50 (though the Government loan price of $2.30 may constitute a problem). Nevertheless, Congress could well afford to provide export powers as a guarantee that this country will be able to observe its commitments. Meanwhile, if the Department of Agriculture is seriously worried about potential wheat surpluses, particular attention ought to be given to acreage limitation on the war-impressed marginal farms that pose an ever-present threat of another dust bowl.

Curbing The Press

It was on this date just 213 years ago (August 4, 1735) that John Peter Zenger went on trial in New York, charged with "printing and publishing several seditious libels . . . tending to raise factions and tumults among the people of the province, influencing their minds with contempt of His Majesty's government." He was the publisher of New York's second newspaper, the Weekly Journal, which had printed a series of vehement attacks on the colonial governor, William Cosby. Up to that time the jury in a libel case could determine only whether the statements in question had actually been printed by the accused, leaving to the court the decision as to whether they were in fact libelous. But Zenger's attorney, Andrew Hamilton, admitting the fact of publication, pleaded truth as a defense. "The question before you," he told the jury, "is not the cause of a poor printer, nor of New York alone; it is the cause of liberty . . . the liberty of opposing arbitrary power by speaking and writing truth." Zenger's acquittal became the cornerstone of the American concept of press freedom.

Although this freedom has often been used foolishly and irresponsibly, it has proved itself, on the whole, throughout the subsequent two centuries, of immense utility to the American people. Perhaps the worst abuses of press freedom have been in connection with the reporting of crime; newspapers have sometimes been guilty of sensationalism—to which the laxness of courts has contributed in no small measure—making more difficult the administration of justice. Newspapers ought to raise their standards of practice. So, for that matter, should the courts. But the courts cannot impose rigid standards upon the press without inhibiting the freedom which is the essential source of its effective operation.

The courts of Baltimore now function under a rule (State-wide application of which is now under consideration) forbidding "issuance by the police or other duly constituted authorities, the State's attorney, counsel for the defense, or any other person having official connection with the case, of any statement relative to the conduct of the accused, statements or admissions made by the accused, or other matter bearing upon the issues to be tried." Publication or broadcast of such statements is also forbidden. The laudable intent of the rule, of course, is to prevent trial by newspaper, protect the rights of accused persons and maintain the dignity of the courts. But its rigidity makes it a gag rather than a guide.

The Baltimore News-Post rendered a public service last week by exposing the absurdity of this rule in its reporting of the alleged murder of Shirley Will and the attempted suicide of her fiance, Duncan Livingstone, jr. In place of police statements, a reported confession and on-the-scene pictures, the newspaper inserted a series of notes declaring that "publication is barred under Rule 904 of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore." No doubt the intent of the rule is to insulate prospective jurors from knowledge of a case prior to its trial. But the effect is to cloak the conduct of the police in secrecy and deprive the whole public of information as to the progress of criminal prosecutions. As we have said before, we think it impossible to reconcile such a blanket prohibition on the publication of news with the principle enunciated by the Supreme Court of the United States that courts may cite the press for contempt only when its acts constitute a "clear and present" danger to the administration of justice.

The anniversary of John Peter Zenger's trial is a good occasion to assess anew the meaning of the First Amendment—designed to give the press immunity from governmental regulation. The Zenger case was a repudiation of censorship. The First Amendment was the formal establishment of that repudiation as a part of the country's fundamental law.

Boom And Bust

Federal Reserve authorities are handicapped in stopping the expansion of excess purchasing power—the heart of the present inflation—by sundry factors making for increase beyond their control. Take, first, the gold inflow. During the past 12 months more than two billion dollars has been added to the Treasury's gold hoard. Although this gold has been buried in Government vaults, it increased the volume of bank reserves, so laying the foundation for an expansion of credit to several times the amount of the gold acquisition. A simultaneous decline of about half a billion dollars in currency in circulation gave rise to similar consequences.

The process works in this way: when gold enters the country it is "monetized" through the issuance of gold certificates to the Federal Reserve Banks. The final effect is to expand by a corresponding amount the reserves of the Federal Reserve Banks and the commercial banks, thereby increasing the capacity of the banking system to expand credit to several times the amount of the reserves so acquired. The withdrawal of currency from circulation similarly increases the volume of excess bank reserves and affords a basis for credit expansion. Consequently, efforts to combat inflation through fiscal and monetary policies designed to absorb bank deposits and reserves are seriously hampered by an inflow into the banks of gold and currency. As a matter of fact, Chairman McCabe of the Federal Reserve Board says that the total growth in bank reserves during the past year was sufficient to cover increases of about a billion dollars in reserve requirements of New York and Chicago banks as well as increased reserve requirements resulting from deposit growth. Finally, the liquidation of foreign-owned dollar balances to pay for United States exports is inflationary, since the goods are not paid for by goods.

Yet these items are not subject to control by the Federal Reserve authorities. That makes it all the more necessary to try to offset or neutralize the influence of these noncontrollable inflation-producing factors by vigorous use of the instrumentalities for restraining credit expansion within the areas amenable to control. Time already has been wasted, and the lack of action is reminding some observers of the procrastination in 1927, when action in making money dearer might have restrained the speculation which went up in smoke in 1929, and then promoted the greatest depression in our history. Chairman McCabe says the Federal Reserve Board is now at one in the proposal to increase reserves behind the deposits of both nonmember and member banks, and there are signs that Congress is being made increasingly aware of the need for action by the factors we have mentioned.

Just Look At Yourselves

With no cloture to bar the Senate "debate" on the antipoll tax bill, the upper chamber has now been turned into a talkathon. A filibuster at any time is unseemly. At present it is a shocking reflection on the legislators who were responsible for it and the legislators who are conducting it. Outside the Senate an inflation bearing the seeds of a collapse is week by week picking the pockets of the American people. Beyond the national borders decisions bearing the seeds of peace or war are being made which require a showing of strength and unity and responsibility in the halls of Congress. Yet the greatest deliberative assembly in the world, now become that in fact as in rhetoric, is letting itself be bogged down in a worse than idle gabfest, purposely tying itself in knots. The spectacle, added to that of a troop of informers jamming committee rooms with scarifying talk, no longer amuses. It is not helpful in combating the inflation thief at home and the Muscovite aggressor abroad, but, on the contrary, is an ally of both, since economic instability and political and social confusion in America are so clearly Communist aims.

Senator Taft says that at the next Congress there will be a change in the Senate rules making cloture apply to any pending business. That is some comfort, but none for the present situation. As to the antipoll tax bill, we are heartily sick of it. The levy is disappearing, anyway; and the legislators who insist upon using Federal authority to get rid of it have become the victims of a fixed idea. It almost seems as if it is the fight, not the accomplishment, that matters. They appear to care little for the fact that even if the poll tax were abolished by Federal law, and the law were found constitutional, intransigent States in the South would think up other disqualifications. This newspaper, as ardent as anybody for freedom of political expression, is against the poll tax, and any similar disqualification in the exercise of the franchise. But of far more importance to us is a belief in the integrity of our constitutional system, and if there is a question as to the constitutionality of the antipoll tax bill, that question should be resolved by "letting it lay."

It isn't as if there were no other way of getting suffrage reform. There is, in fact, not one way, but several ways; and all good Americans, feeling in their bones the peril of taking a chance with the organic law which guarantees their liberty, should explore those ways before asking the Federal Government to be high-handed. There is, for instance, the route of the constitutional amendment. As Senator Hayden said the other day, if the agitators had made this the focus of their agitation at the start, then there might today be some progress to report. But many of the antipoll taxers, more interested in a fight than a remedy, have consistently ignored this alternative. There is also the relief that could be afforded by a clarification of the civil rights statutes so that the disqualified could get aid from an injunction. President Truman called for such a bill well over six months ago; it is all ready at the Department of Justice, yet he has made no move to submit it to Congress.

These methods are serious means of tackling the problem of disfranchisement. But these days seriousness appears to be at a discount on a wider front than the poll tax. It is an elaborate game of shadow boxing that the people are being treated to, and Old Man Inflation and the sinister person that the President calls Old Joe are the only ones who must be getting a kick out of it. For the rest of us, living dangerously with inflation and the international conspiracy of world communism, the exhibition on Capitol Hill seems downright irresponsible. The special session, admittedly, posed a problem in view of its origin. But it's more of an occasion to the people, now we have got it, than to provide open season for former Reds telling things that the FBI ought to (and most probably does) know all about, and for leather-lunged solons seeking only to stop the public business. The Senate in this filibuster is made to look like a hydra-headed Nero. At stake is the dignity of the people's, not the legislators', Congress, of their representative institutions, of the Nation's stability.

Shakespeareski

For some time past your correspondence columns have been filled with contentious arguments that the plays of Shakespeare were written, not by Francis Bacon, Viscount St. Albans, but by Edward de Vere, Earl of Oxford, or vice versa. So long as this sterile logomachy was confined to academic circles I could keep silent; but when so eminent a poet and zoologist as Gelett Burgess enters the dispute I am compelled to rise in protest against what seems a studied attempt to depreciate our great ally, the Soviet Union.

Moscow broadcasts, reported in American newspapers, have informed our citizens that Russians invented everything. What is not so widely known is that Russian critics have demonstrated that Russians were responsible for practically everything in European culture, before as well as after Marx. Apply this major premise to the facts of the present argument and the truth will readily appear.

The plays of Shakespeare reveal an understanding of the problems of government and of high politics in a monarchic state that would have been beyond the comprehension of a lord chancellor, to say nothing of a mere literary earl. Since ex hypothesi nothing can be imagined by a man who had not personally experienced it, the plays of Shakespeare were obviously written by Boris Godunoff; though there is some reason to believe that Titus Andronicus has been wrongly ascribed, and was actually the work of Ivan the Terrible. Teachers' Pay

Although there is great concern—and rightly so—at the failure of Congress to grant to District employes the same salary awarded to Federal employes, there is apparently no concern or sympathy for the District teachers.

It may appear to members of Congress that District teachers are uninterested in legislative measures to increase the efficiency of their school system since there has not been the usual pressure from the teachers themselves. However, teachers in Washington as a whole are unfamiliar with lobbying techniques and have been discouraged from such activities. Thus the welfare of the District teachers rests squarely with Congress.

A bill to correct inequities in the 1947 Teachers Pay Act passed both the House and Senate during the recent session of Congress. This bill, correcting manifest injustices, failed to become law through a technicality and was overlooked in the last-minute rush of adjournment. I am told that no decision has been made as to its disposition at this session.

While such measures as increase in salary and sick leave, which call for additional outlay of money, are being discouraged at this time, it is asking very little of Congress to pass the bill to correct inequities of the 1947 Teachers Pay Act during the special session.

VD Stories

I have been noticing lately the series of articles concerning the District of Columbia's drive against venereal disease. I thought you might be interested to know that I think the publicity excellent even though I do not happen to be one of those it will help directly. However, from the educational standpoint, from the standpoint of bringing into the open a subject not widely discussed yet serious to many, and from the standpoint of helping our children to understand the effects of such diseases I think them of value.

I know you are aware of the good they have done in bringing people to the clinics but did not know if you realize that other readers are following them with interest. Congratulations on a ticklish job well done.

"The Way Of Life"

Unfortunately, the atomic bomb and Russia are two subjects which we cannot afford to ignore these days. I would like to point out that the New York Times ignored neither last Sunday, as your good August 1 editorial on "The Way of Life" states.

The Times had two front-page atomic stories that day—one relating exclusively to the mystery of life, based on questions asked by Mrs. Elizabeth May Craig's questions at the Atomic Energy Commission's news conference on bombs, Russia and isotopes.

But I don't blame the editorial writer for the oversight. When he saw a story on the mystery of life, the oldest problem of all, he could see nothing else. It is a subject which seldom makes the front pages nowadays.

ANTHONY H. LEVIERO,
New York Times Bureau.

Washington.

[Editor's Note: The editorial referred to the front page of the New York Times for July 25, 1948. The other story about atomic energy on that page, signed by Mr. Leviero, was concerned not with the report of the Atomic Commission but with President Truman's statements concerning atomic policy. The report itself was dismissed with the following words:

["This report stressed the great benefits being derived along the whole front of human endeavor through the use of isotopes, the irradiated materials which promise to save many more lives than the atomic bombs."]

"Meadowland"

Why don't we do something about stopping the making, the issuance and the playing of the record entitled Meadowland, or the Russian Patrol Song?

Every jukebox in the country is screaming this number, and it is now all set to be No. 1 on the Hit Parade.

This is about the sweetest piece of Communist propaganda ever let loose in the United States of America.

Opera In Washington

I heartily agree with Mr. Hume's sentiments in his articles of July 11 and 25. As a vice president of the newly formed Columbia Opera, Drama and Ballet Association, organized last May, I am taking this opportunity of advising you that the aims and ideals of our association are almost identical with those outlined by Mr. Hume.

The Columbia Light Opera Company, now known as the Columbia Opera Company, will, under the association's sponsorship, form the chorus for both grand and light opera. Persons capable of minor roles will be selected from this same group. Leads will be imported as they were for the company's last grand opera production, Carmen, presented last April.

To quote Mr. Hume, "The need for a local chorus, willing, interested and able to learn the choral portions of standard operas," exactly covers what was done, and decidedly Mr. Hume is right when he says that such a plan will guarantee finer opera. Plans are being completed to launch our project in the early fall. The light opera unit is in rehearsal now preparing The Mikado and Iolanthe for presentation at the Sylvan Theater in August. The sole purpose of these performances is to raise funds to augment the association's treasury, so that the extensive program scheduled may be realized.

Such performances and the over-all plans now in the making will help to overcome what Mr. Hume points out regarding the lack of opportunity for young singers. In the Columbia group they will be receiving the training which will help them, as is the case in Europe, to ascend the ladder of fame.

So it is hoped that Mr. Hume's interest as evidenced by his written expressions and the work of the Columbia Opera, Drama and Ballet Association will bring to a realization the dreams of many opera lovers and that we will finally have a permanent opera and an opera house.

"Regressive" Force

In his letter of July 20, Scott Nearing takes another correspondent to task for this statement: "The root cause of the present world mess is the Soviet's postwar expansion." Mr. Nearing suggests that this should read: "The root cause of the present world mess is the United States of America expansion."

In other words, since we have "expanded more rapidly (than Russia) in income, wealth, military strength and planet-wide distribution of economic subsidies and military bases," Russia is, according to Mr. Nearing, justified in expanding into central Europe.

But if the United States is a "regressive" force, as Mr. Nearing says, how have we been able to expand economically so much more rapidly than "progressive" Russia? And why must we eliminate "deceptive catchwords such as 'USSR' and 'U. S. A.'" in order to enter the beautiful Utopia offered by nature and science? If the "deceptive catchword" USSR actually symbolizes a progressive force determining the shape of things to come, as Mr. Nearing contends, why does he suggest that we should stop fooling ourselves with it?

Beyond demonstrating that in the "present world mess" Mr. Nearing is fooling himself with the dangerous idea that the Soviet Union is right and his own country wrong, his letter makes no sense whatsoever.

Job Umbrellas For 1950

By Malvina Lindsay

Meeting Competition

WARNINGS to prepare for a lightened job market are coming from several sources. If they were heeded now by those who most need them, the unemployment problem might be greatly eased two years hence when, according to some economic seers, a real job pinch may be felt.

One of these omens is that older workers are finding it increasingly hard to get jobs. Another is that young, untrained, inexperienced workers are in the same boat and veterans without special skill or training are getting harder to place in some localities, according to the United States Employment Service. Glamour jobs already have a waiting line. And Dr. George D. Small of the University of Tulsa, warns of the flooding of the job market the next two years by the great waves of GI Bill of Rights students being graduated from college—most of them highly trained and capable.

Dr. Small's analysis of 967 job opportunities from 1947 to 1955 offers some valuable help for those willing to plan ahead on the problem of earning a living. He lists the tightening and the expanding fields, and he shows how general social trends, as migration to cities, and specialization in skills are affecting jobs. His main warning is: Don't prepare blindly for one of the popular and overcrowded methods of earning a living, but look into some of the less known and more specialized of the 30,000 different ways of earning money.

OTHER explorations into the field of tomorrow's work opportunities are being made by colleges and other agencies. But more of this knowledge should be available to students in high and even elementary school. The general shortage of teachers has curtailed vocational guidance when it is most urgently needed to help ease future economic readjustments.

Oddly, the fields that have a human service aspect, and those that are known as "difficult" have the fewest recruits. Among these are the ministry, teaching, nursing, psychiatry and medicine—fields that require long training and offer little hope of riches, but which have the most far reaching influence in molding American life. Why are young people now so loath to enter careers that require hard, long and meticulous preparation? Or those that require altruistic attitudes? Is it because commercial success has been overemphasized?

Older workers can't do as much now to meet future job problems as can the young, but they can do something. The job-hunter past 50 is already having his or her difficulties in the labor market, and persons who expect to be in that category within the next decade would do well to prepare in advance for what they will face.

WHAT CAN they do? First, according to employment experts, they can build the best possible health. Fatigue enters strongly into the inefficiency of many older workers, especially women. Second, they can get special training—or retraining. The older worker with no particular skill is always hardest to place.

In 1947, 29 per cent of all women workers were between 45 and 64, there having been a great increase in this group during and since the war. If a similar aged group were squeezed out in a time of tight employment, it would raise an acute economic problem for the Nation.

Recent life expectancy studies have shown that with women living on an average about five years longer than men there will always be a large group of older women, many of whom will have to support themselves. Hence, preparedness for this should begin early in life. However, shifts in industry often cause older workers, even when skilled, to be thrown out of work. Hence, employment experts are urging that retraining programs for both older men and women be gotten under way, either as community or organization projects.

Caste System

According to General Bradley the Army is going to retain the caste system. There is no need to apologize for it, it seems, because "industry" has it, although the general does not specify what industries have it, or how.

Surely the existence of caste is something that should be hateful to Americans wherever it may be found, at least within any organization or institution that uses the name American. The system of authority and discipline with different rewards for different services under which industry and indeed all human activities must operate is not, however, the same thing as the caste system of the Army to which millions of conscripted American citizens had to submit during the war and which they found so repugnant to their American ideals.

Whatever may be the shortcomings of the top Army brass, one has to admire their skill at special pleading and at confusing issues, as witness their propaganda for universal military training. Incidentally, what ever happened to the Doolittle report?

Tidelands Oil

A Communication

FOR SOME time, the papers have carried news stories, editorials and cartoons on "tideland oils," "marginal sea," "submerged lands" and related matters which sought to dramatize one of the most flagrant attempts to destroy a wise Federal policy on the conservation and preservation of our few remaining sources of oil that I have experienced since I became an active participant in the conservation movement which was launched at the White House Conference of Governors called by Theodore Roosevelt over 40 years ago.

Judging from a recent remark of a well-intentioned lady, it is apparent that the simple meaning of this vital struggle is as submerged or blurred as are the tidelands themselves.

"Do you mean that there is some kind of oil washed in by the tides that they are fighting about?" she inquired innocently after a rather heated discussion on tideland oils.

This common misapprehension about this crucial problem indicates the necessity of setting forth in clear everyday language what are the few essential facts.

Along the seacoast of California and certain other coastal States, from the point where the ocean waters reach their low water or low tide, and extending out to the sea for 3 miles from that low-water mark, there are lands underneath the surface of the water containing valuable deposits of mineral oil. It is exactly the same as oil deposits anywhere else with the difference that in this instance a body of water covers the land. Some of these submerged lands have actually been filled in so that they are identical in this respect with oil deposits generally.

NO ONE needs to be reminded of the constant increase in the price of gas and oil. Nor are we oblivious to the constant reminder that there may not be enough gas to go around. And no one of us likes the wartime experience of parking our cars in the garage, and in sardine-can fashion stuffing ourselves into already jammed streetcars and buses. Our war machines would be stalled before they started if adequate supplies of oil were not available at all times.

It is not generally realized that we are rapidly approaching the end of our oil supply in the not too far distant future. When we talk loosely about obtaining oil abroad, we forget two important facts. The first one is the excessive cost of shipping it from such remote points. The second and more crucial fact is that our foreign supplies were nearly shut off by effective submarine warfare. With the new improvements in submarines whereby they can stay underwater for protracted periods—thus avoiding the dangerous necessity of returning to their bases—who, factually, would not contend that submarine warfare could succeed completely in shutting off our foreign supplies of oil?

WE COME now to the principal matters that are involved. Under Federal procedure, the Secretary of the Interior is charged with supervisory power over minerals underneath the soil, among other things. Likewise there exists on the Federal statute books the Federal Mineral, Oil and Leasing Act. Under this law, the Federal Government aims to have its private citizens discover additional sources of minerals and oil in order to augment our stockpile in peace as well as in war. While always reserving Federal sovereignty in all such lands, certain privileges were given to those applicants who spend their time and money to discover potential new sources of such deposits.

Likewise, under executive order of the President, the oils in the submerged lands off our sea coasts were declared to be Federal property and were placed under the supervision of the Secretary of the Interior, where they belonged logically as well as by law.

Pursuant to this Federal Mineral Leasing Act, various applicants in good faith have actually spent of their own time and money, located oil deposits off the California coast, and in accordance with the established practice of the Department of the Interior duly filed applications for leases with the Secretary of the Interior.

At the same time, certain large oil interests in California and elsewhere were not satisfied with Federal control of such oil deposits. The reason was not far to seek. A definite percentage went into the Federal Treasury, another definite percentage went to the States concerned, while the remainder went into the Federal reclamation fund for the use of many States where reclamation and related projects are pending.

Under State law, these oil interests would be able to pursue their own individual exploitation of oil resources, without any regard to the national defense needs. So such interests got permission from California and proceeded to drill wells on the submerged lands of Federal property.

THEY DID SO on the assumption that such lands were not Federal property, and belonged to the States.

For a time there was some doubt about the validity of their contentions. However, when the Supreme Court of the United States in the test suit of the United States vs. California, to be found in volume 332 of the Reports of the United States Supreme Court, on page 19, decided on June 23, 1947, that such submerged lands were the undisputed property of the Federal Government, the whole picture changed. To that valiant and determined fighter, Mr. Robert E. Lee Jordan, should go full credit for having waged this priceless fight clear to the Supreme Court.

But the oil monopolies are never satisfied with Federal laws and they usually manipulate around them. Nor do they accept the sober views of the Supreme Court of the United States.

So they resorted to lobbying. Never, in my more than 40 years' experience in the conservation movement in Washington, where I was formerly Undersecretary of the Department of Interior, have I ever experienced such an avalanche of lobbyists and outpouring of funds as that which exists in Washington today.

This lobby is determined to frustrate the will of the American people as well as to upset the wise conservation policy, and they are leaving no stone unturned in their efforts to attain this end. In the last session of Congress it will be recalled that they were successful in railroading a bill through the House to restore these Federal tidelands to the States—that is to the private favored few large oil operators, and they almost succeeded in doing likewise in the Senate, had the Congress not adjourned.

I AM convinced, that if the Representatives and Senators of the 44 States which are not directly concerned in the controversy were to have had the facts presented to them plainly they would have seen that it was to the interest of their States to retain sovereignty of such oil lands in the Federal Government.

Consequently, one of the most urgent things before the American people is to show them that the interests of a favored few large oil interests are not the same as the best interests and well-being of the vast majority of the American people.

We are literally fighting a war to the death with other forms of government that differ from our own. No one can tell when the cold war will leave off and the shooting war begin. Through a wise conservation policy of their Federal Government, these priceless tideland reserves should be retained as the heritage of all the American people and not the privileged few.

I want to take this opportunity of congratulating The Washington Post for its excellent handling of this vital problem in its news and editorial columns as well as its admirable cartoons. Assuredly, you are speaking for the best interests of all the American people.

The Gallup Poll

Loan for United Nations Home Approved by Most Americans

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 3.—Congressional action to provide money for building the headquarters of the United Nations ha substantial approval from the American people.

In a public opinion poll completed shortly before Congressional leaders reopened the loan issue last week the majority of voters with opinions expressed a favorable view. An overwhelming majority said it would be a bad thing for the United Nations to move its headquarters to Europe.

President Truman in his message to the special session of Congress strongly urged granting the loan to the United Nations. The site for the headquarters along the East River in New York City was donated by John D. Rockefeller, jr., but the United Nations had insufficient funds to put up the buildings. One main objection raised to a loan from the United States is that the financing should not fall so heavily on one country but should be divided among the leading nations.

This point of view is apparently shared by about one voter in three in the United States, as indicated in replies to the following poll question put to the country by the institute during the last week in July:

"Do you think the United States should or should not lend money to the United Nations to go ahead with their headquarters building in New York City?"

The vote:

Should	46%
Should not	34
Qualified answer	4
No opinion	16

Opinion on this issue divided sharply according to degree of education. People who have had some college education were found overwhelmingly in favor of granting the loan, while among those who have had grammar school training only or no schooling the weight of opinion was registered against the loan.

	Should	Should Not	Qual. & no opin.
College	64%	24%	12%
High School	51	31	18
Grade or no School	35	41	24

American opinion has always been found supporting the continuation and development of the United Nations as an organization, even though voters are far from satisfied with its progress or accomplishments to date.

The average American would not like to see the United Nations move away from American shores. That is shown in the vote on a second question in the Institute's poll, as follows:

"Because the United States has not yet offered to lend 65 million to the United Nations to build its headquarters, some United Nations' officials want to move the headquarters to Europe. Do you think it would be a good thing or a bad thing for the U. N. to move its headquarters to Europe?"

The vote:

Good Thing	11%
Bad thing	61
No difference	15
No opinion	13

On this question no important difference was found according to degree of education, indicating that objections to a loan did not necessarily imply disapproval of the United Nations itself.

The vote by education follows:

	Coll.	High Sch'l	Grade or No Sch'l

Decca Phonograph Records Firm Faces Suit as Monopoly

New York, Aug. 3 (AP).—The Government filed a civil anti-trust action today in Federal District Court against the American and British makers of Decca phonograph records.

In Washington, Attorney General Clark said the action charges Decca Records, Inc., American maker, and Decca Records Co., Ltd., British manufacturer, "with engaging in a conspiracy and cartel agreement restraining the sale and distribution of commercial phonograph records in violation of the anti-trust laws."

Milton Rackmil, executive vice president of Decca, said in New York the company would have no comment until the Government formally notifies Decca of the action.

The Government's complaint charged American Decca conspired to divide world markets with British Decca and electrical and musical industries.

The latter, a British corporation, was named co-conspirator but not a defendant. American Decca formerly was affiliated with British Decca by stock ownership, the complaint stated, but this relationship was ended in 1943.

Assistant Attorney General Hubert A. Bergson, in charge of anti-trust cases, said in Washington that as a result of conspiracy alleged in the case the export of American records to Europe and South America had been seriously restrained.

"The British companies have also been excluded from selling their records in the United States except under conditions designed to prevent them from competing with the American company," he added.

"There is today a great public demand for phonograph records. In 1947 the sales at retail in the United States alone amounted to more than 190 million dollars.

3 Major Farm Organizations Back Truman on Wheat Pact

By The Associated Press

Three major farm organizations yesterday backed President Truman's call for Senate ratification of the international wheat agreement.

They made public letters to Secretary of Agriculture Brannan saying the agreement, signed last winter by 35 nations, is essential to keep this country in foreign markets and prevent return to rigid crop controls.

The organizations are the National Grange, the American Farm Bureau Federation and the National Farmers Union.

The agreement is designed to stabilize world grain markets by means of export quotas and a system of maximum and minimum prices. It was considered yesterday by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which pigeonholed the treaty at the regular session of Congress.

Hopes for Windup Today

Chairman Vandenberg (R., Mich.) said yesterday that the committee hoped to wind up its consideration of the agreement today.

He told reporters the committee would meet behind closed doors at 9:30 a. m. (EST) today. The committee met for two hours yesterday with Agriculture Department and other officials.

President Truman last week urged the extra session to approve the agreement.

Albert S. Goss, master of the Grange, said:

"When we have asked our wheat farmers if they would prefer wheat prices to be stabilized within a range between $1.10 and $2 a bushel or would prefer to take the chances of an unstabilized range from 30 cents to $3, such as we have seen in the past 15 years, without a single exception they have emphatically favored the stabilized range."

Emphasizes Preference

Goss said the agreement, which woud assure this country an export market of at least 185,000,000 bushels annually, is "vastly better than returning to acreage controls, marketing quotas and a whole array of Governmental regimenting procedures which will be inevitable if the problem is not tackled at the international level."

Allan Kline, president of the Farm Bureau, and Russell Smith, legislative secretary of the Farmers Union, expressed similar views.

Kline opposed postponement of Senate action until next year, as has been suggested by some lawmakers.

Smith said "stability and order in production and distribution of the great staple crops of all the world are of very great advantage to the U. S., in promoting the restoration of general economic order."

The Dewey Campaign Strategy

THE SPECIAL session of Congress, now glumly simmering in its own juice, will shortly be done to a turn. This squalid legislative stew will then be removed from the stove which is Washington at the moment. Even before this happy event, meanwhile, one can already begin to measure the political effectiveness of President Truman's bold maneuver of calling Congress back to undone work.

The best test, of course, is the extent to which the President's maneuver has caused Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to reconsider his campaign plans. "Not at all," is the answer given on highest authority.

Extraordinary marks of confidence are in fact the most striking features of the Dewey campaign strategy, which has now been crudely roughed out in his retreat at Pawling, N. Y. In 1944, when Dewey had President Roosevelt to contend with, he began campaigning early and continued in slam-bang style to the finish. In the very different circumstances this year, he probably will not begin his first swing across the country until late September. What is planned is a brief, intensive effort, mainly aimed to get out the vote which Dewey feels pretty sure is his already.

The models for this campaign, moreover, are to be his two campaigns for the New York Governorship. In 1942 his chief promises were to "clean the cobwebs out of the State government and to humanize the State income tax." In 1946 he contented himself with promising that the State government would be kept cobweb-free.

THIS SORT of general appeal, calculated only to suggest that the candidate making the appeal can do a better general job than his rival, is always the privilege of the front-runner in any electoral contest. The wise front-runner avails himself of the privilege—because he thus avoids coming into office with his neck festooned with irremovable albatrosses in the form of inconvenient specific commitments. The polls have just confirmed the Dewey strategists' conviction that he is out in front. He means to play it that way until there are clear signs that the position is changing.

The situation current in September and October will determine whether Dewey chiefly emphasizes foreign or domestic policy. Probably the main emphasis will be on the foreign situation, unless there is a violent further rise in prices. In this event, the Dewey strategists admit that the memory of a Republican special session which has done almost nothing about prices will greatly benefit President Truman, and will force Dewey to fight back with everything that he has got.

But the Dewey men believe the special session will not otherwise do their cause any great harm. They are inclined to think that a further violent price rise will not materialize. And the main disputed issue to date has therefore been whether the candidate would tour the country by plane, which he personally desired, or by train, as desired by his advisers. The advisers seem to have won this crucial argument.

IT MUST be added that there is more long-range significance in the character of Dewey's campaign planning than at first meets the eye. The wish to avoid a multitude of specific commitments derives, for example, from sober realization that the future is both unforseeable and menacing.

In these circumstances it is unwise to promise a world millenium the day after tomorrow. And with regard to domestic problems, as one well qualified to speak remarked reflectively, "It isn't a good idea to make the kind of bungle Truman did, when he said price controls were the mark of a police state one week, and then asked for the restoration of price controls the next week." In short, Dewey and the men around him accept the fact that the job of the next President is going to be critically difficult. And they do not wish to debar themselves in advance from using any expedients which events may later render desirable.

This extreme sobriety and caution in men who so clearly anticipate victory is distinctly impressive. It is impressive also that it should be an understood, accepted thing that the now dominant Republican congressional group of extreme conservatives and crypto-isolationists will constitute a grave problem for President Dewey. At any rate, if the election goes the way that now seems probable, it will be agreeably ironic to see large numbers of Republicans finding their day of jubilo considerably disturbed by the unexpected character of their new leader.

World Bank's Net Earnings Are Reported at 3 Millions

The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development yesterday reported net earnings of $3,030,847 in its two years of global operations.

Five countries shared the 513 million dollars in loans so far approved, a bank statement said.

France and the Netherlands have used all the 250 million dollars and 195 million dollars in credits granted them respectively. Denmark has used about 40 per cent of her 40 million dollars credit and Luxembourg has used about two-thirds of a 12-million-dollar loan.

Two loans to Chilean government corporations have been approved to become effective when ratified by the Chilean government.

The Bank's total income for the past fiscal year amounted to $18,703,978. After deducting expenses amounting to $11,557,848 and amounts for the special reserve aggregating $3,051,478, the net income for the year was $4,094,652. This was sufficient to eliminate the deficit of $1,063,805 existing on June 30, 1947, and to provide a net income at June 30, 1948, of $3,030,847. It should be noted that during the fiscal year $1,276,003 of bond registration and issuance cost was charged directly to expenses for the year.

During the year, the subscribed capital stock of the bank increased $261,500,000 as the result fo the subscription to 2000 shares by Australia and 380 shares by Finland, and the subscription to 6 additional shares by Paraguay, 133 additional shares by Egypt, and 96 additional shares by Iran. The total subscribed capital stock at June 30, 1948, amounted to $8,286,000,000.

In July, 1947, the Bank sold to the public $100,000,000 of its 10-year 2¼ bonds due July 15, 1957, and $150,000,000 of its 25-year 3 per cent bonds due July 15, 1972, both issues being payable in United States dollars.

On June 1, 1948, the Bank sold 2½ per cent Swiss Serial Bonds dated April 1, 1948, maturing in 1953 and 1954, in an aggregate principal amount of 17 million francs (equivalent to $3,955,788) to the Bank for International Settlements, Basle, Switzerland at par and accrued interest. These Swiss francs were disbursed to the Kingdom of the Netherlands as part of the loan of $195,000,000 to it.

Complaints Drive Cafe's Owner To Wreck Place

New York, Aug. 3 (U.P.).—A lone customer in an all-night eatery in Brooklyn asked for more sugar for his coffee early today.

"That's all I hear in this business—complaints, complaints, complaints," roared Alfred Mercuri, 40, who bought the restaurant a month ago.

Then Mercuri ripped two coffee urns from their foundations and hurled them to the floor. He heaved a sugar container at the customer, who dropped a dime on the counter and hurried out to call the cops.

Alone, Mercuri yanked the counterseats from their moorings, smashed all the China, opened the gas cets wide, kicked in glass containers, hurled pies and pastry at the walls and shouted about his ungrateful customers.

When the police arrived Murcuri was outside pitching sugar containers through the plate glass windows.

Net earnings from current operations of national and non-national banks in the District of Columbia in the first half of 1948 amounted to $3,775,000 compared with $3,405,000 in the corresponding period last year, the Comptroller of the Currency reported yesterday.

Net profits before dividends totaled $1,783,000 against $2,653,000 a year previously. Total losses and charge-offs in the 1948 period amounted to $1,274,000 compared with $475,000 in 1947.

Total earnings from current operations were $11,739,000 against $10,592,000 in 1947. Interest and discount on loans accounted for $4,802,000 against $3,574,000. Interest and dividends on U. S. Government obligations totaled $3,915,000 compared with $4,248,000 last year.

Operating revenues totaled $8,707,107 for the first half this year, an increase of $1,089,910 over 1947. The increases in the latter items were attributed to the greater use of gas for heating and the effect of full natural gas operation.

748 Naylor Gardens Units Boosted 8%

An 8 per cent rent increase was agreed upon yesterday by owners and tenants of Naylor Gardens, ending a two-day hearing on a requested 15 per cent boost.

The agreement made the new rents effctive September 1. At the same time maintenance charges paid by members of the Veterans Cooperative Housing Association, owners of the 748-unit development, will also ris by 8 per cent.

At present 540 units are occupied by tenants of the Association, which bought the property from the Defense Housing Corporation, and the remainder by association members or tenants of individual members.

Current rents range from $59.50 a month for a one-bedroom unit to $78.50 for a three-bedroom unit. The VCHA agreed to maintain present standards of service and not to seek a new rent boost before January 1, 1949.

During the period between September 1 and the first of next year, a three-man tenants' committee will keep a check on costs of upkeep and attempt to effect "reasonable economies" of operation.

If by January, the costs are 2 per cent higher than the average for the period in the first six months of 1948, the committee is expected to agree to a reasonable increase in rental, the agreement stated.

The agreement was prepared by William A. Roberts and Francis J. Ortman, representing the VCHA, and Scott P. Crampton and Robert G. Dunn, jr., attorneys for tenants not in the cooperative. Rent Examiner James G. Tyson adjourned the hearing at noon and will take the compromise agreement under advisement.

New Amsterdam Granted 9.75 Rental Increase

An increase of 9.75 per cent was recommended yesterday by District Rent Examiner William F. Mansfield on 118 units of the New Amsterdam apartment house at 2701 14th st. nw.

The owner, Mrs. Gertrude W. Finley, had requested a rent boost of 20.8 per cent. Present rents range from $35 to $75 a month and under the recommended increase would be from $38.50 for a one-room and bath unit to $80.50 for a three-room and bath apartment.

Labor Draft Set for Israel Immigrants

Tel Aviv, Israel, Aug. 3 (AP).—A labor conscription order affecting immigrants who arrived after the beginning of the United Nations truce July 18 was announced by the Israel government today.

Terms of the truce prohibit military conscription of the immigrants but the new order allows the government to register them for draft labor.

Israeli leaders are expected to reiterate their demands for firmer U. N. action to halt truce infractions when Count Folke Bernadotte, the U. N. mediator, arrives here Wednesday for conferences.

Bernadotte met in Jerusalem today with Bernard Joseph, military governor of the Jewish section of the city. While they met intermittent sniper shots were heard and a huge column of black smoke poured from a store of burning oil in the no-man-s-land between the Arab and Jewish-held areas of the city.

Bernadotte said at a news conference after the meeting "the demilitarization of Jerusalem for which I am working might necessitate an international police force of about 2500 men to be dispatched by the U. N. to the holy city."

An Israeli government spokesman here said Capt. John Larsen of Sweden, a U. N. truce observer, has been expelled by the Jews and flown to Mafraq in Trans-Jordan.

The spokesman said the government previously had warned Bernadotte they would not admit any of three Larsen brothers, sons of the last Swedish consul-general in Jerusalem. The Jews accused the three of having mixed in local politics and with being pro-Arab.

U. N. Awaits Arrival Of Bernadotte Envoy

Lake Success, N. Y., Aug. 3 (U.P.).—With the Palestine armistice getting shakier by the hour, United Nations officials and diplomats today anxiously awaited the arrival of a special emissary from Count Folke Bernadotte, the Holy Land mediator.

Dr. Ralph Bunche, special adviser to Bernadotte, was scheduled to arrive in New York by plane tonight with a first-hand report on the tottering truce.

He was en route to U. N. headquarters from Rhodes as Israeli and Arab spokesmen warned the war would soon be resumed if the other side did not stop violating the cease-fire.

An American spokesman disclosed today that the United States would give full support to an Israeli bid for U. N. membership when the Jewish state makes formal application. Israel may submit its bid to the Security Council within the next few weeks and active American support would be a bitter blow to the Arab cause.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Aug. 3 (AP).—Grain futures prices bounced upward on the Board of Trade today after slumping to seasonal low points in many cases in the preceding session.

Wheat advanced as much as 3⅞ cents a bushel and corn 2⅝ cents. Profit-taking cut into the best advances, however.

An upward revision in the Government's estimate of possible wheat flour exports during the 1948-49 crop year was the main bullish influence. The Government also was reported to have increased its wheat-buying price at Kansas City, and the Southwestern elevator situation was reported easing slightly.

Wheat closed ⅝ to 2⅛ cents higher than the previous finish, September 2.23¾@2.23⅝; Corn was up ½ to ⅞, September 1.64⅞@1.64¾; and oats were ahead ⅛ to ¾, September 72⅛@72⅝.

Soybeans, aided by general commission house demand, closed up 3 to 6 cents, November 2.67. Rye closed 2½ to 3 cents higher, December 1.67½.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics in Washington estimated that wheat and flour shipments could go as high as 450 million bushels during the current crop year. This would be 75 million above the previous estimates.

New York Cotton

New York, Aug. 3 (AP).—Cotton futures were irregular in moderately active dealings today, with most traders cautious, pending the final Government crop forecast next Monday. Final prices were 15 cents a bale higher to 15 cents lower.

Persistent mill buying caused early firmness in the market, with gains extending to 60 cents a bale. New Orleans and local traders returned to the buying side on indications of a good volume of trade orders in the background. However, the market weakened in late trading influenced by a favorable Government weekly weather report which continued to support high crop ideas.

Average trade guesses on the crop continued to range around 13 million to 13,500,000 bales. There was considerable sentiment in the trade that future prices might sag to the loan level. The crop is moving early in Southern sections of the belt, while at the same time exports developed slowly, dealers pointed out.

Washington advices indicated that ECA allocations for third-quarter cotton purchases may be announced this week, with France, Italy and Belgium principal participants.

United Air Lines Halves Offering To Stockholders

New York, Aug. 3 (AP).—United Air Lines has cut in half the amount of its proposed offering of common shares to present holders.

The company said today it has amended its registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission, to cover the offering of 184,809 shares at $10.75 a share.

Originally, a total of 369,618 shares were to have been offered. W. A. Patterson, UAL president, said the company decided on the lesser amount due to altered market conditions since the original registration date, June 7.

United proposes to offer the shares to stockholders of record August 3 on the basis of one share for each ten held. Underwriting the offering is a group headed by Harriman Ripley & Co.

Indians' Right To Vote Upheld

By The Associated Press

Santa Fe, N. M., Aug. 3 (U.P.).—A special three-judge federal court ruled today that a New Mexico constitutional provision denying Indians the right to vote is contrary to the U. S. Constitution.

The decision in effect gives Indians the voting privilege in New Mexico.

The court ruled that New Mexico's law providing that "Indians not taxed" may not vote contravenes the 15th amendment of the U. S. Constitution.

2 Large Producers Lift Copper Price To 23½ Cents

New York, Aug. 3 (AP).—The first of the large producers advanced copper prices 2 cents a pound today to 23½ cents, delivered in the Connecticut Valley.

This was the first change in price by a large producer since March 4, 1947, when a 2-cent hike was made, and was the highest price since the 24-cent level in 1929.

The copper price boost followed a 2-cent hike in lead prices to 19½ cents and a 3-cent jump in zinc to 15 cents a pound last week.

Phelps Dodge Corp. took the lead today in openings its books for September orders at the new 23¼ cent quotation. Anaconda Copper also quoted that price. Kennecott Copper Corp., however, opened its September books at the old price of 21½ cents a pound.

Several small producers had adopted the higher price over the weekend. The top three producers—Anaconda, Kennecott and Phelps Dodge—withdrew from the market yesterday. Most producers reported all August production already alloted and sold.

One on the Aisle—

Fine Art Makes 'Pearl' Artless

By Richard L. Coe

IN "THE PEARL," the Playhouse has a film of moving simplicity. This is a John Steinbeck story of a Mexican pearlfisher, filmed in natural settings and eloquently played by a group of Mexican actors.

When the camera depicts a story of simple people in their natural habitat, the result can be engrossing, for nothing photographs so well as honesty. "Man of Aran" and "The Edge of the World," photographed on Britain's outer approaches, were two such films; "The Pearl" has some of those classics' simple appeal.

Whether Steinbeck actually was retelling a folk legend in "The Pearl of La Paz" I do not know, but such is the film's approach. It tells of a simple, poor, ignorant man who one day in his exhausting work comes upon a truly remarkable pearl, large, lustrous and the symbol of undreamed of wealth for him and his family.

His neighbors rejoice, shoot off their birthday rockets ahead of time in his honor and exhibit only the good fellowship of untainted simplicity. But the appraisers of the village, greedy for the profits they might make on so handsome a gem, do their best to undervalue the prize, then to steal it from him, finally to kill him.

All this he avoids with primitive strength, taking his wife and baby son with him on his flight from their clutches. Two men he has to kill in self-defense, the third tracks him down. A bullet meant for the fisherman kills the baby son who was to have benefited from the fortunes of his father, who saw in the pearl simply a means of getting an education for his offspring. The man and his wife return to the village and hurl the pearl into the sea.

This is, of course, a parable, much the same as was that splendid picture, "Treasure of Sierra Madre," but by its very nature it is less obviously so. It is less theatrical, less exciting. Its mood is lean simplicity.

There is artful artlessness in the delineation of the fisherman. When one marvels that he should evidently be so easily taken in by new friends, one recalls an early episode of the film. A scorpion approaches the baby in his crib, and while caution is obviously necessary, the father's reaction is slow, slower than the mother's. And it is the mother, the all-wise female, who urges him to destroy the pearl before it brings them the tragedy she accurately foresees.

The setting, so important to the credibility of the story, is superbly photographed by Gabriel Figueroa. Director Emilio Fernandez has told his story much in the manner a story is spoken; fadeouts become chapter endings, not the smooth flow of which the camera alone is capable.

One unavoidable handicap is the speech, perfectly understandable English, to be sure, and nothing to keep you from enjoying the picture. But were this moving pictures in the purest form, no dialogue would be necessary. The fact remains these are Mexican actors speaking English with their own accents; this does not come naturally, it is an intrusion on the ear, a reminder that this is sophistication in the guise of simplicity. Our insistence, since the talkies were born, that films also must speak, has made impossible the purely celluloid art which "The Pearl" might have been.

As it is, though, "The Pearl" is out of the ordinary and worth your while.

"THE PEARL." RKO release produced at Studio's Churubusco, Mexico City, by Oscar Dancigers. Screen play by John Steinbeck; Emilio Fernandez and Jack Warner from the original story by Steinbeck. Photographed by Gabriel Figueroa. Music by Antonio Diaz Conde. Directed by Fernandez. At the Playhouse.

IN BRIEF: Ticket information about Catholic University's fine Shavian evening, "Heartbreak House," at Michigan 6000, extension 358 . . . "Antoine and Antoinette," that delightful film about a couple of young Parisians, goes into a second week at the Dupont . . . "Years Ago," Ruth Gordon's autobiographical comedy, opens tonight at the Cross Roads Theater over in Virginia . . . "Goodbye Mr. Chips" is revived at the Little . . . The Beltsville Drive-In gets its first stage show tonight with the arrival of Cecil Campbell and his Tennessee Ramblers, who'll stay three night; tonight and Thursday the picture is "Louisiana." Friday, the boys plan a new stage program with "Tuxedo Junction" on the screen.

ADVANCED STAGE—It doesn't look very far along, but this model represents a good deal more than the original plans to Cary Grant and Myrna Loy in "Mr. Blandings Builds His Dream House," the comedy from that popular book which arrives today at Keith's.

Arundel Sets Zone Hearing

Annapolis, Md., Aug 3 (AP).—The Anne Arundel County Board of Commissioners today agreed to reopen a protested zoning decision and adopted an anti-billboard regulation.

County Zoning Commissioner Archibald C. Rogers set a re-hearing on zoning of the Ritchie-Revell highway intersection for October 5.

At that time, those who favor rigid roadside-beauty controls will ask the commissioners to reverse their action of last April in making the intersection a commercial zone.

Meanwhile the board voted not to issue any permits for gasoline stations or other businesses at the intersection, which leads to a planned Chesapeake Bay bridge and a proposed bayside State park at Sandy Point.

Billboards for the first time were brought under control in the county zoning regulations.

At Rogers' request, the boards adopted a new regulation, effective at once, providing:

"Dispiay signs shall be regarded as commercial structures and shall be permitted only in commercial zones. They shall be subject to the building permit laws as would any other structure. On dual highways, display signs in commercial zones shall only be permitted where said signs are used to advertise a commercial enterprise in being at the site of said sign."

3 Original Dances Presented By Evelyn Davis Pupil Group

By Paul Hume

A dance festival filled American University's Clendenen Gymnasium to overflowing last night.

Students of Evelyn Davis' summer course in dance presented three original dances, preceded by illustrations of technique and short original creation of their own.

Of the three premieres, "Stranger from Life" and "Honest Heart Wins Fair Maid" move at once into top position among successful works from Washington choreographers. Miss Davis devised "Honest Heart," which employs speech, all in the best gay 90's tradition. There are a villain, a sweet young girl, Honest John Trueheart (her real love) and her rich but misguided father.

All comes out well in the end, as the title promises, but in the achieving of the happy finale some expert dancing is contributed by Tom Pence and Margery Hunter. Bernard Shur, as the "heavy," stages one of the best fights with Pence we have seen outside a prize ring. The two men danced extremely well all evening, and at times, quite brilliantly.

"Stranger from Life" is a penetrating and accurate psychological account of the maturing process of a helpless introvert. Shying away from boys and girls as a child, she grows up to be a wallflower at school, timid at lovemaking, and lonely at the last. Elizabeth Burtner plotted the dance. Without an ounce of caricature, she has caught the spirits of childhood, adolescence, college, and above all, the pathos of loneliness in middle years. Again Pence and Shur shone, but there was some gifted work from William Townsend, who makes a mean hep-cat.

"Impending Cataclysm" promised more than it fulfilled. For this writer, it simply did not succeed in representing in any adequate way, the forces which drive people to mass action, mass fear, or mass courage. It is a subject fit for dance, but one most difficult of projection. Only in the episode where the crowd worked into a frenzy of unknowing fear did the movement seem to rise above the excellent calisthenic level which marked the opening demonstrations.

Virginia Csonka's scores for the three dances followed the path established by designs. In other words, her music for "Stranger" and "Honest Heart" was concise, pertinent, and a fine part of the whole. For "Cataclysm" she managed only occasionally to avoid the cliche.

The program, highly worth viewing, is to be repeated tonight, again at 8:45.

Patton Inches Out Ewell in Olympic '200' Finals

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

IT ISN'T QUITE CLEAR what's holding the A's up near the top unless 86-year-old Connie Mack, at his age, has mastered the Indian rope trick, but there they are and it's wonderful.

They may not win it, but right now the Athletics are the sentimental favorites and have evoked a groundswell of prayers that the Red Sox, the Yankees and the Indians never catch them. For 17 years Mack has been chanting "one more pennant" and for the first time since 1931 he has enabled his well-wishers to stand up and cheer.

POVICH

It's a surprise to Mr. Mack himself that the A's are up there. Four months ago in West Palm Beach, Fla., the most he was aspiring to was a place in the first division. "My team is awfully slow, not enough speed," he said sadly. "And we don't hit enough, but our pitching is fine." He thought Boston would win the pennant easily and he liked the Cleveland team, too, and the Yankees would always be tough.

And now he finds that one of the tough teams is his own A's who bounced on top the other day and are now threatening to take it all. Mack has discovered that his A's don't have so much to lick, after all.

ON PAPER, the A's don't look formidable except for their pitching. The curious thing is that they are on top in a year when their best pitcher, Phil Marchildon, is having a horrible time of it. The Marchildon case is a parallel to Cleveland's agonies in a year when Bob Feller isn't winning, yet the A's have been able to rise above it with more resiliency than the Indians.

What Mack does have is an enthusiastic infield and some other pitchers who have taken up the slack nicely. Young Joe Coleman, Dick Fowler and Lou Brissie are a potent one-two-three punch on the mound. The Yankee cast-off, Hank Majeski at third base, has blossomed as a tremendous run producer. Only Lou Boudreau is a more valuable shortstop than Eddie Joost and at first base young Ferris Fain may be the league's best.

You couldn't call Mack's outfield of Elmer Valo, Barney McCosky and Sam Chapman a power outfit, but the A's don't need as many runs as the other first division clubs. And with Buddy Rosar and Mike Guerra behind the bat they're two-deep in better catching than any rival club can show.

THE RED SOX are still the club that stacks up as the biggest pennant threat, despite their woeful pitching. After a period when Joe McCarthy didn't know where his next winning pitcher was coming from, Jack Kramer suddenly caught fire and reeled off 11 straight wins. But Kramer and Joe Dobson sum up McCarthy's pitching staff. Mickey Harris, Mel Parnell, Ellis Kinder and Tex Hughson and Dave Ferris are just names to the hitters.

But that Boston power is not to be fluffed off, and the easily overlooked item about the Red Sox is their solid defensive play. With the exception of young Bill Goodman at first base, Joe McCarthy has a smart-fielding club in every position, including left field where Ted Williams is showing a new interest in his job and displaying for the first time that he's not a bad outfielder.

The charm of the Red Sox is that they are the kind of club that can win the badly pitched games with consistency, unlike the Yankees who don't win when Joe DiMaggio isn't hitting, the Indians who don't have the power to offset poor pitching. With the Red Sox, McCarthy has much the same kind of batting power that carried him to pennants with the Yankees.

BUCKY HARRIS has much the same pitching troubles as McCarthy, without comfort of Boston's down-the-line hitting. Harris' winning pitchers start and end with Ed Lopat and Vic Raschi. Allie Reynolds hasn't won a ball game in a month, and has finished only one that he started in that span. Frank Shea, last season's wonder boy, has been of little help.

With Cleveland, the lustre of the early season pitching of Gene Bearden and Bob Lemon hasn't been wearing well and that pair has been getting its bumps along with Feller. Connie Mack may be having his own pitching disappointment in Marchildon, but the pitching problems of Lou Boudreau, McCarthy and Harris are even greater.

The A's didn't figure to be close to the league lead at this point, but there they are and you have to accept them as a good ball club. It's a thrilling come-back by Connie Mack. The bookies rate the Red Sox, Yanks and Indians as better pennant risks, but in any popularity poll the A's would sweep 45 of the 48 States.

Rugged Basketball:

U. S. Five Extended, 59-57, By Amazing Argentina Team

London, Aug. 3 (AP).—The United States basketball team that was supposed to find the Olympics a breeze ran into a cyclone instead today and barely escaped with a 59-57 victory over Argentina.

Behind 33-26 at the half and completely bewildered by the Argentines' surprising show of strength, the Americans simply bulled their way out of the jam.

Six times the lead changed hands in the hard-driving battle and the United States didn't go to the front to stay until only three minutes were left. A goal by the University of Kentucky's Alex Groza put the Americans ahead, 55-53, and they held the advantage despite the Argentines' rugged onslaughts.

Paige Beats Nats, 5-3; Tribe Leads

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Cleveland, Aug. 3.—Before 72,434, the largest crowd ever to witness a night game here, ageless Satchel Paige cranked up his squeaky right arm and pitched the penant-hungry Indians to a 5-3 triumph over the victory-hungry Nats tonight.

Cleveland's victory, coupled with Chicago's 2-1 upset of the Athletics, restored the Tribe to first place and dropped the A's to fourth in the dizzy American League flag fight.

Taking his first turn as a starting pitcher, the lanky Negro right-hander restricted the Nats to seven hits, three of them infield bleeders, before he was removed for a pinch-hitter in the seventh inning.

Satch Receives Ovation

Accorded a tremendous ovation by the whopping throng almost every time he moved, Satch also received a big lift from Catcher Jim Hegan who clouted a sixth-inning homer to break a 3-3 tie.

The one-time showboating Paige was a grim, determined performer this evening. He was deliberate and cautious on every delivery, as if his life depended on each pitch.

On two walks and Ed Stewart's triple, the Nats wrenched two runs out of him in the first inning. Four innings later, the Griffs upped the margin to 3-1, but after that, Satch was in complete command.

He struck out six, getting three in a row at one span.

Just like almost every other game between the Tribe and the Nats this year, tonight's was bitterly contested and had the usual disputes with umpires.

Nats Charge Ump

This evening the Nats descended en masse on Umpire Ed Rommel for allowing Larry Doby to score from first on Ken Keltner's double in the fourth. Manager Joe Kuhel and every player on the bench thought Keltner's wallop, a line drive against the fence in left field, had been interfered with by a spectator and that Doby should have been held up at third.

Wynn was belted out of the game in the next inning when Doby doubled to left to score Allie Clark, who had singled.

Thompson came in at this juncture and threw a single to Keltner, Doby racing in with the tying run.

For a moment in the first inning it appeared as if Paige's debut as a starting pitcher would be a happy one for the Nats.

Yost Greets Paige

Eddie Yost greeted his first pitch by lining out to left. Al Kozar and Gil Coan walked and Stewart followed with a triple to left center. Paige, however, cranked up and got Vernon and McBride on popups to wind up that offensive.

In the fourth, Wynn struck a blow for himself, a double to right, and scored a moment later following Kozar's infield hit and Coan's fly. After that the Nats got only one man to third.

Cleveland's final run in the seventh, scored off Walter Masterson, was the result of three walks and an infield out. Specs Klieman hurled hitless ball for the Indians in the eighth and ninth.

'Grand' Round
Guldahl's Sizzling 64 Sets Record

Chicago, Aug. 3 (AP).—Big Ralph Guldahl dropped a $1000 five-foot birdie putt on the last hole for a course record 64, eight under par, to jump into the first round lead of the $50,000 Tam O'Shanter Golf Tourney today.

The former National Open champion banged a five-under-par 31 on the front nine with an eagle 3 on the 485-yard second hole and was back in 3 under 33. A $1000 cash reward awaited the player to break the course record of 65 and Guldahl calmly rammed in his five-footer on the eighteenth carpet for a birdie 3 and a 64. Promoter George S. May then handed him a certified check. The record 65 had been matched previously by Len Dodson, Johnny Revolta, Johnny Bulla, Byron Nelson, Bobby Locke and also Guldahl in past tournaments.

Trailing Guldahl in today's opening round of the 72-hole All-American pro meet, which pays $5000 to the winner, were Dick Metz of Arkansas City, Kans., with a pair of 33's for 66, Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va., 32-35—77; little-known Elmer Reed, Atlanta, Ga., 34-33—67, and Herman Barron of White Plains, N. Y., the 1946 Tam champion, with two 34's for 68.

Promoter May, golf's King Midas, met the 36-year-old Guldahl on the eighteenth green, but kept the mutuel window closed. He usually makes fantastic bets on putts but this time he declared: "I didn't want to put any more pressure on Ralph than possible—so I kept quiet. I'm glad to see him establish 64 the course record and turn over a $1000 check to him."

In all 33 pros broke par in today's frolic and a dozen of them were under 70—the greatest assault ever made on the Tam O'Shanter par.

Mike Stolarik of Waukegan, Ill. topped the amateur division with an excellent 68 for a one-stroke lead in the All American Amateur side of the tourney.

Babe Zaharias rapped out a 4-under women's par 72 to match the course record in taking a four-stroke lead over the All-American women's field. Listed at 72 were Patty Berg of Minneapolis, who held the course record, and two amateurs, Grace Lenczyk of Newington, Conn., and Mrs. Eddie Bush of Detroit.

ARTHUR COOK
Big Shot of Olympics

Upset by D. C.'s Art Cook Marks Olympic Shooting

Bisley, England, Aug. 3.—Calm Arthur Cook, little 114-pounder from Washington, D. C., sprang one of the biggest upsets of the fourteenth Olympaid today when he won the 50 meter small bore rifle championship.

He had a near perfect score of 599 out of 600, same as Walter Tomsen of Flushing, N. Y. But the mechanical engineering major at the University of Maryland won the gold medal by scoring 43 bullseyes to 42 for Tomsen.

The two Americans' one-two finish was surprising inasmuch as several Scandanavian sharpshooters were touted as the men to beat. In third place was 46-year-old Swedish ace Jonas Jonsson with 597. Trailing was Norwegians Halvor Kongsjorden and T. Skredegaard, also with 597. Places were determined by the respective number of bullseyes.

"Cookie," baby of the American delegation at 20 years, was the calmest marksman on the range. He was modest in victory. "I'm delighted to have won," he said, "but I think Tomsen is a better rifleman."

'I'd Love to See Him,' Says Cook's Mother

At 1355 Montague st. nw., Mrs. Arthur E. Cook, the youngster's widowed mother was overjoyed at the news of her son's Olympic victory yesterday.

"I'd love to see him now," she smiled. "It's the first time in two years that he's won a major victory without me being there to root for him."

She said that he always took her on weekend trips to watch him compete. "You always bring me luck, you know," he said.

Mrs. Cook remembered that when Arthur gained the Olympic team, he said he wouldn't go to England unless she went with him. She wasn't able to go and finally convinced her son he ought to go.

Mrs. Cook said young Arthur took up rifle shooting when he was only 10 and in the Cub Scouts.

When Arthur attended McKinley Tech High, he joined the rifle team and came in contact with Thomas G. Arnold, a National Rifle Association instructor, who lives at 5368 51st pl., Hyattsville. Mrs. Cook credits Arnold with teaching Arthur most of what he knows about shooting.

"It couldn't have come to a nicer, quieter, cleaner boy," Arnold said yesterday.

"When Art came to me in 1942 for instruction at the indoor range at 10 G st. ne., he was a 'pinker,' a kid, who shot at bottles and cans and fence posts," Arnold went on.

"After a year or so, he learned to use proper equipment, and to analyze wind and light conditions, and even heat waves to his advantage.

Record Toss As U. S. Wins In Shot Put

By Gayle Talbot

Wembley, England, Aug. 3—Mel Patton's flying feet, the powerful right arm of Wilbur Thompson, and a scintillating group of male and female tank artists brought the United States four more victories and one world and one Olympic record today. Another near-capacity crowd saw Uncle Sam's athletes continue to dominate the 1948 renewal.

Patton, 23-year-old student at the University of Southern California, flashed to a thrilling victory over his teammate, Barney Ewell of Lancaster, Pa., by less than a yard in the final of the 200 meters, atoning for a humiliating loss in the 100 meters last week. His time was 21.1, and it was so close the timers caught Ewell in the same clocking.

A Record Heave

Thompson, also a student at USC, propelled the shot to an Olympic record of 56 feet 2 inches, nosing out two other Americans in that event and giving his country its seventh championship in track and field.

Completing an American sweep of the first three places, Jim Delaney, a high school math teacher in San Francisco, loosed a throw of 54 feet 8½ inches and Jim Fuchs, 20-year-old Yale halfback, did 53 feet 10½ inches.

All three American huskies shattered the Olympic record of 53 feet 1¾ inches established by Germany's Hans Woellke at Berlin in the 1936 games.

The men swimmers swirled through the waters of the Empire Exhibition Poolhouse to slash 5½ seconds off the world and Olympic record in the 800-meter relay. The record now is 8 minutes 46 seconds.

The foursome of Wally Ris, University of Iowa; Jimmy McLane of Akron, Ohio; Wallace Wolfe of Los Angeles, and Bill Smith of Honolulu traveled so fast that even the second-place Hungarian team cracked the old mark of 8:51.5. That mark was set by Japan at Berlin in 1936.

Tops in Diving

Mrs. Victoria Manalo Draves of Pasadena, Calif.; Zoe Ann Olsen of Oakland, Calif., and Patricia Ann Elsener of San Francisco are the three girls. They finished in that order atop the contestants in the springboard diving.

Patton fully lived up to the hopes of his college mentor, Coach Dean Cromwell of the U. S. track and field forces, in smashing through to win the 200 and complet his country's sweep of the sprints. He more than made up for his dismal fifth place in the 100 last Saturday.

The big Californian got a fine start, matched only by that of Ewell, the 30-year-old veteran. As the field of six finalists hit the head of the stretch, 100 meters from the tape, the two Americans were dead level, and it was plain that the victory lay between them.

Down the straightaway Patton slowly but surely gained on the stoop-shouldered little Negro. Inch by inch he thundered ahead, until, 20 meters from the finish, there no longer was any doubt he would win. Ewell, who had run second to Harrison Dillard in the 100, again had to be content with the runner-up spot.

Lloyd Labeach, the Panamanian, was a close third, and Herb McKenley of Jamaica, fourth. Both have done much of their sprinting as students in American colleges. Veteran Cliff Bourland of Los Angeles took fifth and Leonard Laing

6,000 Watch $30.80 Shot Take Sprint

Special Dispatch to The Post

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 3.—A gathering of 6000 witnessed a smashing, surprise triumph on the part of S. B. Webb's Majeto in today's 6½-furlong featured attraction, the Bester Purse, as the 1948 racing season got under way here.

Following the August 14 close of this 10-day period, the sport will pick up at Mariboro as the Marylad half-mile season swings into the half-way mark.

In accounting for her second score of the year, Majeto moved from off the pace, ran down the faltering Stanley and then held off by 2½ lengths the hard-charging White Easter.

Stanley lasted for minor honors by a nose over Double Duty.

A winning ticket was valued at $30.80 and time for the sprint was 1:20 4/5.

Marvin M. Greene's Old Harry won the first race on the program and those who had the son of Grand Time—Thekla coupled in the daily double with L. J. Lepper's Lightfoot Lass, successful in the second, received $86.20 for $2.

Joints Creak
Coaches Get Rough With 'Skins' Squad

Los Angeles, Aug. 3.—The air was rent by piercing screams of agony and rusty joints creaked like the door in "Inner Sanctum" today when the Washington Redskins had their first body contact work.

After only two comparatively mild sessions since the team pitched camp Sunday, Coach Turk Edwards and his sadistic staff assistants switched to a policy of sheer brutality.

The "oh, my aching back" routine was confined to line candidates. The request for horse liniment after the double workout was so great that Trainer "Doc" Bohler found it necessary to apply the soothing syrup with a Flit gun.

Not that backfield boys were pampered. Fullback Ed Quirk, for example, scaled 241 pounds before the morning drill and weighed in at 228 two hours later, according to Backfield Coach Wilbur Moore.

Mike Katrishen, a 220-pound rookie from Mississippi Southern, signed with the 'Skins as a tackle, but Edwards and Line Coach Tiger Walton put their heads together and decided the burly Russian would be more effective at running guard.

The Turk intends also to switch Weldon Edwards from tackle to guard when the titanic TCU star joins the club after the College All-Star-Chicago Cards game at Chicago August 20.

Redskin rooters would hardly recognize Ernie Williamson, the tackle from North Carolina, who joined the team last season. Since the end of the '47 campaign Ernie has grown an inch taller and gained 30 pounds. A fair guess of his tonnage would be about 260.

Gerry Wins 3-Set Upset Over Dubray

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 3 (AP).—Gerry Thomas, bespectacled Princeton University sophomore from Washington, D. C., stole the show today in the third round of the National Junior Tennis Championships as he upset seventh seeded Ernest Dubray, 7—5, 0—6, 6—2.

Thomas, a 1946 graduate of Woodrow Wilson High in Washington, was unseeded.

Another Washingtonian, third seeded Gilbert Bogley, downed Teddy Jax of Hamtramck, Mich., 6—2, 6—1. It was also the third win for the national interscholastic champion.

Steve Potts, sandy-haired, methodical Memphis star, surprised sixth-seeded Jerry Dewitts, Vallejo, Calif., 6—1, 6—8, 8—6.

Even first-seeded Dick Mouledous of New Orleans had his troubles, but the 1947 runner-up rallied in the final set to barely squeeze past Richard Squires of Bronxville, N. Y., 9—7, 4—6, 6—2 and reach the fourth round of play in the six-day scramble.

Second seeded Tony Trabert of Cincinnati, easily stopped Larry Harrison of Brookline, Mass., 6—0, 6—2.

Ed Wesely, another Washington hopeful in the junior division, fell by the wayside, a 6—4, 5—7, 6—3 victim of Julian Oates of Waco, Texas.

Meanwhile, two Washington representatives in the boys division, Tim Coss of Sidwell Friends School, and Teddy Rogers of Landon, advanced to the third round. Coss whipped Inman Fox of Nashville, Tenn., 6—1, 6—1. Rogers, Washington's boys champ, downed Ed Dailey of Harrisburg, 6—3, 6—3.

Tony Bradford of Washington was eliminated in the boys class, 6—3, 6—3, by Don Thompson of Jackson Heights, N. Y.

Star Cyclist Bounced From British Squad

London, Aug. 3 (AP).—Britain dropped Reg Harris, world amateur sprint cycling champion, from her Olympic team tonight because he disregarded an order to return to training quarters at Herne Hill.

Harris, considered a virtual certainty for an Olympic title, said he left the Herne Hill quarters last Wednesday.

"The noise interfered with my sleep, the food wasn't too good, and I decided I could train better at home," Harris said.

Firemen Aiming to Knock Each Other Out In Intercity Charity Baseball Game Tonight

Firefighters of Washington and New York will try to put each other out in the charity baseball game scheduled tonight at Griffith Stadium, starting at 8:30 o'clock. A crowd of 15,000 is expected to see the battle for the benefit of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club and other charities.

In pregame ceremonies, starting at 8 o'clock, Clark Griffith, president of the Nats baseball team, will march to the flag with the rival fire chiefs—Clement Murphy of the District of Columbia and Robert Murphy of New York. The Police Band as well as other bands will play, and Arch MacDonald, local sportscaster, will serve as master of ceremonies and announcer.

Among the celebrities will be Frank "Bring 'Em Back Alive" Buck.

Four baseballs autographed by Babe Ruth in connection with his life story due on the screen at the Warner Theater next week will be tossed to spectators.

Riding into town on a wave of 26 victories with only six defeats, the New York Smoke-eaters arrive this afternoon and promise to make things plenty hot for their opponents tonight. Henry M. Damm, manager of the team, will start Pitcher Ken Auer, right-hander, who formerly hurled for Fordham University and Binghamton of the Eastern League.

Ben Harrell, outstanding local tosser, will be on the mound for the D. C. crew. Harrell has won his last 12 games and at one point in the season stymied his opposition with a scoreless gap of 30 innings.

The Washingtonians have four hefty hitters starting in tonight's game who have been clouting over the .350 mark. Hal Krug, left fielder, has been pounding .370, while First Baseman Bill Moore has a batting average of .375. Barnie Wallerstein and "Scrappy" Vaughan are both hitting .368, which gives the visitors something to really worry about tonight.

GEORGE LARRICK will play short tonight for the Washington Fire Department when it meets the New York firemen at Griffith Stadium.

The local ladder-climbers took top honors in the Eastern Recreation League and will compete in the local city playoffs later this month.

Manager Morris Clarke and Coach George Burdine admit that tonight's contest is their roughest game of the year, but they insist they are not worried. "Our boys are used to working under heat," Burdine smiled. "We'll make out all right."

Maryland Lists Recreational Net Play Next Week

In conjunction with the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission's summer program, the Recreation Department announces the holding of their sixth annual tennis tournament. The tournament will be held for boys and girls from the 20 recreation centers throughout the metropolitan area. Preliminaries for girls will be held August 9, at 10 a. m., on the Bethesda Recreation Center courts, and the boys' preliminaries will follow on August 10, at 10 a. m., on the Jesup Blair Recreation Center courts.

Bub Worsham Cards 77 in National Golf

Lincoln, Nebr., Aug. 3 (AP).—Marvin (Bubby) Worsham led Washington, D. C.'s seven entries with 77 over the first 18 holes of qualifying play in the Junior Chamber of Commerce National Junior Golf tournament here today, but he was six strokes off the pace.

Leading the field with a one-under-par 71 was slim Mickie Gallagher, 18-year-old, from Augusta, Ga.; Billy Hooper of West Point, Va.; Bob Meek of Tulsa, Okla., and Don Finsterwald of Athens, Ohio, were tied for second with 72s.

Second best among the Washingtonians was 14-year-old Billy Wolfe, winner of The Washington Post Schoolboy championship, who had a 43—38—81.

Stanley Mouser had 47, 43—90. John Eisenger had 43, 40—83. Gene Wolfe, Billy's 16-year-old brother carded 43, 41—84. Bob Halcombe posted 49, 39—88. And Dennis Bolster had 43, 51—94.

Young Worsham, whose brother Lew won the National Open in 1947, was four-over-par with 40 on the first nine, and settled down to one-over-par 37 on the incoming nine.

Baxter and Sharkey In Mat Clash Tonight

Washington's favorite mat meanie, Laverne Baxter, will be back in a featured role when he tangles with Babe Sharkey, former champion, in the headline wrestling bout at Turner's Arena tonight at 8:45.

A special attraction introduces the latest masked sensation, the Golden Superman of Hollywood, in a 45-minute limit tussle with Benito Gardini.

President's Cup Leaders Meet

Officials and committee leaders of the President's Cup Regatta which opens here September 6, will meet at 12 noon today in the Congressional Room of the Willard Hotel to discuss plans for the important water classic.

James A. Councilor, jr., general chairman again this year, will preside. Eric Greenleaf, chairman of the powerboat committee, as well as Navy and Coast Guard officers who have officiated at many such affairs, will make reports at the luncheon.

Councilor will announce the new chairmen of the rowing, canoeing and swimming committees and plans for the regatta will be thoroughly discussed and all wrinkles thrashed out.

Schaefer Back On Lanham Track

Ed "Dutch" Schaefer, victorious in seven starts and as yet undefeated at the West Lanham Speedway this season, returns to the quarter-mile oval Friday night determined to break up the monopoly enjoyed by George Fonder in the weekly seven-event midget automobile action at 8:30 o'clock.

Fonder, top point scorer at Lanham for the third successive year, has scored grand slams in his last two starts there while sweeping three events on each program.

The Flying Dutchman registered a grand slam in his 1948 Lanham debut last May 28; won his opening qualifying heat before being eliminated from the competition due to mechanical difficulties a few weeks later.

OLYMPICS—From P. 17

Patton, Thompson, Tankers In Record Performances

of Jamaica sixth. Labeach was caught at 21.2.

None of the six came close to the Olympic record of 20.7 set by Jesse Owens as he completed his triple win at Berlin in 1936, but they looked like they were flying. The track, sodden by yesterday's long rain, could not have been fast.

As can happen in England, the temperature dropped violently during the night. Where the track and field crowds and the contestants had sweltered through the opening days, sweaters and topcoats felt good today. The athletes danced around between efforts, trying to keep up their circulation.

In additon to winning the 200 and sweeping the shot put, Coach Cromwell's forces produced such spectacular efforts in the opening heats of the 110-meter high hurdles as virtually to guarantee victory in tomorrow's final.

Scott Wins Heat

Craig Dixon of the University of California at Los Angeles set the fastest time of the day in winning his heat in 14.2 seconds. Bill Porter of Northwestern was right behind him with a clocking of 14.3. A. U. Triluzi of the Argentine, best of the outsiders, won his heat in 14.6.

Clyde Scott, the noted footballer now competing for the University of Arkansas, knocked down three barriers and yet managed to win in 14.8.

Don Finlay, the veteran Briton who took the Olympic oath for all the athletes at the opening ceremony last Thursday, fell heavily over the last hurdle in his heat and was eliminated. The crowd gulped and felt badly about it.

In the day's remaining events, the Americans had no luck whatsoever.

One of the day's most tragic figures was Bob McMillan of U.C. L.A., who was determined to qualify for the final of the steeplechase. He would have done it, too, had they not included a water hazard among the obstacles. Bob fell into it three times, the last time going out of sight, and he finally finished next to last, cold, wet and utterly discouraged.

The three Americans who were tossed out of the walking event were Fred Sharaga, Ernest Weber and Henry Laskau, all of New York City. They were pretty sore about it, as also were numerous Europeans who got the same heave-ho from the judges.

Though the track and field will continue through the week, it is all too plain now that the United States again will carry away the bulk of the honors. No other nation has the talent or the manpower to offer a serious challenge.

Where the United States tonight had seven championships tucked away, only Sweden among all the other 58 countries competing could boast more than one.

First World Record

The men swimmers now have three championships and two Olympic records to their credit. Additionally, the relay mark is the first at the current games to be a world record.

The Americans had the race to themselves most of the way and Hungary had little dispute in its drive for second. Sweden was in third place through three legs but when Alex Jany took over for France on the anchor, the Swedes soon dropped back to fourth.

The result of the women's dive was a minor surprise. Miss Olsen never had lost to Mrs. Draves prior to today and had beaten her for the national title three times.

Vicki was—and is—considered unbeatable in the tower diving and thus may be a double-crowned queen of the Olympics by Friday evening, when the high dive is completed.

The contest between the new champion and Zoe Ann was decided by the margin of 51/100 of a point—108.74 for Vicki and 108.23 for Zoe Ann after their eight dives.

Third place went to 18-year-old Patricia Ann Elsener of San Francisco, with 101.30 points.

Danish Girl Shines

While the Americans celebrated their sweep in the diving event, the Danish girls cheered one of their number—23-year-old Karen Margrethe Harup—to an Olympic record in a heat of the women's 100-meter backstroke. She clipped a full second off the old mark, set by Nina Senff of Holland at Berlin in 1936. Miss Harup was clocked in 1:15.6 and she has chances to better it in the semifinals and final.

American hopes for a sweep in the men's high diving were revived during the day. Miller Anderson of Ohio State University, runner-up to Bruce Harlan of Ohio State in the springboard event, returned as a spectator to the poolhouse, where he was hurt yesterday in a fall.

Anderson said he felt ready for the high diving starting tomorrow, but would have to check further with the American team doctors for a go-ahead.

Here are the Facts!

F. W. Woolworth Co. New York warehouses had a labor contract with Wholesale & Warehouse Workers Union Local 65, C.I.O., which expired on July 8, 1948.

Another union (AFL), claiming to represent a majority of our warehouse employees, petitioned the National Labor Relations Board for certification as the exclusive bargaining agent of our warehouse employees. The National Labor Relations Board took jurisdiction and ordered an election.

However, the name of Wholesale & Warehouse Workers Union Local 65, C.I.O., could not appear on the election ballot. This union has not complied with the anti-Communist provision of the law of our land—the National Labor Relations Act of 1947.

The petition of the AFL union is presently pending before the National Labor Relations Board. Officers of Wholesale & Warehouse Workers Union Local 65, C.I.O., immediately demanded under threat of a strike that we enter into a new contract with Local 65 even though they admit failure to comply with the provision of the law.

F. W. Woolworth Co. will bargain with respect to wages, hours, and working conditions of its warehouse employees with a union at any time when, and only when, said union is properly certified by the National Labor Relations Board.

F. W. Woolworth Co. shall continue to refuse to sign a contract with any union which is not certified by the National Labor Relations Board.

Marshall Appointed To New Post—General Manager of Maritime

MARITIME is trying something new in administration. It has appointed its first general manager who will have full charge of day-to-day operations. The five-man commission will now have more time for policy problems.

The general manager is Charles D. Marshall. He had been executive assistant to former Commissioner Richard Parkhurst. Marshall's office has been moved next to that of Chairman Smith's and the two officials will work together as a team.

SIGN-IN: Maritime also is trying something new to discourage lobbyists and others who are looking for special favors.

Hereafter, no one may call on any Maritime official or employe unless he first registers and publicly names the person, or persons, he wishes to visit. The commissioners are excluded from this restriction.

A visitors' office is being set up where callers will be sent to register. The system already is coming in for attack from people who do business with the agency.

RFC: James O. Cole, secretary of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, is resigning to go back home to Indiana to operate the family farm. (The lucky stiff.) Incidentally, it was this same farm that gave Emil Schram, former RFC chairman and now chairman of the New York Stock Exchange, his start in the business world.

JUSTICE: Irving Kaufman is reported to be planning to resign soon. He's special assistant to the Attorney General. For the past 18 months he has been investigating Washington lobbies. The evidence he presented resulted in the indictments of several lobbyists a month ago.

FTC: Commissioner Garland S. Ferguson of the Federal Trade Commission has been exempted from the 70-year compulsory retirement law by the President. His renomination is still pending before the Senate.

LOYALTY: The charges of disloyalty against Harry D. White, former Assistant Treasury Secretary, is an old story to the Treasury Department. And the same goes for most of its other former employes who have been accused before Capitol Hill hearings.

Treasury itself made long and detailed loyalty investigations of its former employes who were accused of aiding the Red spy ring. The file on one such worker is a foot thick. But apparently Treasury officials took the view that the evidence was insufficient to warrant dismissal.

Only one of the persons accused is still in the Treasury. However, his case is now before the agency loyalty board for decision.

PATENT OFFICE is being studied by a group of private management engineers. The agency is still far behind in its work. It's hoped that the efficiency experts will produce a workable plan to short-cut some of the agency's work.

AFGE: The campaign between the Burns and Yaden factions in the AFL's American Federation of Government Employes is nearing a showdown.

The union's big New York locals are reported to be lining up behind James Burns for reelection as president. The forces of James Yaden, a Civil Service official, are claiming victory.

If either candidate is pledged a firm majority of the votes before the convention, his opponent will be urged to withdraw. The AFGE hopes to avoid a public controversy. However, some rather bitter charges are now being made. The convention will be held late this month in Philadelphia.

PAY BILLS: A new pay raise bill for the 850,000 classified Federal workers will be introduced in the Senate in the next day or so by Chairman Langer of its Civil Service Committee.

As now written, the bill will call for an average increase of $270 to each of the classified workers. The $270 added to the recent $330 raise would give this big bloc of workers an average raise of $600 each.

A Langer bill introduced yesterday would give postal employes an additional $150 each to give them a total increase of $600 since July 1.

The classified bill proposes a broad overhauling of the job-fixing Classification Act. It would set up 20 new grades with no overlapping of salary.

A woman walking on crutches, identified as Miss Mary Armstrong, about 55, of 107 H st. nw., was killed last night when struck by a Capital Transit bus at 18th and K sts. nw.

Police listed the driver as Francis V. Hart, 32, of 100 V st. ne. Identification in the woman's pockets indicated she was a vendor of pencils, razors and chewing gum.

The bus, on the R-4 route, was turning right into K from 18th st., when the left side struck the woman as she was walking on her crutches near the southeast corner of K st., police said. She fell, apparently under the left rear wheel, police said, and was dragged about 5 feet.

A niece said Miss Armstrong had been a street vendor of gum, pencils, and razor blades at 7th and O sts. nw., and occasionally at Union Station, for more than 15 years.

She was pronounced dead on arrival at Emergency Hospital.

Earlier, three children were injured, two of them seriously, in District traffic accidents yesterday.

Arnold Knupp, 5, of 1636 Lang pl. ne., was admitted to Casualty Hospital in critical condition with head, chest and abdominal injuries and possible internal injuries.

Police said the boy was playing in the street near his home, when he was struck by a taxicab, operated by Edward H. Shoemaker, 51, of 1021 East Capitol st.

William Crawford, 14, of 643 K st. sw., received a possible skull fracture, scalp lacerations and possible fracture to the right wrist and left leg when struck by a truck at 11th and F sts. sw.

The boy was admitted to Emergency Hospital in serious condition. Police charged the truck driver, Frank Quick, 25, of 619 U st. nw., with failing to yield the right of way to a pedestrian.

William Patrick, 10, of 908 1st st. sw., was treated at Providence Hospital for head injuries received when he was struck by an auto, which was backing out of a driveway in the unit block of K st. sw. Police listed the driver of the car as Arthur P. Hewlett, 24, of 3541 Brothers pl. se.

Barking Guns, Violent Death

Story of 48th, 49th Slayings Of Year Unfolded at Inquest

By Jean Reiff
Post Reporter

Two stories of bloodshed and violent death unfolded at the District morgue yesterday.

The stories were bared at coroner's inquests in two of the three murders Washington has recorded during the first two days of this month.

The District has had 49 slayings so far this year, 70 last year and 106 the year before.

A man and a woman had been shot to death, the first because of petty bickering, the second because of jealousy. The coroner's jury, after hearing eye-witness accounts of the two shootings, bound over another man and woman for grand jury action. Both are now at the District Jail.

Tells of Shooting

The story of a petty quarrel was told by witnesses to the fatal shooting of Zeb Jeffries, 29, of 1505 Vermont ave. nw. In this case, the defendant, Alvin Nathaniel "Dynamite" Johns, 23, of fixed address, described how he shot four times at Jeffries, who, he claimed, had an open penknife in his hand.

"Everytime I shot him, he still kept coming at me with the knife," Johns said. "When he fell over, I ran up the alley and threw away the gun. I was scared."

Johns said the argument started when Jeffries dropped a lighted cigarette in his (Johns') shirt pocket.

Witnesses to the Monday night shooting on a crowded sidewalk beside the Brass Rail, 1739 7th st. nw., told how Johns apparently was sleeping on the fender of a parked car, when Jeffries decided to arouse him.

"Zeb said he wanted to wake up Dynamite so that police wouldn't bother him," said Evelyn Turner, of 915 U st. nw., a friend of Jeffries.

"When Zeb went over there, Dynamite jumps up from the fender and says 'I'm tired of your meddling. I'm going to kill you.' Then he cursed and shot once in the air. Zeb pulled out a knife and Dynamite shot him two times Dynamite started running but he turned around and shot Zeb again."

Police said Johns was arrested a short while later near 14th and S sts. nw. He told them he carried the gun because he was afraid of a gang of fellows, who hang around 7th and N sts. nw., they said.

The story of jealousy was told by witnesses of the Monday afternoon shooting of Hattie Hutchinson Lavender, 35, in her first floor apartment at the Dunbar Hotel, 2015 15th st. nw.

They described how Mrs. Lavender walked into a spitting automatic, even while she held out a drink of gin to Cloteil Cox, 37, of 1314 V st. nw., who held the gun.

They told how Mrs. Cox, after firing the first two shots that felled Mrs. Lavender, waved the automatic pistol in the air and cried:

"She wrecked my life. She took my man. Don't touch her or I'll kill you. Don't call police. I'll call them myself, but first I'm going to make sure that Hattie is dead."

Then they told how she fired two or three more shots at Mrs. Lavender, who lay face down on the floor. One of the witnesses, Marie A. Taylor, who also lives at the Dunbar Hotel, described how she locked herself in the bathroom in fear for her life and cowered there until police arrived.

Through the inquest, Cloteil Cox sat stolidly, her face unmarked by emotion of any kind. She did not take the stand. She did not glance at Casey Lavender, a steward in the Navy who recently married Hattie. He walked into the morgue during the hearing after arriving from Norfolk, Va. Her expression did not change when the jury brought in the verdict she apparently expected.

Traffic Kills 2 Baltimore Men

Two Baltimore men were killed instantly yesterday afternoon in two separate traffic accidents, both involving tractor-trailers in Maryland and Virginia.

Houston Creighton, 37, Baltimore soldier stationed at Andrews Field, was killed at 5 p. m. when his automobile collided with a tractor-trailer on Maryland State Route 301, south of route 50, in Ann Arundel County.

The truck driver, Fred Caldwell, 19, of Brandywine Hts., Md., was being held last night on a charge of manslaughter and reckless driving, county police at Annapolis reported.

Carmelo A. Rifici, 34, of Baltimore, was killed while riding as a passenger in a tractor-trailer which overturned four miles west of Port Royal, in Caroline County, at 5:30 p. m., Virginia State Police at Culpepper, Va. reported. Details were not available last night.

D. C. Drafts Curb on Child Pinball Play

Playing of pinball machines by children under 17 during school hours would be prohibited in new regulation being prepared for consideration by the District Commissioners.

The new regulations are being drafted by the corporation counsel's office to cover supervision and inspection of the District's 2000 pinball games. They will provide for a $12 annual inspection fee.

The draft of the new regulations includes prohibition of pinball playing by children between 8 a. m. and 3 p. m. on school days and also would prohibit their remaining long near the devices.

License Superintendent Chatham Nottingham said the intent of this rule was to keep youngsters from spending lunch money on the games.

The regulations, which would be made part of the police laws, would provide a $300 fine or 90 days in jail for persons convicted of permitting children to play during the specified hours.

Nottingham is now studying the regulations, which Assistant Corporation Counsel Chester H. Gray has been preparing for several months.

Attempt will be made to expedite final approval by the Commissioners in time for the fall opening of school.

Parent-teacher groups and citizens' organizations have long advocated such regulation of the pinball machines.

Cab Driver Starts Campaign Here For Higher Fares

A District taxi driver started a campaign yesterday to steer his fellow cabbies into a move for higher fares.

The cabbie, Irving Schlaifer, had printed at his own expense 5000 pamphlets urging rate increases for Union Station runs and new schedules for shared and group rides.

With the slogan, "You are operating a business, operate it with business-like figures," the pamphlets contained statistics of the proposed changes and urged taxi drivers to back up the plan by writing to the Public Service Commission.

Bank to Run Herald as 'Collector'

Riggs National Put In Charge Pending Final Disposition of Patterson Estate

Business affairs of the Washington Times-Herald will be directed temporarily by the Riggs National Bank, collector of the estate of the late Mrs. Eleanor Medill Patterson, under terms of an order signed yesterday by Associate Justice Edward M. Curran in District Court.

The order, issued in accordance with the District Code, authorized the bank, as collector to operate the business "for a period of not exceeding one year after July 24, 1948," pending proceedings for the admission of Mrs. Patterson's will to probate and the final disposition of the estate.

The petition filed in behalf of the Riggs bank, asking authority to control the newspaper temporarily, stated that while no appraisals by court agents have been made, the Times-Herald is worth "somewhat in excess of two million dollars."

The petition, signed by Sidney F. Taliaferro, vice president and trust officer of the bank, declared that the newspaper has been operating at a profit and that for the last several years prior to the death of Mrs. Patterson the annual profit was in excess of $250,000.

The petition estimated the monthly overhead of the business at about $700,000.

The document went on to state that "if for any reason said will should not be admitted to probate .... it would be of advantage to the estate to have said business continued as a going concern."

The petition further stated that the bank believes it can operate the business at the same profit and that the petitioners believe that if the business is kept going they could get a better price were it found necessary to eventually sell the newspaper under direction of the court.

The will left the newspaper to seven top executives.

Appointment of a collector stemmed from failure of Countess Felicia Gizycka, Mrs. Patterson's daughter and heir-at-law, to waive such appointment thus holding up action on admission of the will to probate.

Lloyd K. Garrison, attorney for the countess, has said that possibilities of legal action to break the will are being explored.

Bell Estate Is Valued At $217,032

Mrs. Grace Hubbard Bell, widow of Charles J. Bell, one-time president of American Security and Trust Co., left an estate of $217,032, it was learned yesterday. She died July 16 in New York where she had made her home for many years.

Her will filed in District Court designated the bulk of the estate to go to her only son, Robert Bell of New York City. Individual bequests are made to relatives, friends and servants.

Her two stepdaughters, Mrs. Helen A. Ripley and Grace R. Fortescue, will be given their choice of two diamond brooches of unknown value. If the stepdaughters cannot agree on their choices, the executor, the American Security and Trust Co., is to make the selection.

Mrs. Bell, who was 86 at her death, was for many years the mistress of the Twin Oaks estate on Woodley rd. nw.

No Dull Moments

Cabbie Stops Suicide Leap, Aids Police

WILLARD STEINBERG

If your life lacks excitement, try driving a cab for a few weeks.

Willard Steinberg, husky 31-year-old Navy veteran who drives Yellow Cab No. 84, promises you'll have few dull moments.

Something's always happening to Steinberg.

Like early yesterday when he stopped a man from jumping from Key Bridge and a few hours later rounded up two robbery suspects.

Steinberg, who lives at 343 Parkland pl. se., was carrying three passengers across Key Bridge to Virginia at about 2:10 a. m. when he saw a man climbing over the bridge railing. The hacker slammed on his brakes and ran to the man.

Steinberg is no little man. He stands 6 feet 1 and weighs 190 pounds. But the man who was determined to jump from the bridge was 6 feet 2 and weighed 220.

"He had arms like steel," said Steinberg. The cab driver grappled with the man, later identified as Leonard F. Wendell, 30-year-old truck driver who has no known address, and finally subdued him with an arm lock.

"Why don't you leave me alone," panted the would-be suicide. "I've lived too damed long already."

Steinberg got the man back to his cab and called the Yellow Cab night dispatcher on his two-way radio.

Signals for Aid

"Signal three," said Steinberg tersely.

This is the cab company's code for an emergency. The dispatcher immediately instructed all other cabs to stay off the air and then notified police and relayed to them Steinberg's report of the trouble.

But while Steinberg was busy with the radio, Wendell again broke free and dashed back to the bridge rail. The cabbie and a male passenger overtook him and held him until police arrived.

Wendell was taken to the Seventh Precinct. Sometime later a policeman who was inspecting the cell block found him fashioning a noose with his shoe laces. He was hurriedly rushed to Gallinger Hospital for observation. Police said Wendell has had domestic troubles and also had been sought by police on a charge of simple assault against a girl.

Man Robbed

After police had taken him away, Steinberg continued on to Virginia and delivered his passengers. He made about four more runs. Then 4 a. m. found him driving alone by Lafayette Park.

A young man, who later identified himself to police as Thomas Hitchell, 23, of Bayonne, N. J., a student at Catholic University, raced up and jumped in Steinberg's cab.

"Follow that cab," he ordered, pointing to a Lincoln cab moving down the street. "The two men in it just robbed me."

Steinberg started after the other cab, meanwhile calling his dispatcher and giving "Signal three" again. Police picked up the trail and at 10th and D sts. nw., a headquarters cruiser pulled in front of the Lincoln cab and forced it to the curb.

Detectives arrested the two youths who were riding as passengers in the cab. They were identified as Richard Morris, 19, a metal worker, and George Taylor, 18, a plasterer, both of 30 Bates st. nw.

Hitchell told police the two youths accosted him while he was waiting for a bus and asked him for a match. When he reached for matches, he said, they grabbed him and robbed him of his wallet containing $2 and a sheaf of papers.

"Those papers were a thesis I have been wroking on for two years for my master's degree," said Hitchell. "I just couldn't lose them."

Morris and Taylor were charged with robbery. Taken before Judge Armond W. Scott in Municipal Court later in the day, they were held for action of the grand jury in bond of $1500 each.

A native of St. Paul, Minn., Steinberg has been driving a cab off and on for about eight years. He was in the Seabees for three years during the war and participated in the Marshall and Gilbert Islands campaigns.

He is planning to enroll for a course in business administration at the next semester of George Washington University. But he'll still keep driving his cab at night, he says.

He doesn't want to miss the excitement.

Two Greater Washington women were among contestants last night in the final round for the mixed-team-of-four title of the twenty-second semi-national and world bridge championship tourney in Chicago. They are Mrs. Edward P. Cotter, 2480 16th st. nw., and Mrs. Frederick Eberson, 4310 Lynnbrook dr., Bethesda, Md.

Cain Attacks Federal Loan To Hike D. C. Workers' Pay

Prospects Fade For Pay Increase Legislation at Special Session

A proposed $5,800,000 Federal loan to provide 17,000 District employes with a pay raise ran into renewed Capitol opposition yesterday amid fading prospects for any D. C. pay relief legislation this session.

Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) took the Senate floor to attack the loan bill introduced Monday by Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.) and two Senate colleagues.

Johnston, who blocked by a filibuster last session the House-passed District revenue measure, continued adamantly opposed to a 2 per cent sales tax as another means of providing relief.

Dirksen Gets No Encouragement

Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.), who first introduced the loan bill in the House and has been pushing for House and Senate action, has received little or no encouragement from the leadership.

Cain in his Senate speech said "a full and understandable measure of concern" prevails throughout the District because wage and salary increases were not approved when the Federal pay act was passed last June.

"Most people are in agreement that District employes are entitled to the increases," he said. "I share that sentiment. Some people feel so keenly about the matter that they think the increases should be granted by reducing needed services, or by a reduction in the personnel force, or through a loan from the Federal Treasury. I am quite properly in strong opposition to any of these approaches."

Fears 'Inexcusable Injury'

Cain told the Senate his District fiscal affairs subcommittee, after weighing all of the proposed moves, thinks the proposed non-interest bearing loan "is undeserving of favorable consideration or action, and would result in serious and inexcusable injury to the District and its employes if enacted into law."

He introduced into the record a statement he made to the press last Saturday saying a non-interest bearing loan to the District would set a bad precedent and "would obviously result in curtailing or eliminating needed public services or by reductions in personnel."

Falls Church School May Be Condemned

The three-story stone and brick Madison School in Falls Church faces condemnation as a result of 15-to-20-foot cracks discovered in a rear wall of the building, it was revealed yesterday at a meeting of the Fairfax County School Board.

The discovery was made by N. G. Daavid, Falls Church building inspector, during an inspection. Daavid advised the board that condemnation proceedings would be initiated unless suitable repairs were made.

Members of the school board, accompanied by State and county architects will examine the structure today at 2:30 p.m. Last term the school, built in 1928, had an enrollment of about 600 students, George T. Reeves, board member, said.

The school board authorized four Quonset huts to be erected at the Groveton Elementary School and one at the Dunn Loring Elementary School to house an overflow of pupils expected in the fall.

The board also set the tuition rate for nonresidents at $100 for elementary school pupils and $150 for high school pupils. This compares with $60 and $108 last year.

Streets and Basements Flooded

Washington Area Awash in Spasmodic Downpours

Rock Creek Waters Flood Home; Occasional Showers Forecast for Today

Spasmodic downpours yesterday afternoon floated two unused telephone poles into a street, washed out a bridge, popped manhole covers open and flooded basements and yards throughout Greater Washington.

Bethesda and Takoma Park, with near cloudbursts, bore the brunt of sudden rains scattered over the District area.

Police at Bethesda reported 21 telephone calls about flooded basements.

Takoma Park, East-West hwy., was closed to traffic for half an hour at Maple ave. because of surging waters.

Streets Barricaded

Several residential streets in the Bethesda area had to be barricaded and a flash flood at Eastern ave. and Stanford st. also was reported.

Two unused telephone poles were washed into Bradley blvd. at Broadmoor st.

Takoma Park police said a deluge of calls for aid reached them between 4:15 and 5:20 p. m.

The station house was on the edge of a pool 3 feet deep.

The bridge at Lincoln and Maple aves. was washed out, and Sligo Creek pkwy., from Colesville rd. to New Hampshire ave., was under a foot of water when the nearby stream went over its banks.

At the home of Dr. and Mrs. Bernard Berliner, 8138 W. Beach dr., in the District, rising waters of Rock Creek flowed into a basement recreation room, floating a piano. Nearby backyards also were flooded, some to the depth of six feet.

At the Peace Cross in Bladensburg, Prince Georges County police had to reroute traffic after water overflowed from the Anacostia branch and covered the highway to a depth of two to three feet.

Occasional showers were forecast for today with highest temperatures near 84.

Yesterday the mercury hit 85 degrees at 2:52 p. m. Mean reading for the day was 78, just one degree above normal.

4 Playful Kittens Baffle 5 Firemen

Rushed to the Catholic University campus by an emergency call yesterday, five strapping members of Fire Rescue Squad No. 2 saw their duty and dauntlessly they did it.

* * * * * * *

Down they went on hands and knees. And made like cats. For 45 minutes. All because four kittens were scurrying like mice in, about and through ventilation tunnels near the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception.

Outside, Mamma Cat waited patiently.

Then the men of No. 2 wriggled around the tunnels, only to have the kittens dart to another part of the labyrinth.

But even a fireman must recognize when he's licked. Under command of Lieut. Ray Turner, the squad effected a strategic retreat —leaving the kittens to tire of their sport and rejoin Mamma.

Tabby Awaits Her Brood

Woman Driver Guilty

Mrs. Mattie L. Moneymaker, 31, 665 F st. ne., was convicted of six traffic offenses yesterday and held under $500 bond for sentencing August 25 in Municipal Court. She was convicted of driving with a suspended permit, speeding, changing lanes without caution, going the wrong way on a one-way street and passing two stop signs —all at about 2 a. m. yesterday. Two motorcycle policemen said they saw her at 8th and F sts. ne., gave chase and stopped her near 6th st. and Morris pl. ne.

Year for Gun-Toting

Joseph L. Sewell, 34, of 412½ M st. nw., was given a year in jail yesterday for carrying a .32 caliber pistol, fully loaded, without license. When asked by Judge Ellen K. Raedy where he obtained the weapon, Sewell replied, "I bought it from a boy."

Ambulance Regulations

Two changes in the regulations covering the operation of the District's 24-hour emergency ambulance service were approved by the District Commissioners yesterday.

The changes will permit any ambulance in the District to transport communicable disease cases. Previously this was limited to Health Department vehicles. The second change authorized any Fire or Health Department ambulance to take an emergency case to the nearest hospital, rather than to previously designated emergency hospitals.

Mother's Trial Thursday

A 19-year-old unwed mother charged with abandoning her 5-day-old infant in a woods near Rockville, Md., last Sunday, will be tried in Rockville Police Court Thursday at 9:30 a. m.

The mother, Thelma Tibbs, daughter of a Germantown (Md.) laborer, is being held under $500 bond on a charge of deserting a minor child.

The baby was recovered after it had been exposed to rain for 5 hours. Officials at Montgomery County General Hospital last night described the infant's condition as "fair."

Montgomery School Superintendent Offers Four Major Changes in Teaching Practice

125 Attend Workshop First in County on Curriculum Reform

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Several changes in teaching methods in Montgomery County schools were suggested yesterday by County School Superintendent Edwin W. Broome at the opening session of the first county postwar workshop on curriculum reform.

Dr. Broome, who said that he would be the last person to defend any school practice now being used if a better practice can be found, outlined four major changes proposed for the new school year to the approximately 125 persons who attended the workshop.

He said the proposals "presuppose a greater degree of cooperation than the schools have ever enjoyed before."

Gist of Dr. Broome's proposals were:

1. Identify curriculum content by subject and grade, breaking down, for instance, the social sciences into geography, history, etc., and giving marks on proficiency in each. This system would provide more uniformity from grade to grade and from school to school within the county, he said.

Current practice has been to identify material studied on subjects, such as social sciences, only by primary and elementary grades, rather than grade-by-grade.

2. Establish uniform use of textbooks throughout the county school system, supplemented by other aids to learning.

Uniform Standards

3. Use uniform standards for achievement, and advise parents three or four weeks in advance of the kind of standard which his child should strive to reach on each project.

Dr. Broome added, however: "No parent has the right to take from his child his self respect when he is unable to reach the standard."

4. Stress greater coordination between parents and the school personnel in teaching the child classroom organization, part of which is learning the use of research facilities.

Another speaker, Mrs. Stella Werner, of 6887 45th st., Chevy Chase, said she hoped Dr. Broome would not lose track of the main objective of the school system—to teach the children how to live.

SPEAKERS—Dr. Edwin W. Broome, Montgomery County school superintendent, talks to Miss Grace Alder, elementary supervisor, Maryland State Board of Education, who told about setting up workshops among parents and teachers of the State, at yesterday's meeting in Rockville on the county schools

Mrs. Werner is a county political news commentator.

"Our present system of education did not produce people who have been capable of tolerance," she said. "The Supreme Court has ruled that we cannot teach religious education as such. But we must think of the child as a person with a soul."

Mrs. Werner said Dr. Broome had been an inspiration to her in the past. She added she was "opposed to parents who show their children they are disgruntled with the school system."

"We can take a great deal from our children when we deprive them of the satisfaction of thinking they can learn," she said.

Praise for Dr. Broome

John McIntire, 17 Carvel rd., Westmoreland Hills, president of the Westbrook Elementary School, P-TA, said:

"Dr. Broome is allowing us to participate in the operation of the county school system at a level we can understand."

McIntire is a member of the appeal board of the Office of Contracts Settlement, attached to the Treasury Department.

A discordant note was raised by J. Henry Hiser, 9300 Georgetown rd., Bethesda. He is a member of the group which last spring asked for more emphasis in the three R's and less on modern teaching methods. Hiser is owner of the Hiser-Bethesda Theater.

Said he: "Eighty per cent of the people in the Bethesda Rotary Club are taking their children out of local schools and sending them elsewhere. We are sending our children to school to learn to read, write and spell and learn geography. The school is not to take the place of the home and the church. And when parents take their children out of school, there's something wrong somewhere."

Another workshop discussion is to be held tonight at 8 o'clock at the Richard Montgomery High School for those unable to attend yesterday's session. A conference also will be held August 12 at 1:30 p. m. and on August 13 at 8 p. m.

At the close of yesterday's discussion Dr. Broome emphasized his purpose had been simply to "outline the main channel" of ideas for curriculum change. He said further workshop discussions would be used to develop other ideas.

Slimming on a Budget

Watch the Fats to Lose 10 Pounds This Summer

This is the third of a series of six articles on "Summer Slimming" with budget menus by Diet Expert Ida Jean Kain.

By Ida Jean Kain

SLIMMING is a natural in the summer. The season's foods are low in calories, your appetite has lost some of its sharp edge . . . and now's the time to ease off two pounds a week with no trouble at all. Unless, of course, you insist on dressing up summer fare with fattening trimmings.

IDA JEAN KAIN

If you're really serious about this business of winding up the summer 10 pounds slimmer, you'll go right down the line of your favorite dishes and drinks and give those trimmings the red pencil.

All fresh fruits and vegetables are low in calories—have generous servings. But skip the rich cream on the fruits. How do you eat berries and peaches without cream? Sprinkle a teaspoon of sugar on the moist fruit and let set for a time . . . m-m-m, delicious!

Sure you can have corn-on-the-cob—one medium size ear is only 50 calories. Have two ears, but keep the butter down to a half pat, one fourth inch thick, which adds a mere 25 calories more. Never drown any vegetables in butter. If you'll cook them quickly, in a very small amount of water, they'll retain their natural flavor and you won't want butter. And leave off the cream sauces—most summer vegetables are very low in calories until cream sauce is added.

It's mayonnaise and French dressing that pile calories on the salad vegetables. Today's menus include the recipe for a special salad dressing. It's delicious for only 30 calories per tablespoon.

Watch the sugar. Try using just half as much as you ordinarily use. Iced tea sweetened when it's hot doesn't require as much. It won't be long before you'll prefer fruits and beverages with less sugar. Appetite is largely habit.

These low cost, summer-slimming menus delete fattening trimmings.

Inter-American Commission Leaders Take Tour

Miss Minerva Bernardino, chairman, and Senora Amalia de Castillo Ledon, vice chairman of the Inter-American Commission of Women, will leave Ciudad Trujillo today on the first lap of an official tour on behalf of the commission.

Senora de Castillo Ledon, outstanding feminine leader of Mexico City, joined Miss Bernardino last week at her home in the Dominican Republic for a short stay. The two will fly to Argentina, with stopovers in Panama, Peru and Chile, to confer with commission representatives before landing in Buenos Aires August 10. En route home they will visit Uruguay, Brazil, perhaps also Bolivia and Paraguay. Miss Bernardino will return to Washington in September.

Miss Bernardino explained that the trip to Argentina is being made upon special invitation of the government, extended through Senora Eva Durate de Peron, First Lady of Argentina. In Argentina Miss Bernardino and Senora de Castillo de Ledon will confer with government officials, feminist leaders as well as with Senora de Peron on problems concerning the forthcoming general assembly, scheduled for next spring in Buenos Aires.

After the organic statute of the commission was approved at the Bogota conference recently, it was decided that the annual assemblies of the commission should rotate among the 21 countries that compose the organization. Argentina was the first country to extend an invitation to the commission, according to Miss Bernardino.

Ecuador's Ambassador Is Host

Cocktail Party Honors Dr. Quevedo

By Marie McNair

THE Ambassador of Ecuador and Senora de Dillon's cocktail party yesterday proved, if nothing else, that not EVERYBODY has left town after all.

Hastily arranged in honor of Dr. Antonio Quevedo, long time in Ecuador's diplomatic service, the party got together a group of the South American Diplomatic Corps, just a snatch from resident society and the State Department.

Dr. Quevedo, who served as his country's envoy to England, Switzerland, France and Peru, who presided at the Council of the League of Nations after World War I, will leave today for New York after a brief visit to his brother-in-law and sister, the Commercial Counselor of the Ecuadorian Embassy and Senora de Garcia.

Home From Holidays

Most of the guests there yesterday were either leaving for a holiday or had just returned from one. The Honduran Ambassador and Senora de Caceres will go Friday to Atlantic City for several weeks, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wilds—Bonnie Wilds in a low cut black dinner frock—were just back from Connecticut where they have a house.

The Colombian Ambassador, Dr. Gonzalo Restrepo, was there without his wife, who is away, and I saw the Ambassador of El Salvador and Senora de Castro talking with the Dominican Ambassador and Senora de Thomen.

Mrs. John Farr Simmons, the former Carolyn Thompson of Washington, whose husband is our Ambassador to Mexico, brought her mother, Mrs. Huston Thompson. Mrs. Simmons was wearing a ballerina frock of black taffeta with a lace top, her mother in pale beige with a scarlet poppy perched on her hat.

Black Is Popular

Summer black and summer pastels were about equally popular with the ladies yesterday. Senora de Dillon had chosen her favorite brown, pretty with her chestnut hair and warm brown eyes. Her frock was a golden brown and white print in spidery design made with a white panel from neckline to the hem.

I envy Mme. Nehru, wife of the Indian Minister, who's unfettered with the problem of what to wear. With a variety of saris to choose from, she wore yesterday a beautiful deep red one edged with a delicate pattern in gold.

Ray Muir, Assistant Chief of Protocol, just back from his vacation was saying "hello" again, and others there were Paul Daniels, until recently with the State Department, and now the United States representative to the Pan American Union; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dearborn, Mr. and Mrs. George West and Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Mills.

Around the buffet, which offered all sorts of tempting delicacies, I saw Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Wittemore and pretty Senora de Rivero with her husband the Second Secretary of the Cuban Embassy; Maj. Harry Haller, who is going up to New York today.

Former Janet Newbold to Marry

Mrs. Stewart's Wedding To Jim Bush of St. Louis Claims Society's Interest

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

A STILL unannounced future wedding of considerable interest to Capitalites will be that of Mrs. William Rhinelander Stewart and James Bush of St. Louis. Mrs. Stewart, who is one of this country's outstanding society beauties, hails from Washington and is a daughter of Fleming Newbold, president of the Evening Star. Slim, blue eyed Janet, whose trade mark is her ash blond hair, center-parted and chignoned at the nape, was first married to Allan Ryan, jr. Then, after a divorce, she married the late William Rhinelander Stewart, one of the last of the extinct species—the New York society beau. Willy Stewart, who was a brother of Princess Anita Braganza and a nephew of Lispenard Stewart, a famous cotillion leader of the gay nineties, died several years ago. Jim Bush, who graduated from Yale in 1922, is a native Louisianian and rated extremely handsome. So far, the bride-to-be doesn't know just when or where the wedding will take place but it's to be some time next week, and the Bushs will continue to live in St. Louis.

To disentangle the record a bit: Since being married to Janet, Allan Ryan first married Eleanor Barry, who is now Mrs. Lawrence Lowman, then Priscilla St. George, Congresswoman Katherine St. George's daughter, who was formerly the wife of Angier Duke. Will Stewart's first wife was Laura Biddle of Philadelphia.

Tidbits From 1600 Pennsylvania Ave.

WE HAVE just gotten around to reading Henrietta Nesbitt's "White House Diary." As everyone knows, Mrs. Nesbitt ruled the roost during the Roosevelt 13 years' residence at 1600 Pennsylvania ave. To the unimportant, there's great fascination hearing about the important, especially the small quirks and wanton wiles which make them cute or cussed as you and me. Specially interesting to this department were President Roosevelt's food idiosyncracies, the mechanics of running the White House, tidbits about the plushier guests. We like the fact that Mrs. Nesbitt "had an awful time getting vegetables down him," that F. D. R. couldn't abide tepid plates, loved frogs legs, buffalo tongues, pate de foie gras, salted peanuts.

That Peru's President Prado ordered fruit juices, toast, hot and cold milk, coffee, boiled ham and cauliflower for breakfast.

That Harry Hopkins, supposedly on a diet forbidding no less than 48 separate items, pinched food from the President's place and persistently ordered pop corn.

That Louis Howe demanded two hot and two cold fish balls.

That the White House guests at a single party swiped two big silver trays, one silver bowl, innumerable spoons and napkins; that souvenir collectors pestered Mrs. N. with demands for a White House mouse trap, for any wishbone the President had picked on.

That Joseph Lash of the Youth Congress, when a Roosevelt guest, always asked for steak regardless of rationing.

That Mrs. Roosevelt shook hands with 1175 in 30 minutes, who in that same brief space chewed up 77 pounds of cookies.

That scores complained about the mangy appearance of the White House squirrels until the Zoo veterinarian after careful checkup prescribed "stop feeding them so many peanuts."

That Mme. Chiang Kai-shek had both sheets, two pillow cases and silk blanket cover changed every time she got out of bed for the shortest period.

That the Generalissimo's wife kept two trained nurses on day and night duty in an adjoining room.

That British royalty and their suite, in over 90 temperature, tucked hot water bottles under heavy wool blankets, drank hot milk before retiring, and most intriguing—though the King and Queen were friendly, charming—their maids were equaled in arrogance only by some of the White House's more permanent American guests (we're dying to know their names).

Finally, F. D. R. appealing, "Mrs. Nesbitt, I like my cream in lobs and gobs."

Recollections of Hungary's Tildy

WE WONDER what will happen to Zoltan Tildy, the recently resigned President of Hungary.

It was Thanksgiving Day, 1945, and very cold indeed in shattered Budapest. For the first time since before the war, Hungary's parliament met. The vast parliament buildings, scarred but not destroyed by Russo-German shellfire, had their windows repaned for the occasion and red carpets laid on the chill stone floor. But there was no heat, and in the assembly chamber, as the deputies spoke their breath spiralled in icy smoke.

Up in the gallery, General Keyes sat with his staff of American officers and not far away Voroshilov, chin rippling over tight collar, and an interpreter whispering rapidly, his lips almost touching the general's ear. Tildy, a small, unimpressive figure, was almost lost in the circled seats of the important. Most conspicuous was Mme. Tildy, herself a deputy, and bald-pated Rakosi, the Communist boss.

Later we were taken to the President's office. A half dark room filled with huge leather chairs, we backed toward the window, trying for sufficient light to take a photograph. As we fiddled with the camera, we asked questions in English and an interpreter relayed his Hungarian replies. Tildy had gone to college in Ireland and could understand, but was uncertain of speaking in English. The representative of the Small Landholders Party, which had won out at the polls—the last almost free election allowed by the Russians in central and eastern Europe—was gentle, intelligent, completely unequipped to deal with the realistic world outside the narrow Gothic office windows. Buttoning our overcoats higher, we prepared to plunge into the subzero corridor. "I hope I'll see you again," said Hungary's new President politely, "in your country or perhaps Ireland." It looks as if he will.

VERSATILITY is the byword for this warm, winter coat for campus wear. This model is of dark green with zip-in-lining and zip-on, wool fringed stole of green and red plaid. Minus the stole, it is good for dress-up occasions with its high Empire yoke, moderately flared back and stand-up collar. Other colors are brown, wine and charcoal. Flappers' Hat to Return

Paris, Aug. 3 (AP).—Remember that hat the flappers used to wear back in the twenties—the one that looked like a tight-fitting pot? They called it a cloche. Remember?

Well, it's coming back for the woman of 1948 if Paris milliners have their way.

Simone Cange and Albouy, two of the top-ranking millinery houses in Paris, are reintroducing it. Other houses have shown the same trend, but most of them have blended the cloche with the beret or bonnet style, the result being a strictly 1948 silhouette.

But Albouy's fall hats show nothing of this cross-breeding. They hug the back of the head and hide the ears, just like the ones of two decades ago. They differ in only one respect from those of the flapper era. They finish just beyond the crown of the head instead of nearly reaching the forehead. The result generally is more becoming.

Simone Cange has dubbed her basic silhouette the "Lampshade Cloche." She injects the 1948 touch by perching her models to the side front of the head, instead of the back.

Both use bird trimming profusely and other decorations, too.

One in the Cange collection was a lampshade cloche of crushed strawberry heavy satin with a long, saucy-looking jelly bag of the same material dangling down the back. An 8-inch-long brown silk tassel was attached to the end of it.

Cange used many colors for her collection—petunia, sage green, champagne, pale oyster and light and dark grays. Albouy stuck mainly to black and velvet. Practically the only departure from the cloche silhouette was in Albouy's collection. She put big poppies on a toque, which is a small, round, brimless affair.

Basic Line Is Straight

Fall Silhouette Seen in Paris Has Fullness at Back and Hip

By Florence Mills

Paris, Aug. 3 (AP).—Jacques Griffe, who is fast gaining prominence as a top ranking designer, showed fall fashions today that are, generally speaking, of a good 1949 vintage.

His basic line is straight and slender with an abundance of hip detail.

But he shows occasional flashbacks to the 1920's with coats that hang straight and narrow from shoulder to hem edge and fox cuffed short sleeves.

When Griffe puts fullness into a dress he drapes it into a cluster at the back or side.

Hip interest sometimes takes the form of drapery but more often with kangaroo pounches that stand out from the hips.

Griffe designs jackets with his front buttoning, nipped waistlines and deep peplums. They are made stiff to jut out bulbously from the hips, all of them are set over narrow pencil skirts.

Trimming Is Unusual

Perfectly fitting straight-lined dresses are turned into masterpieces of chic by unusual treatment. A black georgette broadcloth was adorned with inch-wide satin ribbon laid around the skirt at half-inch intervals from waist to hem edge. Another in black velvet had an embroidered necklace of rhinestones which was repeated on a large patch pocket.

Topcoats are baggy and often fur-lined, one heavy velour raglan number was lined throughout and cuffed with beaver. A jacket of rough rose-colored tweed was lined with gray squirrel and worn with a straight gray skirt.

Griffe has also designed a few capes.

Over a dress of black blanket velour he sets a thigh-length cape of black and mustard plaid and tops this with an elbow length cape in the velour. Both capes are stiffened with buckram to make them stand out.

Evening wear has a gypsy influence about it. Dresses reach to the ankle in front and graduate downwards slightly at the back. Griffe uses gold and deep rose satins, smoke gray velvet and coffee colored tulle for revealing, full-skirted numbers.

He reserves black velvet for ankle-length tight sheaths, slit to the calf, and with bodices that leave one shoulder completely bare.

Evening coats of vivid emerald green velvet and gray are trimmed with mink and fox fur.

Fur Stoles Popular

Fur stoles that entwine the neck and dangle down to the hemline are used for day as well as evening wear.

Jean Desses showed his fall models last night to a large audience in his new fashion house overlooking the Avenue Montaigne.

This stocky little Egyptian uses the pre-World War I silhouette, which has skirt fullness dragged into a tight band at the knee, as the keynote for his whole collection.

Newest lines in the show are his waistlines, which come immediately beneath the bust. But this doesn't mean that waists are undefined. They are pulled in tight with waistbands or drawstrings and often are molded to fit by [illegible] paneling.

Desses puts the emphasis on hip interest by swathing or kangaroo pouches of tucks. He shows many suits which button high at the throat in front, have nipped-in waistlines and mid-thigh length peplums that stand out from the hips.

Country suits of rough tweed have double-breated box jackets reaching to lower-thigh level with fullness pulled into a quarter belt at the back.

Plaid Cottons To Join Parade Back to School

Plaid and check cottons are as sure a sign of fall and the parade back-to-school as the magic change of autumn leaves.

This year little girls will be wearing them in styles that will make them look like their grandmother's daguerreotypes, for they have more than a touch of the Little Women or Victorian era. Tucked bibs, little pleated collars, godets, tiered skirts, bustles and ruffle trim are big fashion features. Most of the dresses have full skirts, but are not quite as flared as they were last year. Skirts follow the trend in adult styles with a narrow silhouette in front, concentrated fullness at the back. Bodices are snug fitted, flatter a child's waistline with little girdles that lace, with tiny peplums, or bright colored cumberbunds.

Hints on Desserts . . .

A delicious and quickly made dessert may be concocted from a box of devil's food cake mix and half a package of fudge mix. Bake the cake according to the directions on the package and cut half of it in four squares. Now make a chocolate sauce according to the recipe on the package of fudge mix and serve over the hot, fresh cake squares.

A bittersweet chocolate frosting is made from four squares (4 ounces) unsweetened chocolate melted with a quarter cup of butter or margarine; then a cup and a quarter of confectioners' sugar is added along with a half-cup of light cream or evaporated milk. If you have an electric mixer use it to beat the frosting smooth. It should be beaten at high speed for about 4 minutes.

Ask Anne About Summer Luncheon

LUNCHEON suggestion for a hot summer day: Jellied consomme, fresh vegetable salad, ice tea, and crisp cracker sandwiches. Make the latter by spreading a mixture of mashed hard-cooked egg, chopped parsley, tabasco, salt, pepper, mustard and salad dressing between crackers. Garnish tops with chopped parsley and pieces of hard-cooked egg if desired

We are visiting in Washington this summer and would like very much to attend some radio broadcasts. Could you tell us how to obtain tickets?
Montana Friends.

Tickets to the broadcasts of Washington's larger radio and television stations can be obtained either by writing to them or stopping by the reception desks of the station. For a particularly popular program, it's well to drop by a few days in advance. For smaller stations, no tickets are necessary.

I've noticed a number of mildew questions in your column and want to tell you of my success in combating mildew and musty odors with a special preparation made for this purpose and sold in the housewares sections of Washington department stores. It was an especially great boon to me in ridding my house of the stifling odor of mildew after it was closed up for a hot, damp summer.

Going over every surface—books pictures, cushions, drapes, shades, bric-a-brac, even wallpaper—with a soft cloth wrung out in this product will produce amazing results. Further use in spraying basements and in laundry water are also helpful. I should recommend a complete treatment before the vacationer departs. The results are wonderful and even carry over for some time. Our house was closed a second time two years after the treatment described, and when we returned from a vacation we found only a trace of odor. G. A. W.

Could you tell us how to get rid of book lice? We have recently moved into a newly built apartment and have noticed these minute bugs in all our books and some of the furniture. Some of our books are old and the furniture (mostly antiques) has been in storage the past six years. We wonder if the old furnishings and humid weather are the cause. The rooms are aired and cleaned weekly. Will these bugs cause much damage, and in what way? R. B. S.

Book lice—tiny, weird grayish-insects—appear to feed largely on molds growing on wood, and on feathers, hair, straw, books, photographs, and wallpaper. They do not attack man and are not especially harmful unless they are left undisturbed long enough to do serious damage. They thrive in warm, damp, or newly plastered rooms that have been closed up. They die in cold weather, but the eggs which have been deposited hatch the following spring.

For a light infestation, clean and air room thoroughly and sun furnishings for several hours if possible. Spray shelves and other places the lice frequent with 5 per cent DDT oil solution.

If this fails to eliminate them after several treatments, you may have to call in a reliable pest control man to get rid of them. The breeding places must be located. Straw, feathers, and hair should be suspect.

Can you suggest some method for removing grease from a chintz drape? The damage was caused by an electric fan in which the drape became entangled? E. M. F.

Have you tried sponging with dry cleaning fluid? Put an absorbent pad of cloth under the right side of material and sponge the back of the spots liberally with the fluid, so as to drive the grease into the pad. If grease is sticky and hard to get out, use petroleum jelly or lard to soften it. Rub this on spots and leave over night. Then sponge well with dry cleaning fluid, as described above.

I have a white silk bathing suit which has turned a light green color from the chlorine in the swimming pool. Is there any way I can get this color out? E. W.

Try this: Soak the suit for about a half hour in a solution made of 4 tablespoons powdered sodium perborate and 1 pint of soapy water. Then wash thoroughly in the suds and rinse. The procedure can be repeated if all the color does not come out the first time.

Strike Greases Things for Gable

NEW YORK.—When Clark Gable sailed to Europe he took his car with him. And when the ship neared Cherbourg one of his friends warned him of the red tape required to have the car released. "No, it'll be quite easy," Gable insisted. When the vessel pulled into port they noticed that flags were flying and bands were parading through the streets of Cherbourg. Gable smiled confidently at his friend—who said: "No, Clark. This isn't a reception. This is Bastille Day" . . . At the pier Gable found his car and drove off in it without any red tape. "See? The French are obliging," said the star . . . "Perhaps," his friend reported. "The fact is, however, that all the customs men are on strike."

The United World Federalists will produce a movie showing the peace potentialities of atomic energy. The movie will star most of the scientists responsible for the atom bomb—Einstien, Urey, Oppenheimer and others . . . Beatrice Lillie's television appearance August 10, on the twenty-fifth anniversary of NBC, will be at the highest fee ever paid a performer for television work. She will receive more than her customary radio network broadcast salary . . . Henri Bernstein, the French playwright, has given up his American domicile. He's taking his possessions back to Paris.

Former Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, who died Thursday, served in Congress under eight Presidents. He was the leader of the Senate in the Hoover Administration, and when he retired from office there were many rumors about the jobs he would take. The venerable legislator said: "I've been rumored for every job except two—piano player in a certain kind of house and keeper of the pearly gates. Well, I'm too old for the former and too profane for the latter."

Two weeks ago, shortly before David Wark Griffith died, someone asked Dorothy Gish, "Where can I find Mr. Griffith?" Miss Gish replied, "On every movie screen in America" . . . For Dorothy Gish and her sister, Lillian, had started their careers with Griffith and were aware of his countless motion picture innovations he introduced which still are being used . . . When Griffith was about to produce "Birth of a Nation" the Gish sisters wanted to invest $300 in it. "No," he told them, "it wouldn't be fair. This $300 represents savings for which you've worked hard. I won't let you risk it." Had he allowed them to risk it, their $300 would have brought them $100,000.

Olga Bruce, producer and director of the "House of Mystery" radio series, will do two of her shows before the Mental Hygiene Congress in London. She wrote to the Department of Justice and said that she'd bring back some English ghosts to use on her shows. She asked if there would be an import duty. The Department of Justice solemnly assured her, "There is no import duty on ghosts" . . . Charles Boyer returned to his native French village of Figeac last month and immediately noticed familiar things—his clothes. Half the men in Figeac were wearing Boyer's discarded suits which he had sent from Hollywood ever since he arrived in California.

Martha Stewart, the film actress who divorced Joe E. Lewis this week, told the court that the night club comic was guilty of strange behavior and that he spent more time on race track gambling than on his marriage. Lewis' strange impulses never surprise his friends. When he was introduced to General De Gaulle at a reception here, Lewis said to him "Parlez vous francais?" . . . In a New York cafe one night Miss Stewart complained about her husband's gambling. Lewis protested: "But didn't I win $350 today at the track?" Miss Stewart replied: "A wise gambling man once told me: 'When you're gambling, it's not how much you won today, or yesterday—but how did you do all year.'"

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Play Space

All children need ample play space. Unfortunately in the city and even in some towns, little play space seems to be available. The park system doesn't always provide what is needed. In the big cities there are no yards and even in smaller towns, houses may be so crowded together that there is little room for group play.

Here's a situation in which some neighborhood cooperation may bring good results. If one lives in an apartment, it may be possible to get a group of families to approach the landlord and see whether the roof cannot be used. Equipping it with packing boxes, a sand box, a swing or two, large building blocks and some wheel toys should not be difficult. Parents may take turns supervising so as to insure safety and wholesome play.

If one lives in a community where there are a few vacant lots, one of these may be used in the same way. Often, owners will welcome the use of their lots for then they don't have to bother about keeping the weeds off. Again, the cooperative approach is the one that is likely to work best. The very fact of a neighborhood working together for a playground will often bring a higher level of understanding and cooperation among families.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Thomas Held Ignoring Old Adage

By Drew Pearson

One Congressman who has sadly ignored the old adage that those who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones is bouncing Representative J. Parnell Thomas of New Jersey, chairman of the Un-American Activities Committee.

Rep. Thomas

If some of his own personal operations were scrutinized on the witness stand as carefully as he cross-examines witnesses, they would make headlines of a kind the Congressman doesn't like.

It is not, for instance, considered good "Americanism" to hire a stenographer and have her pay a "kickback." This kind of operation is also likely to get an ordinary American in income-tax trouble. However, this hasn't seemed to worry the chairman of the Un-American Activities Committee.

On January 1, 1940, Representative Thomas placed on his payroll Myra Midkiff as a clerk at $1200 a year with the arrangement that she would kick back all her salary to the Congressman. This gave Mr. Thomas a neat annual addition to his own $10,000 salary, and presumably he did not have to worry about paying income taxes in this higher bracket because he paid Miss Midkiff's taxes for her in the much lower bracket.

The arrangement was quite simple and lasted for four years. Miss Midkiff's salary was merely deposited in the First National Bank of Allendale, N. J., to the Congressman's account. Meanwhile she never came anywhere near his office and did no work for him except addressing envelopes at home, for which she got paid $2 per hundred.

Thomas and Income Taxes

The Congressman was very careful about paying Miss Midkiff's income tax except that on March 14, 1944, he wrote the Collector of Internal Revenue asking for a delay in payment for "my clerk," Myra Midkiff, for the year 1943.

"Circumstances have arisen," Thomas wrote, "which make it necessary for Miss Midkiff to request a deferment in the payment of the amount of $118.92 which should be paid with this return. Therefore, I personally shall appreciate it if this payment be deferred for one month."

How "personal" his "appreciation" was, few people knew—certainly not the Collector of Internal Revenue. For it was Thomas himself who was short the money to pay, not his clerk. One month later, Thomas had recouped his financial position and sent the check to Internal Revenue.

This kickback plan worked so well that four years later, Miss Midkiff having got married and left his phantom employ, the Congressman decided to extend it. On November 16, 1944, the House disbursing officer was notified to place on Thomas' payroll the name of Arnette Minor at $1800 a year. Actually, Miss Minor was a day worker who made beds and cleaned the room of Thomas' secretary, Miss Helen Campbell. Miss Minor's salary was remitted to the Congressman. She never got it.

This arrangement lasted only a month and a half, for, on January 1, 1945, the name of Grace Wilson appeared on the Congressman's payroll for $2900.

Miss Wilson turned out to be Mrs. Thomas' aged aunt, and during the year 1945 she drew checks totaling $3467.46, though she did not come near the office, in fact remained quietly in Allendale, N. J., where she was supported by Mrs. Thomas and her sisters, Mrs. Lawrence Wellington and Mrs. William Quaintance.

Trouble In Red Army

Reports have leaked out through the iron curtain that an anti-Communist movement may have sprung up inside the Red army.

According to uncensored reports, antigovernment tracts have been circulated among Russian soldiers and have even shown up on the streets of Leningrad. Pamphlets published by an "anti-Communist organization in the Red army" also have been picked up in Vienna which is partly occupied by Soviet troops.

Meanwhile, Lieut. Gen. Kuzma Romanovich went so far as to complain in an article in the Soviet Army Journal recently that discipline has sunk to a new low. He demanded a tightening-up against laxity in the army.

Uncensored diplomatic advices also indicate that the Russians are reaping political repercussions in eastern Germany. One bloc of German Communists has appealed boldly to the Soviet military administration to abandon the Berlin blockade.

As a result of this unrest in the Soviet zone, Russia has ordered a purge of the Russian-sponsored Socialist Unity Party and one of the party leaders in Saxony, Herr Schliebs, bitterly castigated some of his coworkers at a recent conference in Bautzen.

"When members of our party oppose the USSR and its representatives," shouted Schliebs, "when comrades in important positions stir up party members against the USSR, it is time to draw the line between a member of the party and an agent of United States imperialism."

My Fishing Luck

Somewhere the fish are biting now . . . For those who cast and troll . . . And those who use the lowly worm . . . to gain their sporting goal . . . And somewhere in this country there . . . Are boats that churn the lake . . . As they are heading for the shore . . . With their enormous take . . . The perch, the bass and sunfish and . . . The mackerel and trout . . . And those the deep-sea fishermen . . . Forever talk about . . . Somewhere the fish are biting now . . . For all who sit and wait . . . But not for those who are compelled . . . To use my kind of bait . . . Whose flies and minnows and whose worms . . . Are figments of the mind . . . Because like me they are not free . . . To leave their daily grind.
